

THE DAILY BEE

COUNCIL BLUFFS.

MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 29.

OFFICE, NO. 12, PEARL STREET.

Delivered by carrier in any part of the city at twenty cents per week.

H. W. TILTON, Manager.

TELEPHONES: BUSINESS OFFICE, No. 43. NIGHT EDITOR, No. 23.

MINOR MENTION.

New spring goods at Reiter's. Do not fail to attend the supper given by the ladies of the Methodist church to-night.

Jailer Mullen is now in day charge of the city calaboose, and Jailer White goes on night duty.

Thomas Fay and James Henry were yesterday given the usual sobering off dose at the hands of the superior judge.

The Nebraska Telephone company has at last filed with the county recorder here its articles of incorporation, drawn up in 1882.

M. Keating, Samuel Ford and L. Kirecht have been appointed to appraise the stock of the late William Lacy.

The social given by the Knights of Labor last evening proved a happy success. There was music, vocal and instrumental, and dancing.

Woodruff to wed yesterday granted to James P. Astral and Miss Florence V. Woodruff, both of Atlantic; James Johnson and Miss Hanna Leggerloins, both of this city.

The ladies of the Methodist church will give a supper at Eiseaman's former store room, near the corner of Main and Broadway, to-night. Everybody invited. Supper will be served from 6 to 10 o'clock p. m.

Two tramps, who had been begging from house to house in the outskirts of the city, and threatening to kick in doors if refused something to eat, were collared by O'Brien yesterday, and will be given a chance to earn their board by working for the city.

It looks a little odd to see in the windows of a wholesale liquor house, posters announcing the temperance lectures given at the city hall, but it is not so odd as it seems. The lecturer will exchange the advertising courtesy and speak from the platform a good word for the quality of goods handled by the liquor house.

The county treasurer's office was well patronized yesterday, it being known as the last day for paying taxes, and penalties to attach on and after to-day. The room was given to the public, and the clerks accommodated very easily, and to lessen the rush and accommodate the public the treasurer decided not to attach the penalty to-day, but give a little grace. It is understood that all who pay their taxes before Saturday will be relieved from the penalty.

Colonel Long and Colonel Demaree, from Kentucky, have been occupying Dehany's hall in this city, and are the interest of the Good Templars. They are both earnest, interesting speakers, and while dealing strong words for cold water entertained the audience at the same time. It is rather a singular fact that while there have been a number of earnest citizens trying to put down a strong drink here, and in fact, the only one who is not in the city a single temperance organization, such as the Sons of Temperance, Good Templars, Temple of Honor or Red Ribbon club, outside of the churches there seems to be no organized effort to use moral suasion to try to induce them to stop drinking. The fight here has been mainly along the line of legal force, and directed mainly against the man who sells, and not against the man who buys. The presence of these two men here may lead to the organization of a lodge for the purpose of helping those who want to help themselves quit drinking.

Makepeace as a Spectator.

George Washington Makepeace, who sent such a figure as a well attorney at Dunlap, and who skipped out only to be brought back by an officer, has filed a unique petition before Judge Aylesworth, He claims that he is taken daily from the jail in Logan to the justice court in Dunlap, and he wants to be relieved of this extra travel backwards and forwards during his preliminary hearing. He evidently never won any prizes at spelling contests, as is evidenced by the originality of his spelling. "Shows," "warent," "embazonment," "alsow," "alhdges," are fair samples of the petition. He claims that he is "inosen" of the charges made against him, and that he has no "opertunity or privilage of comelling either." Judge Aylesworth concluded that there was nothing that he could legally do to help the poor fellow out, and the request for relief was necessarily denied.

The Denison Postoffice.

DENISON, March 30.—The Denison postoffice continues to be the theme of talk. The telegraphic reports, in speaking of the adverse report of Senator Wilson on the case of A. B. Keith, state that "J. Fred Myers was removed as an offensive partisan." How such mistakes could be made is not clear. It is well known here that Mr. Myers was not removed or suspended, but served out his term without fear or molestation. His term expired December 16, and Mr. Keith was appointed December 21—a week later. The senate has not as yet taken action on the case. A memorial asking for Keith's confirmation as postmaster has been presented, signed by about seventy of the leading business and professional men of both parties, and was forwarded a few days ago.

DISCOVERING A SHORTAGE.

A Lively Sensation Developing Among Some of the Municipal Officials.

A GAMBLER'S EXPERIENCE.

Changing in the Fire Department—Merry Marriage—A Bad Legal Spell—The Denison Postmaster's Office.

A Sensational Shortage.

The city auditor's office is about the last place to look for a sensation, for most of the work there is routine wrestling with long rows of figures and dusty accounts. Yesterday, however, a genuine sensation was discovered, it being no less than an alleged shortage. The office has changed hands as the result of the recent election, and with the change in officers there has come a change in the manner of keeping the books and accounts. New books have been prepared to simplify the methods of keeping the various accounts, and the work of transferring the old entries, together with keeping up the new business, has proved quite laborious, and extra clerical help has been employed. This extra work has been done with more or less risk of mistakes being made, but the work has been checked over to avoid any error, so that the apparent shortage is hardly to be explained on the ground of mistakes being made. The alleged shortage is said not to be in the old books at all, the accounts appearing there all right and correct. The shortage is in the new books, and it is said to be in the neighborhood of about a quarter of an inch, the auditor's new leg being thought to be about that much shorter than the other.

A Mammoth Frog.

He was one of the old-time gamblers of this city, a man who has probably made and lost as much by chance as any man in this section of the country. Everybody knows him, and when he began to talk about temperance they all drew up their chairs a little snugger and listened closely. "I used to drink pretty heavy. In fact I was about as big a drunkard as this town ever had, but there weren't many who knew it. I didn't know it myself. The fact was I didn't use to stagger around, but I kept loaded. I got into it little by little, and I thought I was a pretty temperate sort of a fellow, just because I didn't get any dizzy and go around painting the town. I remember one night I went to bed, and I never can forget that night—I woke up all of a sudden I was boarding at the hotel—and there light at the door of my room was the biggest frog I ever saw. You never saw such a looking frog. His head was as high as the door, and his mouth looked like the Mammoth cave. You know that sort of a white thing right under a frog's mouth. Well, sir, that looked as big as a circus tent, and the frog just sat there rolling his eyes about and looking at me till he was scared pretty near to death. It made me think of it reading about that fellow in the Bee yesterday seeing snakes. Well, the looks of that frog scared me so that with my eyes sticking out of my head, I jumped out of bed and pulled on my clothes, not letting my eyes off that frog the whole time. I sneaked by him, and got down into the hotel office, and I sat there where it was light, and smoked one strong cigar after another, and sat there plumb till morning. I just got to thinking, for as soon as I got down stairs I knew what the frog was, he had been keeping filled up too much. I was beginning to have them. I began to sort of figure up what I had been doing, and do you believe it, boys, I found out that I had been taking for a year and twenty to thirty drinks a day right along, and didn't dream that I was so big a drunkard till that frog sort of shook me up. I just made up my mind that I wouldn't touch another drop for a year. I was bound to kill off any more frogs. I stuck to it, but I tell you it took lots of sand. I used to always before that get one or two cocktails for my eyes open in the morning before breakfast, and after seeing that frog I used to go into the saloons and see the fellows getting their morning drinks, and I would just sit down and watch them and curse myself. I used to try myself and punish myself that way. I was bound to see if I hadn't got will enough to smell the stuff, and yet let it alone. I haven't had a drop since then. That frog settled the business for me."

Merrily Mated.

Last evening there was a happy wedding at the residence of Mr. Walter Young, corner of Seventh and Mynder street. The happy man was Fred E. Pearl of Omaha, and the bride Miss Annie B. Tompion of this city, sister of Chief Tompion of the fire department. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Mackey. The young couple will make their home in Omaha, where Mr. Pearl occupies a position with one of the large stock firms. Among the relatives in attendance at the wedding was the bride's father, Mr. J. M. Tompion, who has been spending the winter at Nebraska City; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Campbell of Missouri Valley; Mrs. Campbell being a sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cooper of Omaha.

Changing the Fire Lads.

There have been some important changes in the fire department, among them the appointment of Neil Voorhis as foreman of Rescue, who is also placed in charge of the steamer in that house. It is the intention to have this steamer cleaned up, put in shape and kept in shape for use in case an emergency should arise by which the house would not answer the needs. R. Van De Bogart has been named foreman of No. 1 and Marion Stevens has been made pipeman of No. 1. Other lesser changes are to be made which will be duly reported to the council at its next meeting.

Death of Mrs. Lidget.

Mrs. Ida Lidget, wife of Joseph Lidget, died at her home in Hardin township, March 27, at 6:20 p. m., after suffering for two years of that most dread disease, consumption. During the day previous to her death Mrs. L. was apparently much better, and after supper, while reclining in her easy chair, engaged in conversation with her family, was suddenly seized with a severe pain, at the same time blood oozing from her mouth. Speaking to her husband, who by this time was at her side and being her into his arms, she died in a few minutes. She leaves one child, aged 2 years, who for the past six weeks has also been very sick with spinal disease, which leaves him in a helpless condition by losing the use of both legs. The child, with the bereaved husband and relatives, has the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community at the loss of so dear and kind a neighbor as well as a true wife and mother.

Mrs. Lidget was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson. She was born at Ash Grove, Iriquois county, Ill., October 12, 1859. In 1883 she came to Council Bluffs, residing with her father, Mr. J. E. Thompson, until 1885, when she was married to Joseph Lidget of Hardin township, where she has since resided. During her short stay in this city, Mrs. L. had won a large circle of friends, and was beloved by all who knew her.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. McCreary of Council Bluffs, and the remains were removed to the Perry cemetery for interment.

The Root of the Evil.

To thoroughly cure scrofula it is necessary to strike directly at the root of the evil. This is exactly what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, by acting upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing it of all impurities, and leaving not even a taint of scrofula in the vital fluid. Thousands who have been cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, testify to its wonderful blood-purifying qualities. Sold by all druggists.

The Modern Curse of Hurry.

In his recent speech at the Mansion house Mr. Crockett said: "We are on our railroads; we hurry through our telegrams. What is the result of hurrying on the railway? We never see the beauties of the scenery through which we pass, and so with hurried reading, we do not see the beauties of the literature we use. And what is the next result? It is that, as you do not appreciate those beauties, the beauties are no longer created for you, they suffer because you read too fast to enjoy the style, and beautiful writing is becoming more and more rare. Some men there are, who, in reaction against the slovenliness of the writing of the present day, are stylists and literary aesthetes; but that again is rather an exaggeration. Speaking generally, first-class style in literature is being weakened, and seriously weakened, by the extraordinary price at which everybody is anxious to read."

Colonel Hays the Author of "Dixie."

Louisville Post: Col. Wm. S. Hays, in conversation last night, declared that he was the original author of "Dixie." "The words I wrote as a Confederate war ballad during the early part of the war. The music I fitted to them was a variation on a melody for an organ, and was current in my youth beginning: 'If I had a donkey what wouldn't go.' I was working then in a printing office, and the music I engraved myself in the fourth floor of the building where the New York store now stands. The city was then in the hands of the federals, and the plates and words had to be let out. I haven't heard of any other lines into the confederacy. The song became immediately popular in the army, and hence its widespread notoriety."

New Use for Rag Carpets.

Hartford Post: The old-fashioned idea of making rag carpets is quite common about here, but with a different result, so to speak. "Augustus," said she, as she leaned perceptibly in his direction, "have you any old neckties that you are not using?" "Angeline, my dearest," will you let me draw it out a little longer?" "Oh, I'm going to make a silk rag carpet for a portiere, you know. It will be just lovely. Lovely!" Yes, because you can draw it out as long as you like, and it will be just as good as new.

No such wreck has been reported at Union Pacific headquarters.
