

THE DAILY BEE.

Thursday Morning, June 19.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Complaint has been filed against A. M. Kitchin for keeping more than three barrels of oil in his place, 1408 Sanders street.

Complaint has been filed against John Kane by John C. Durbin, charging him with robbery.

Miss Daisy Jewett, daughter of City Clerk Jewett, was married yesterday to a gentleman from Chicago by the name of Locks.

A woman was found at the C. M., St. P. & O. depot yesterday overcome by the heat. She was taken to the city jail and was revived.

Chief engineer Butler has filed a complaint against the Consolidated Tank Line company for keeping large quantities of inflammable material at their ware houses on Ninth street.

Meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, on Thursday, June 19th, at 2 o'clock p. m. in First M. E. Church. A full attendance is requested, by order of president, T. G. Charlton, secretary.

Considerable indignation is felt by the citizens over the way in which an unfortunate sick man is treated. Whether he is a criminal or not he is taken to the city jail and there allowed to lie until death comes to his relief. J. J. Schneider, the man who was struck on Sunday, lay in the city jail until yesterday evening when he was taken to the county farm in a dying condition. The boys at the jail do all in their power for a sick man, but they have no conveniences to offer, not even a bed. The city physician should order the removal of such persons as are sick to the hospital and not allow them to die in the jail.

PELISONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Walker left for their home in Norfolk, yesterday.

Wm. H. Fay, the manufacturer of Fay's Manilla, who with his wife, has been spending a few days in Omaha with J. S. Richardson, his general agent, will be departing to-day for Philadelphia via St. Louis.

Mr. C. S. Raymond, wife and family, arrived in this city yesterday. They are from Clinton, Iowa, but will, in the future, make Omaha their home. Mr. Raymond has for years been the leading jeweler of Clinton and being most favorably impressed with this city has concluded to locate here. He has disposed of his business interests in Clinton and his real estate and will at once identify himself with the interests of this city. He has obtained a five years lease of the building now occupied by Bushman, at the corner of Fifteenth and Douglas streets, and will open there in a few weeks. The store will be thoroughly renovated and refitted inside and out and will be made one of the most attractive business houses in this city. Mr. Raymond comes to Omaha with the best of recommendations as a business man and citizen and will be a valuable acquisition to the trade while his family will fill an important nook in the society corner.

MORE INDICTMENTS.

A Batch Returned by the Grand Jury Yesterday.

The grand jury returned another batch of indictments yesterday. There was one against Martha Guthrie for perjury; one against Thomas Murray for permitting a house of prostitution to exist; one against Sarah Bernstein and Abraham Bernstein for permitting a house of prostitution; one against Seth C. Baldwin, Charles Branch, Hiram B. Kennedy, Goody Brucker, James C. Morrison, C. S. Higgins, William Soderstrom and Luther B. Wood, for being gamblers, also one indictment against the same for keeping gambling houses.

After presenting the above indictments the grand jury walked back into their little room and went to sleep.

TRAIN DITCHED.

A Mispaced Rail Ditches the Cannon Ball on the B. & M.

Yesterday some one moved a rail on the southern line of the B. & M. near Hubbard, and the "Cannon Ball" train was thrown from the track.

The express messenger was seriously hurt; the conductor had both legs broken; a brakeman had one leg broken.

None of the passengers were injured to speak of.

On a Wheel.

Tuesday a gentleman rode into this city on a bicycle and stopped at the Planters hotel. He registered as "Thos. Stevens, bicycle tourist from San Francisco, rides to Constantinople, Turkey." He rides to Constantinople, Turkey. He rides a machine with a fifty inch wheel. He left San Francisco, April 22, and has been on the road fifty-six days. He will remain in this city until to-morrow by which time he expects the roads will be perfectly dry. If the weather is favorable he expects to reach Chicago by the 25th of June, and New York by the last of July. He will spend the entire summer in crossing Europe and expects to reach Constantinople about the first of November. He is keeping a daily journal of his travels, and intends writing a book at the close. He is hale and hearty although he has lost twenty-five pounds since starting.

An Officer's Death.

Col. Black, with headquarters at Fort Wayne, Mich., has sent out the following notice in regard to the death of 1st Lieutenant William F. Rice, quartermaster of the Twenty-third infantry:

Fort Wayne, Mich., June 12, 1884. It is the painful duty of the regimental commander to announce the death of 1st Lieutenant William F. Rice, quartermaster of the regiment, which occurred early on the morning of the 5th instant, while he was in the zealous discharge of his duty.

Following this announcement are a number of resolutions and also a sketch of deceased's military career and it is the command of General Crook for a number of years and as an Indian fighter loathed himself with glory.

COLLEGE CHILDREN.

Six of Them Graduate From Brownell Hall Last Evening.

Interesting Commencement Exercises at the Boyd Last Night.

The Graduating Essays, &c. The Presentation of Prizes and Diplomas.

Over a thousand people assembled in the opera house last evening to witness the closing exercises of the Brownell Hall students for the year 1884. The audience was composed of many people living outside the city in various parts of Nebraska and Western Iowa who are interested in the success of this institution and its students.

Upon the stage, which had been beautifully arranged and prepared for the occasion, were seated the Hon. J. M. Woolworth, the Rev. John Williams, rector of St. Barnabas church, the Rev. Robert Doherty, rector, Mrs. S. H. Windsor, the students and the graduating class of the year.

The exercises of the evening were opened by a chorus, "The May Queen," by the school. This was followed by a piano duet by Misses Clarkson and Latham, after which began the regular literary programme of the evening.

The first exercise was an essay by Miss Orie Abbott, of Fremont, Nebraska, on the subject, "Were the Crusades a Failure?" "It is the will of the Divine," read the essayist, "that nothing shall be lost," and these wars to wrest the Holy land from the infidel Turk were not altogether in vain. By these wars the nations of Europe became acquainted with one another and knowledge was acquired thereby. The people of Europe also learned to respect in a great degree the followers of Mahomet. There are crusades to-day the same as in the past. The crusader has his sword, his armor and his coat of mail, and so has the Christian. Good will conquer in the end, therefore let us be on the safe side and look for victory. The essayist closed her theme by making a beautiful comparison between the crusader of the past and present. The essay was well read. The articulation of the reader was very distinct and although she read in a very low tone could be heard plainly in any part of the house.

MISS JENNIE COOPER.

The theme of this young lady's essay was "Friction." "Friction," said the reader, "in its broad and unrestricted sense has played a small or mean part in the history of the world." It brings money into the national treasury. By means of this great element of principle the councils of Rome were enabled to adorn their triumph. The savage is subdued and conquered not so much to civilize him as to obtain possession of his lands; nevertheless the savage by friction with his conquerors learns to leave his wild state and become a civilized being. The friction of sorrow and trial has made us do in forming our character. We are like the diamond. As the precious gem's brilliancy is increased by the number of its sides so is the human soul more fit to wear the immortal crown by the trials and sorrows of their own life.

MISS LULU CHAMBERLAIN.

This young lady was chosen by her class to lift futurity's veil and read to each classmate what the great future had in store for her. "Human life," said the reader, "is a flower that buds into a blossom, withers, dies, and is forgotten. So is childhood." Her classmates, she said, had placed her in the character of oracle to them, but on account of the thought that they would not like inquiring in anything not of a serious nature. She, however, read to her five classmates a brief history of their lives. They were excellent little romances, and like all other romances, the subject comes out victorious in the end. When she had concluded her predictions she handed her which she read. Miss Bremer's production deserves especial mention. It was written in a most charming style, was full of many pithy sayings, and bore evidence of much study and labor upon it. To add to this, it was well read by the young lady, whose manner was so free and so clear that articulation so distinct, that all could hear and appreciate it.

MISS FANNIE LATHAM

chose for her subject "Eccentricity." The weak, timid and cautious had their eccentricities. It is now thought that eccentricity is a mark of genius, and the greater the eccentricity the greater the genius. Oscar Wilde had studied all the peculiarities in order to become an eccentric. Good old Dr. Johnson, whom Macaulay had written of as an eccentric as said so much was an eccentric as was Alexander Pope and Oliver Goldsmith. In great contrast with them was Sir Walter Scott, who was so simple and refined, who never had an enemy, and the picture was anything but a pleasing one to behold one full of eccentricities, which mark the beauty and symmetry of the mind. Her essay was closed with a beautiful comparison of the man as nature made him with the symmetrical oak as it stands in the forest.

MISS ANNA WILSON

next read an essay entitled "On Every Height there lies Repose." "On every height," said Miss Wilson, "people are trying to climb above the level where fate has left them. The laborer looks for repose, so do the men of the world. Men in these degenerate days grasp for things substantial, but every man's aim should be usefulness. Whenever we indulge too deeply in pleasure we stir up a sediment that leaves us pain. To rise high we must have courage. To overcome loss ground only strengthens us. We are expected to follow upon the life of apathy? Repose is the reward of the man with noble aspirations who searches the garden of his heart to see that no noxious weeds are growing there. Swift was a genius but Kings call him the most unhappy of men intelligence does not bring repose. Repose does not depend upon outward circumstances but upon the innermost nature of the soul. Macaulay was an example of one deserving repose.

The valedictory of the class was read by

who chose for her subject the well known

Five More Indictments Found Against the Mayor and Marshal and the End Not Yet.

Wednesday afternoon the grand jury returned five more indictments against the mayor and marshal and the end is not yet.

In all the indictments the crime charged is that of bribery and that the money received by the mayor and marshal was for the purpose of bribing them so that they would not perform their official duties so far as gamblers and gambling houses were concerned and that the money was paid by the keepers of gambling houses for that purpose.

One of the indictments specifies the payment of $250 by Charles Branch to the mayor and marshal for this purpose on the 15th of September, 1883, and the other names the 13th of October, 1883, as the time, and $200 as the amount. Mayor Chase has also been indicted singly for receiving $300 on the 15th day of July, 1883, from Charles Branch, acting as the agent of the gamblers, for allowing them to pursue their business unmolested in violation of the twenty-first chapter of the criminal code of the state, and against the gaming ordinance of the city of Omaha. Marshal Guthrie is also presented singly, on two indictments, for like felonious conduct. The allegations against Guthrie are that on the 15th of July, 1883, he accepted $300 from Charles Branch as a bribe for not doing his duty, and on the 19th of October, 1883, he accepted $200 from James E. Smith for a similar neglect.

The grand jury are still busy and are examining a number of the sporting women of the city in regard to the payment of certain sums of money for the purpose of having the ordinance removing all houses of prostitution two blocks from the third ward school house changed. When the next batch of indictments are brought in there may be some people terribly surprised.

GUTHRIE'S REASONS.

Why R. C. Guthrie Resigned—He Could not Enforce the Laws.

R. C. Guthrie yesterday tendered his resignation as city marshal, giving as his reason for so doing that he was unable to enforce the laws because of public opinion. It is an interesting epistle and it is published for the amusement of the readers of THE BEE:

GUTHRIE'S LETTER.

Hon. C. S. Chase, Mayor.

DEAR SIR:—In consequence of the indictment of both you and me by the court, and of the various charges and attacks made by some of the city newspapers upon you and your administration of the municipal affairs in the mayor's office, and upon me as your subordinate, in the capacity of city marshal, which I am compelled to do for the reason stated above, and for the fact that our intercourse has always been exceedingly pleasant—at least to me you having always treated me with such courtesy and consideration, that it affords me pleasure now, to endeavor to reciprocate, by leaving you untrammelled, by any consideration for me in any steps you may take toward refuting the above mentioned accusation.

Permit me, however, to assure you, that in withdrawing from my official position, I am making no sacrifice. It is an exceedingly onerous and unpleasant one, at best, with a salary attached, extremely meagre in consideration of the labor performed, the responsibility assumed and the willful subjected to, and I had fully determined long before the expiration (April last) of the term for which I was appointed to respectfully decline a reappointment, should you be kind enough to tender it to me, and have only continued to perform the duties of the office because of the charges made against my official conduct, with the hope that an investigation would be ordered and that I might have an opportunity of vindicating myself. However, now that you have also been assailed it is my desire to leave you free to act.

Thanking you for your kindness in the past and desiring you the best wishes for your future welfare, I am Very respectfully yours, R. C. GUTHRIE.
