

THE DAILY BEE.

Friday Morning, May 29.

LOCAL BREVIETIES.

"V" is coming. The internal revenue office will be closed on Saturday, decoration day. A nine-pound black-haired, dark-eyed bellows arrived at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Owen McCaffrey last Tuesday. Mother and child down, but Owen wears a smile a foot long and a yard wide. "V" will soon be here. The State Medical association concluded its labors at Grand Island Wednesday. This morning a portion of the delegation of Omaha medical returned, including Drs. Carter, Lee, Wilcox, Merriam and Stone. "V" will please you. The Omaha team astonished itself and the country at large by winning a game from the Indianapolis team Wednesday. Score, 10 to 14. Mayor Boyd should declare tomorrow a holiday for thanksgiving and feasting. Constant Edgerton returned Thursday from Lincoln having with him the soldier Richard Killgrew, who is accused of swindling Mrs. Minnie Wirth out of $80 in March, 1883. Killgrew has been released on $300 bail to appear next Monday for trial. It was learned, yesterday, that W. H. Brown, who was shot in Plattsmouth last Sunday morning by Frank Williams, is growing better and will ultimately recover. The man caught at Springfield on Monday did not prove to be Williams, and he was subsequently released. The officers of school district No. 10 (Elkhorn station) were in Omaha Wednesday to secure the signature of County Clerk Leavitt to the $3,500 in bonds recently issued by that district. The proceeds of the sale of these bonds will be used to build a four-room school house this season. The funeral of the lamented Mrs. Emma W. Hull took place yesterday afternoon from the late residence of the deceased, 1514 Harney street. A large number of sympathizing friends were in attendance upon the obsequies. The remains were interred in Prospect Hill cemetery. "V" is liable to create a stir. Mendelsohn & Fisher have just completed a rough sketch of the plan for the proposed Exposition building for the corner of Fifteenth and Capitol avenue. It will be 264 feet long by 120 deep extending from Fourteenth to Fifteenth street and facing on Capitol avenue, reaching back to the alley. It will be surmounted by four turrets and when completed will be one of architectural beauties of the city.

LAST TRIBUTES.

The Friends of the Late Charles A. Trabing Follow His Remains to Their Last Resting Place.

The remains of the late Charles A. Trabing who died so suddenly in this city Sunday, arrived in Laramie on Monday night's train, and were met at the depot by an immense concourse of friends. Accompanying the remains on the train were the brother, Mr. A. Trabing, Mrs. Dyleman, Mrs. Charles Trabing's mother, with two children of the deceased and Mrs. Will Swan, of Cheyenne. The funeral took place at the residence Tuesday afternoon, the parlors of the mansion being thronged with the friends of the deceased. The services were conducted by the Rev. Huber, of the Methodist church, who preached a funeral sermon of an impressive and eloquent. A choir, especially chosen for the occasion, rendered several beautiful selections. The casket was literally covered with floral tributes of every design, including a massive harp, lyre, broken column, cross, anchor and many others, all of them immortal. The body was followed to its final resting place by an immense funeral cortege. The pall bearers at the residence and at the grave were: Robert Marsh, S. Duracher, Ora Haley, O. Prahl, A. S. Peabody, W. H. Holliday. As expressed in a Laramie journal, "during the entire afternoon, and until the last sad rites were over, all the places of business were closed, and the entire town seemed to wear the garb of grief. The loss to the community in the death of Charles A. Trabing is one that will not soon be forgotten. He filled a place few can hope to fill, and his support and assistance in all business enterprises will be sadly missed."

POLICE COURT.

Usual Business Transacted--Pitts Released.

In the police court yesterday morning, Mr. Schultz, who had been indicted for one of her periodical sprees yesterday was instructed to sober up on a fine of $5 and costs. She produced the money, paid the assessment and was released. Frank Peterson had been arrested as a vagrant. He clearly disproved the charge yesterday morning, and showed that he had been industrious in search of work at his trade of a mechanic. William Morgan, a semi-dolite youth was arrested on a charge of fighting. Taking into consideration the mental condition of the boy and the fact that he was under 16 years of age, the judge concluded to release the unfortunate. Mike McDonald (colored), and no relation to the great Chicago b and snare-puller) was up before Judge Stenberg on a charge of being a suspicious character. Ostensibly he earns a living by running a boot-black stand on Douglas, but he has been seen prowling around a good deal of late at night and at early morn, and the police arrested him as a suspected crook. Judge Stenberg released him with a reprimand. Charles Pitts was brought from jail yesterday morning, but no complaint was filed against him, as the evidence was hardly strong enough. He is the man, it may be remembered, who was arrested on suspicion of robbing the drug store of Field & Farnsworth, Monday. He has been discharged. A complaint was filed against Louis Helmsford for assault and battery by Sigmond Hirschberg. The latter was also the subject of a complaint preferred by Mr. H. charging him with cruelty to a dog. Hirschberg, it is claimed, rammed a broomstick down the throat of Mr. H.'s dog and the owner very naturally resenting the insult offered to his canine, retaliated by striking the man with the broomstick. On these grounds the complaints were filed.

TWICE DISAPPEARED.

The Story of a Woman's Life.

Deserted in North Carolina and in Colorado--A Fruitless Chase.

Yesterday morning's Denver train brought in among other passengers a lady whose outward appearance plainly indicated that she was of the poorer class. Her features were of a refined type, in strange contrast to the rude and uncouth habitations which clothed her person. Her general appearance and actions, barring the matter of dress, was that of a perfect lady, one doubtless who had seen the world and had passed through the bitterest and most trying hours which life affords. With her was a small boy, probably five or six years of age, who was neatly but coarsely dressed and upon whom, it could be plainly seen, had been lavished the wealth of a mother's care. The lady, while waiting for one of the south-bound train, entered into conversation with Officer John Turnbull, who chanced to be in the depot at the time and told him the story of an interesting portion of her life. Her name is Mrs. Mary Benton; her home is, or was, in North Carolina, near Raleigh. "Eight years ago," she said, "I was married in North Carolina to a man by the name of James Benton. I was then nineteen years of age. It is needless to say that I entertained for my husband that wife-like love and respect and honor, without which no married life can be truly happy. He seemed to return, in a reciprocal measure, these feelings. For five years everything went smoothly. My father had died in the meantime and left us a farm of seventy-five acres, not very valuable, but as good as the majority of farms in that neighborhood. We moved upon it and lived there happily, enjoying the peace and quiet of a farming life. My husband was a carpenter and always had plenty of work because he was a steady, reliable man and well liked in the country where he was known. "About three years ago there came a change. My husband's feelings seemed metamorphosed. From a quiet, gentle and tender man and husband, he developed into a moody and morose being, whose traits were anything but admirable. It is not necessary to dwell at any length upon this painful topic. I could not understand the change, could not assign a reason, though I racked my brain in the vain attempt, and tried every expedient to solve the mystery. My husband to all inquiries was grimly silent. "On the 15th day of June, 1882, he disappeared. Where he went no one knew. He disappeared as completely and as mysteriously, as though he had been obliterated from the face of the earth. He took no money, (he had some thing over $200 treasured up in an old tin chest and left all the valuable papers untouched. No note was left behind him to explain the cause of his departure. For weeks and months I grieved over the matter, until at one time the doctor, as I afterwards found out, thought that my brain would give way under the crushing weight of the sorrow. The neighbors, who had noticed the vast change which had come over my husband, were induced to the belief that he had tarred and suicided. But I did not believe that such was the case (though I do not know now and did not know then why I was led to think so.) "One day about a year ago I received a letter written by my husband and dated at Denver. Barring the stamp (of that postoffice) in it he said nothing of the cause of his strange disappearance, but sent me a check for $250 and told me to come at once to Denver. "Sell the farm," he said, "and do not delay coming a single day." I closed up my affairs as quickly as I could, sold the land at a great sacrifice and started out west, taking with me my child, who had then been five years of age. "It did not take me long to make the trip to Denver. On the way I fell to thinking about the strange circumstances connected with the letter and wondered if my husband were really alive and had written the missive, or whether it was some strange hoax. The more I thought of it the more I realized on what slender chances rested the hope of finding my husband. I did not believe that I should ever find him in Denver, but made up my mind to prepare myself for a bitter disappointment. "I was in the wrong. I was met at the depot by my husband, (I wrote a letter beforehand, telling of the time of arrival) and he was taken to his home, a handsome house constructed near a mining camp many miles from the city. Our meeting I cannot describe. My husband had changed greatly, had lost all that melancholy and moroseness of character, which I had discovered stealing over him just before he had deserted me three years ago. And under the rough exterior of character which a mining life had given him, I could discover the traits of the husband as I had known him years ago. The first night after the joy of meeting was over, I asked him to explain the cause of his mysterious departure. He seemed strangely agitated, and told me to wait a day or two and he would explain everything. "The next day I woke up to find him gone. I thought it rather strange, but supposed that his business had called him away, and that he would soon return. But a day passed, and he did not come back. A month rolled around and still he did not return. Again he had deserted me and the child in the same mysterious manner. The most thorough search failed to reveal any clue to his strange departure. "I am going to Missouri, where I have a brother living near Golden City. I have given up my husband for good. The mystery of his strange actions I cannot explain. I do not believe that I will ever see him again. That I care to, I can not say. "The story was told Officer Turnbull in a manner calculated to carry conviction. Mrs. Benton refused all proffers of aid. She had money enough to reach Golden City and there, she said, a living would be provided her and the child.

BAFFLED BURGLARS.

A Thief Driven Off at the Point of the Pistol--Frightened Damsels.

About 1 o'clock Wednesday night there was a rapid succession of revolver shots near the corner of Seventeenth and Capitol avenue which told of some tragedy or comedy that was being enacted in the vicinity. Investigation reveals the fact that about the hour indicated, a solitary burglar broke into the house of Mr. F. A. Schneider, on the southwest corner of Seventeenth and Capitol avenue. He effected an entrance by opening a side window and passing into the hall through an unoccupied side bedroom. It appears that the front door had been left open for Mr. Schneider's son who expected to be home late, and when Mrs. S., who has her bedroom on first floor, heard the noise as of some one groping in the dark, she naturally supposed that it was her son. She called to him repeatedly, but the supposed son of the house, evidently made no reply. Finally, becoming suspicious and alarmed, she arose and went to the door which opens out into the hall. She called to him again, asking him some question and he replied as though he were her son. Then, by the strange tone of voice, she knew that she had been deceived. Peering cautiously out she saw the burglar, with a lighted match overhead, groping his way, evidently about to light upon a trunk-full of valuables which stood in the rear of the hall. Quietly turning around, Mrs. Schneider went to her husband and told him of the state of affairs. Mr. Schneider at once jumped from the bed and seizing a revolver rushed out into the hall. "Let me alone, let me alone, as I'll leave the house," shouted the intruder, as he bolted through the open side window. Mr. Schneider jumped through the door and rushed out into the yard, with no garment to protect his figure from the chilling winds save the scanty night-gown. He fired several shots at the fellow, none of which appeared to take effect. After changing the thief up to Dodge street, Schneider returned to the examination of the premises revealed the fact that nothing of any value had been taken. The thief is supposed to be a Dane who was employed a few days before in watching the house while the family was in California, and who has several times before been detected in crooked operations.

ANOTHER ONE. Miss Molly Fagan and Miss Carrie Reed see a brace of fair damsels who were at 14 Farnam street, Wednesday night about midnight they were awakened by the noise of the turning of the door knob on the room of their door. They resorted to the usual maidenly expedient of screaming. They screamed until their melodious voices ceased with warbling tenderness the high ledger notes above the staff. The man, whoever he was, immediately retreated through the front door, evidently afraid that the girls would get after him, and paralyzed, quite probably, by the awful thought that one of them might propose to him. The young ladies naturally expected a return of the felonious visitor and at once determined to remove their bed up stairs, instead of remaining alone on the first floor. They worked like beavers at this job for about twenty minutes, until they were completely tuckered out. Just as they were lugging the last pair of bed-slates up stairs, they heard the front door open again. The burglar was again in the house. Allowing two piercing screams to gurgled forth from two peevish mouths, the courageous young ladies seized their bed-slates with deadly grip, and started to pounce upon the offender, at the foot of the stairs. But the desperado had fled. The girls returned to their up-stairs couch and peace reigned supreme. "V" is liable to create a stir.

BRIGHTON RANCHE CASE. New Evidence to be Taken in this Important Suit. United States Marshal Hastings returned to this city yesterday morning bringing with him several new witnesses who are expected to give testimony in the matter of the Brighton Rancho case, on behalf of the government. The names of these gentlemen are E. K. Lichtenburg, James A. Pike, Frank Dalton, Bernard Whipple, B. O. Sheard and William Penn. They are expected to testify in relation to the amount of land inclosed by corporation, the treatment of home-saders, etc.--points which are at present involved in doubt. The taking of testimony will be done before Judge Hall, the Examiner in Chancery, commencing, probably, to-day. Mr. Hastings says that O. H. Howes, the special surveyor sent out to make a survey of the tract, is already on the scene, busy at work. Matters just at present are peaceful in Custer county, though there is considerable suppressed agitation. At the recent session of the district court, Powell and Dillon, the two men accused of killing the homesteader, secured a continuance of their cases until July. CITY IMPROVEMENTS.

The Report of the City Engineer on Last Year's Expenditures.

What Grading, Curbing and Guttering, Paving, Etc., Have Cost. City Engineer Rosewater has filed with the city clerk his report of expenditures for public improvements during the year ending May, 1885. The main points are given below:

GRADING. The total of grading done was 700,000 cubic yards at a cost of $175,483.88. This work was done on twenty-five different streets, aggregating 10 86-100 miles of street, equivalent to about sixty miles of railroad work with an average fill of 5 1/2 feet. The most notable changes from this grading are manifest on Farnam, North Eighteenth and South Sixteenth, and the gradation of the old creek bed on Isard street. The result of this work, notwithstanding the strong reasons for believing it was injudicious, has advanced the value of adjoining property more than triple the cost of the work. Every foot of real estate on Farnam street has advanced from $20 to $40, and the property along Isard street has advanced at a still greater ratio.

CURBING AND GUTTERING. In all for the past year, there were 40,079 lineal feet of curbing laid and 4,378 of guttering, or a little over 7 1/2 miles of each. The average cost of curbing was $1.10 per foot, and of guttering $1.00 per foot for a width of 24 feet, $2.39 for six feet width, and $2.93 for eight feet width. The cost of inspection of this work was 3 1/2 cents per foot. The gutter stones used are of the dimensions of paving cubes, and the curbstones are in length 36 inches, and in depth 24. The curb-stones are now mainly sandstone from the Colorado quarries. For gutters, the best material used is Sioux Falls granite. For the requirement of good drainage, experience has developed the fact that no grade across an intersecting street should be more than eighteen inches between curb and curb, or more than three inches. The old grades were created with a rise in some instances of eight feet, and no matter with what material such an intersection be paved, the result would be to upset any wagon traveling over it.

SEWERAGE. The total sewerage laid was 52,237 lineal feet at a cost of $175,296. This includes sewers of both systems and all appurtenances. The city now has a sewerage of 21,160 miles at a cost of $460,417.34. The sewers range in size from six inches to eight and a half feet. The engineer recommends that the gas company be not allowed to discharge its waste water and refuse into the city sewers. PAVING. The paving in the aggregate amounted to 35,213 square yards in street intersections at a cost of $110,643.10 to the city and 103,729 square yards in street districts costing $317,013.12. The inspection cost $1,371.39 making the total $429,827.61. The cost of asphaltum pavement on a concrete base was $2.98 and of Sioux Falls granite $2.98 to $4.44 per square yard. Colorado sandstone blocks from $2.87 to $3.49. In addition to the streets fourteen alley districts were paved aggregating 6,637 square yards at a cost inclusive of inspection of $27,039.60. SIDEWALKS. There were 34,464 lineal feet of plank sidewalks laid at a cost of $1,502.61 paid by special levy. This, however, does not represent more than one-half the curllay for this class of improvement as at least that much more has been built directly by property owners. Fully $50,000 has been invested in granolithic and other walks.

SUMMARY. The contract work of the year, as enumerated above, is as follows: Grading... $175,483.88 Curbing and guttering... 98,211.96 Street paving... 429,827.61 Sewers... 177,296.78 Sidewalks... 11,502.61 Alley paving... 27,039.60 Engineering... 15,000.00 Total... $922,210.51 Don't fail to read Motter's price list of groceries on 5th page of this issue. Town Lots in Denver Junction, Weld County, Colorado. Denver Junction is a new town of about 200 inhabitants, laid out in 1884, on the great trunk railway across the continent, at the junction of the Julesburg Branch, 197 miles from Denver. The town is on second bottom land of the Platte River, the finest location between Omaha and Denver, and is surrounded by the best-lying lands west of Kearney County. It is a healthy and beautiful place, altitude 3,600 feet. Denver Junction bids to become an important city, as the U. P. R. Co., are putting up many of their buildings here, while the B. & M. R. Co., are expected soon to connect at this place. The present chance for good investments in town lots will scarcely ever be equaled elsewhere. For sale by the lot or block in good terms by H. M.
