What The Workmen Are Likely To Do To-night.

The Likelihood of Money Being Used—The Real Choice of Workmen.

The city political question seems to engross the attention of nearly all citizens at this time.

The citizens' committee met at the rooms of John S. Collins last night and discussed the various candidates for aldermanic offices, and whom the body would support.

It was afterwards decided by the committee to allow the names selected to be published. They are as follows: Boyd, mayor; Buck, treasurer; Stenberg, police judge; councilmen, Goodman, Schogder, Meyer, Hitchcock, Daily, Bailey, School board, Coburn, Linsay, Clarke.

THE WORKINGMEN.

The workmen's convention will be called this evening at the city hall. As it is stated by the alleged leaders, five delegates from each labor element in the city will be submitted to the convention and several of the active workers say that at least 100 delegates will be in attendance.

According to a well known authority there is considerable doubt whether the convention will be a bona fide expression of the workmen's preference for the various offices to be voted for. The gentlemen interviewed on the subject believe an effort will be made on the part of Boyd and his friends to buy a portion of the delegates and thus stifle the honest expression and will of the majority of workmen throughout the city.

Another element representing the true friends of labor, and having at heart the welfare of workmen are doing what they can for Murphy.

In an outspoken and honest opinion vote to be given by ninety-nine of every hundred men who work for their living in this city, it would be in favor of Murphy," said a Union Pacific shop man, and a person whose honesty of purpose is unquestioned.

"I fear the money influence brought to bear will prove greater than some of the delegates can stand when the convention comes off to-night," he continued, "and if such is the case there will be a formidable bolt. Anyway, the convention can exercise no influence unless its result conforms to the wishes of a majority of workmen in this city."

Jim Boyd's record is not one which will commend itself to the masses, and this fact kept him from making the run against Chase at the conclusion of his last term in office, and after his noted action on the B. & O. dam.

"So far as is known," continued the gentleman, "the professions of Murphy and his actions during the past few years stamp him as a plain, honest and sincere man. His affiliations have always been first rate, his actions as mayor will bear close inspection, and I trust that he will be endorsed by the workmen's convention to-night."

From another U. P. shopman it was learned that there is a regular protective organization among all branches of labor represented there for political and benevolent purposes.

From what can be learned from good sources, no money influence can swerve these men from whichever man they may deem the fittest for office and the best friend of working classes.

"Murphy is emphatically the choice of the shops," said a moulder this evening, "and my friends and myself will vote and do all we can for him," and as the man buttoned up his blue flannel shirt-front, his face put on an expression of determination, and he said: "We will elect him too."

"FRANK."

A Dog Story Told by a S. C. & F. R. H. Man That Lays It in the Shade.

George Devanor, Esq., the popular passenger conductor who commands the passenger between Missouri Valley and Long Pine, owns a shepherd dog which for tricks that are vain is most decidedly peculiar. Here is the story as one of "the boys" tells it: "Crotty, an engineer on the line, was the dog's previous owner, and he dubbed the railroad dog with the cognomen of 'Frank.' The engineer came in possession of 'Frank' when he was only a few months old. He soon took him upon the iron horse and introduced him to the ways of life in the 'cab.' In this capacity he served for 'year' upon a freight.

Upon the freight runs the head brakeman has to ride in the "cab" on the first man's seat. 'Frank' always occupying a portion of the engine's. As soon as the signal is sounded for the approach of a station 'Frank' would jump from his seat and go for the brakeman's legs, pulling him off his seat and running him out over the tank, following him to its end and watching him until he saw him climb upon the first cab, then he would return to his accustomed seat with a look of contentment. His most remarkable trait was knowing a station, crossing or cattle signal, one from the other. If stock were on the track the train would stop and let 'Frank' off, and he would clear the track of stock.

But, alas! poor Frank met with a serious accident. One day a few months ago, while they were backing up light, 'Frank' was standing upon the rear of the tank, when a sudden jar sent him heading upon the track, the engine backing over him, and strange to say he came out from under the pilot with but slight injury, losing all his tail except a short stump to remind him of his experience upon the rail.

MORE LAND FOR SETTLERS.

The President Opens The Santee Sioux Indian Reservation on April 15.

On May 15 One Hundred and Twenty Thousand Acres for Settlers in Knox County will be Ready for Settlement.

By proclamation of the president 120,000 acres of farming land will be open and subject to settlement as homestead, timber claim or pre-emption on and after May 15th, 1885. These lands are of fine quality and have the great advantage of close proximity to railroads, and the Sioux City and Omaha markets.

They are situated in Knox county in northern Nebraska, in a country which is surrounded by a rapidly settling region. Tickets should be secured to Hartington by persons wishing to visit these lands, as this is the point where persons leave the railroad for the reservation of the Santee Sioux Indians which is the land in question, just restored to the public domain. These tickets are on sale in Omaha at the office of Harry Deuels, corner Farnam and Fourteenth streets, and special excursion rates are secured by applying to any agent of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway, which is the only line reaching Hartington, Neb. If persons wishing to learn of these lands will take the trouble to write to T. W. Teasdale, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minnesota, or F. B. Whitney, general agent, Omaha, Nebraska, they will receive free illustrated pamphlets describing the entire north-eastern portion of Nebraska.

"WAYS OF CRUELTY."

Good Lessons for Parents, Masters and Sportsmen.

This is the title of a little forty-page pamphlet written by Thos. H. Hill, author of several similar books and published at the office of the Humane Journal in Chicago. It is nicely illustrated and treats in illustration and text of the great evils practiced by careless people and by brutal masters of men and beasts. Parents will find it a mirror that will reflect some pictures that will surprise them and all persons standing in the relation of sportsmen, no matter of what character, will be benefited by its perusal. Col. D. B. Houck of this city, is the representative here of the aims and objects of this little work and will be pleased to see all who feel an interest in its teaching and its lessons. Let those who have control of grown up persons and children, and animals who cannot in words tell their worse purpose if, for they will find abundant food for thought and a harvest of interesting facts in it.

HOUSE VICINIZED.

CHICAGO'S WONDERFUL PLACE. Special telegram to the Bee.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Christopher House was a widower of about 60 years and a well-to-do innkeeper in the suburb of Riverdale. He came to this city to the intelligence office to hire a housekeeper. Ernestine Master, a divorced woman, was proprietoress of the establishment. After learning the terms Mrs. Master thought the girl would suit her, and as her appearance caught the eye of Christopher House, he engaged her. Divers rumors affecting the good name of his housekeeper reached House's ears, but the grass widow was winning and eloquent and the result was a promise of marriage, and an agreement to settle a certain property on her. She took him to her lawyers and trusting her, he signed what was thought a marriage contract, but which it now appears was a deed absolute to her, for all his property, cutting off his children by a former wife. Three days later they were married, and she remained with him for thirteen days after that she deserted him.

A case for divorce was on hearing in court to-day, and an injunction was granted to prevent the woman from selling the property. It appeared in the evidence that while living with House the woman continued in intimate relations with her divorced husband; that he thought the woman was unfaithful, but which his former wife obtained the property. He then went to enjoy his fruits with her; that he often was concealed in the little back room of the intelligence office listening to all the conversations of the woman and that on the day of the wedding a photograph was taken of the "happy couple" on which Master likewise appears, standing on the other side of the bride.

BASE BALL NEWS.

Special Telegram to THE BEE.

THE WESTERN LEAGUE COMPLETED. St. Louis, Mo., March 31.—The Western Base Ball league has at last got its affairs in shape, and now has its organization permanently completed. Messrs. Sullivan, Loftus and O'Leary, the schedule committee, met here to-day. They had applications from Omaha, Keokuk and Minneapolis, and having full power to reconstruct the league, they honored the application of Omaha alone, thus limiting their organization to six clubs, including the cities of Kansas City, Toledo, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Omaha. Mr. Curtis, representing the Keokuk club, said that he was willing to deposit $50,000 in the association's treasury as a guarantee fund that the Keokuk club would carry out its obligations. Minneapolis was not so well represented, and for that reason alone Keokuk will play against it in the league, and take it into the league, in case any one of the other clubs dropped out. It was the wish of the association. The committee having wired all the managers to meet on the 23rd of March, to commence the season with six strong clubs, and it was so ordered.
