

THE WEEK IN THE WEST.

Excitement in the East Has Very Little Effect Upon Western Business.

A CLOSE MONEY MARKET.

Trading Brisk in Grain and Produce Circles—A Falling Off in Packing Operations at Chicago—Good Export Demand.

Transactions of the Past Week.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 18.—(Special Telegram to the Bee.)—(Special Telegram to the Bee.)—Notwithstanding the general unsettled feeling in financial and commercial circles throughout the west and far west, nothing very unusual or important has been developed in business circles here. The stringency of the money market in the east, accompanied by a marked decline in railroad shares and securities, has attracted considerable attention, and has made bankers and present institutions and lenders of money a little more conservative in their views, and furnishing a pretext for nervous speculators to dispose of a portion of their holdings, there was no very marked effect observable. A good demand for money prevailed throughout the week, and the market was firm. Bankers scrutinized paper very closely, and in most cases limited their favors to their regular customers. Speculators were moderate borrowers, and shippers of produce and grain asked for some favors. A rather good demand for money prevailed from parties at interest points, but bankers at present are reluctant to accept any outside paper, as they can find ample employment for all their funds at present. Commission merchants are sending some currency to their customers, but chiefly in a small way. Rates of interest are firm at six per cent, and good money can be obtained at the outside figure. On the street rates are firm at 8 per cent, except on gilt-edged securities. Eastern exchange was in good supply and only moderate demand, consequently the market ruled flat. Sales were made between banks at 60-65 cents discount on $100. Considerable currency was ordered from the east. Foreign exchange was in abundant supply in the eastern markets. Owing to the large number of bills drawn against shipment of cotton, oil, grain, provisions and stocks, a marked decline was submitted to shippers' sixty days documentary bills selling down to 60-65, the lowest since the year. It is understood that about $5,000,000 in gold has been engaged in Europe for shipment to America. Speculation in railroad stocks and securities, oil and cotton in eastern markets was unusually active and prices declined rapidly. Mining stocks on the Pacific coast also suffered a moderate reduction in prices. In grain and produce circles trading was brisk, and prices favored the buying interest, though the decline was not marked. Provisions showed considerable strength. The receipts of grain were moderately large and shipments moderate and moderate. Exports of grain and provisions from the seaboard were quite large and packing in the west is progressing favorably. In wheat a rather nervous feeling has existed during the past week and much of the advance of last week was lost. Trading was fairly active, while at times the market was strong, at others it was decidedly weak, with rather more disposition on the part of operators to realize, which accounted for the decline. The favorable feature of the market was the strength existing in the futures contracts, which, in spite of a decline in the American markets, were quoted firm with an advancing tendency in prices. A good export demand has existed, and the clearing has continued up to the recent advance. These were the principal factors of strength, and the belief that the important markets of the United Kingdom and the continent will soon diminish and that these countries will continue to be largely self-sufficient in wheat helped to give confidence to holders, who eventually anticipate higher prices. But in the meantime the market has been free, stocks are accumulating and carrying charges are widening, and this to some extent operates against the market. As to the latter circumstance, the market is not so strong as it was during the past week. The New York financial circles and the panicky feeling which was displayed in the market here, and to this was due largely the decline which occurred in wheat. The highest prices of the week were obtained on the 12th of the month. Since then a decline of 2 1/2 cents occurred, but recovered again rather sharply. The water was rather low, and the price lower than last Friday. In the corn market but little of interest was developed. Speculative trading has been of a limited character and quiet. Outside of the market was light, in fact, fluctuations have been too small to attract attention. Liverpool prices quoted a firm market, but the market here has been fair and a pretty good shipping demand has existed for lower grades, but the market's sympathy was with the higher grades, and wheat and prices declined a trifle and closed about 1/2 cent lower than last week. There was more activity in the market, which assisted the weakness somewhat. In previous weeks just closed has witnessed considerable activity in the market for hog products, attended with a steady advance, particularly in prices. In a general way the market exhibited considerable strength, and for all leading articles a material advance in prices has been established. The general surroundings of trade were somewhat encouraging to the dealer and the industry ordered to make as much of the situation as possible. While the quality of hogs exhibited marked improvement, the receipts have been disappointingly small, and below the general calculations, and this has been one of the main supports of the market, especially in the way of decreasing the offerings from the packing interest. The falling off in the packing operations at this point has been marked, more so than at any other packing centers in the west. The labor troubles at the opening of the season caused large losses to shippers of hogs, and the supply in other channels, from the effects of which the Chicago market has not fully recovered. While packing here shows a marked decrease, the aggregate returns of the west are not much below those of last season to date, indicating that the new packing institutions in Omaha and other points are beginning to supply the supply of the hogs which has heretofore sought the Chicago market. The shorts have exhibited a marked disposition to sell rather free purchases, especially of near deliveries, but at the same time quite liberal sales were made for longer deliveries, particularly May. This leads to the impression that some operators are calculating upon a material advance in prices during the latter part of the packing season and a corresponding increase in the stocks. Quite a large business was done in transferring contracts ahead, and monthly carrying charges have been widened to some extent, partially due to the closeness of the money market, ranging at the close at 7 1/2-8 on mess pork, 7 1/2-8 on lard and 7 1/2-8 on short rib sides. The shipping demand was only moderately active, and the market for special articles. Sellers were firm in their views, and in many cases held their products above the views of buyers. The receipts of all kinds of products were quite liberal and the shipments well maintained. All depending markets, both home and foreign, have exhibited a little stronger tone, but the recent advance in prices has made merchants a little more conservative in their views, especially as they have had a considerable amount of contracts for at lower figures than are now current.

SATURDAY STOCKS.

Transactions Yesterday in the New York Money Market.

New York, Dec. 18.—(Special Telegram to the Bee.)—The stock market opened steady and ruled very dull until noon, at which time only 100,000 shares had been traded in. The bank statement showed another loss in the reserve. This fact, however, attracted but little attention, as the decrease amounted to only $7,200. The rate for money was on a stiff 7 to 8 per cent basis. The belief, however, was that the large shipment of gold to his country, coupled with the heavy interest disbursement at the end of the year, would prevent any very radical manipulation of the money market in favor of the bears. The money market was relieved by a sharp upward about noon, and it became apparent that the bulls had not lost their grip. Hoopland Valley was lifted 2 per cent, and New England was put up 3/8 on an advance of 9 per cent from the lowest point touched on Wednesday. Reading was heavily traded in around 90, but failed to respond to any marked degree to the buoyancy of the rest of the list. London figured as a buyer of stock, but it was feared that the recent advance in the Bank of England rate of discount would ultimately cause some selling of American securities, and conservative houses were for that reason advising caution in buying stocks at present. During the last hour the market rallied sharply, the Vanderbilt coal stocks and New England making conspicuous gains. St. Paul, however, hung heavily between 90 and 91, and the bears noted that it had exhibited less rallying power after that than anything else on the list. Railroad earnings were generally favorable for the second week of December. Wabash increased $1.00, St. Louis and San Francisco $2.00, and Northwestern was expected to increase fully $1.00. Trading closed strong and firm, but the closing rally being the contrary, rather weak. The list closed strong and firm, 1/2 per cent higher than the opening, and sales about three hundred thousand shares.

A Rash Speculator Skips Out.

New York, Dec. 18.—(Special Telegram to the Bee.)—The talk of Wall Street is the reported disappearance of young Maurice Wormser, after considerable losses in stock speculation. The young man is the son of Simon Wormser, the head of one of the largest brokerage firms in the street. They were identified with the rapid advance in trading, which occurred a few weeks ago, and are well known in the stock markets of London and Berlin and on the Paris bourse as well as in New York, as large and successful operators. Young Wormser has been associated with his father in the business, but has always had the reputation of being at least a good deal more daring a speculator than he allowed his elders to suspect. It seems that during the recent speculative speculation, when that stock market was in the throes of the boom from forty to fifty-three, the son of the house secretly indulged his speculative tendencies without the "governor's" knowledge. It is said that he had nearly half a million dollars, and was the principal cause of the failure of Mark & Co., his brokers. Fearing his high and dangerous the young man inventively fled.

Terrible Double Tragedy.

ELMHURST, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Details of a double tragedy at Penn Yan caused a great sensation this morning, one of the principals being Dr. M. Hamilton, station agent of the Syracuse, Geneva & Corning railroad at Penn Yan. Hamilton is thirty-three years of age and has an estimable wife and a bright young daughter. The family moved in the best society there. Hamilton went to Penn Yan Thursday night and occupied the same room with his daughter, Marie Adolman. Before retiring each took a dose of morphine with suicidal intent and slept for twenty-four hours. Suspicion being aroused by Hamilton's absence from home, the patients which he occupied were broken open. This aroused Hamilton from his stupor, whereupon he rushed to his wife's room, where he found her dead and sent a bullet into his own head. The unfortunate woman was killed, but Hamilton is still alive. His parents are prominent residents of Auburn, N. Y.

Walking on the Water.

New York, Dec. 18.—(Special Telegram to the Bee.)—Alphonso King, the water walker, who attempted to walk across the Niagara river last Saturday, yesterday attempted to walk on the water from Bartholdi statue to Brooklyn bridge. Harry Webb, a well known sportsman and two friends, were in a skiff accompanying him. King, dressed in an ordinary suit, put on his shoes, which were only two inches long, eight inches wide and nine inches high, and started without a balance. The water was rather low, and he waded and he had great difficulty in keeping his balance. His progress was very slow, and when approaching the turn into the battery the water was disturbed by the boat, and he suffered from the cold. Finally no headway was made and King gave up. King says in his report that he would not have attempted to walk on the water one hour and five minutes.

The Yankton Agency Indians.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Agent John F. Kinney, of the Yankton Indian agency, had a conference today with General Atkins, of the Indian office, upon the needs of the Indians under his charge. He asks for permission to purchase for the Indians 100 broad horses now in course of sale. His request will be granted. Agent Kinney reports that the acreage under cultivation this year is largely increased over last year, and that the corn, oats and wheat crop is fully 10 per cent better than last year. He says the Indians are making rapid progress in the science of farming, are becoming more settled in their habits, and are looking with increasing favor upon the proposition to give them the lands in severalty.

MCCORMICK—MAHONEY.

An Interesting Game Contest—Other Sporting Notes.

The Knights of Labor hall at South Omaha was the scene of a varied and in many respects excellent exhibition of the many art last night. The entertainment was arranged on short notice but was equal to a great many that have been given heretofore with more pomp and ceremony. A number of local sports were pressed into service and furnished amusement for the several hundred spectators. There was a series of matches between Sexton and Labey, Boyle and O'Neil, Hesse and Hines, and Smith and Crowley. Of these the most interesting was that between Hesse and Hartney, both of whom are nifty boxers. They were well matched and anything else on the list. The principal event of the evening however, was a glove fight between James Mahoney and Mahoney, a South Omaha blacksmith. Since McCormick exploit in breaking the capacities of Al Marx, he has rather lately been the local public notice. Mahoney, however, has been challenging everybody for some time, and finally succeeded in arranging a match with McCormick. As both men have quite a following in South Omaha, where McCormick has been making his home, their match has excited much interest. The men appeared in the ring last night at a few minutes past 9 o'clock. McCormick was dressed in a blue suit, and Mahoney wore a new grey suit. Both were in excellent condition and a pretty match was promised. Frank Siler was chosen referee. Arthur Mahoney, McCormick and Al Williams backed McCormick. When time was called both men sprang to the front of the ring, and McCormick, who Mahoney led for an opener and was caught by McCormick. The men then clinched and were separated by the referee. After some cautious sparring McCormick made a rush at his antagonist and, succeeding in breaking down his guards, delivered a heavy right hand blow to the forehead, which clinched. While the referee was separating the men time was called. Mahoney at once dropped his guard and the story of the corner when McCormick struck him twice fouling him. The referee promptly recognized the foul and declared the contest. Mahoney's favor. It is very probable that another meeting will be arranged between the men.

The defendant now claims an ownership of fourteen feet on the north side of the street, thus reducing the street at that point to a width of sixty-six feet. The plaintiff asks that the deed may be changed to conform with true equitable intention of the parties to the sale and suit.
