Joined the Aristocracy.
[Special to the Bee.]
LORDS, March 8.—[New York Herald Cable—Special to the Bee.]—Miss Ellen Stager, daughter of the late General Anson Stager, who is well known through his war record and his connection, a few years ago, with the Western Union, this afternoon entered the ranks of the British aristocracy at St. George's, Hanover Square, where she became the wife of the inequitable but high-born Lord Arthur Butler, brother of the Marquis of Ormonde. The noble bridegroom takes his name from the fact that the first of the family was, in A. D. 1177, appointed by the king as chief butler of Ireland, a title which is still held by the descendants. Inasmuch as Lord Ormonde has no son the bridegroom is heir presumptive to the title, and the former New York belle is a possible marchioness. The bride wore a dress of white silk, with a full, plain train. The front and panels of the waist were made of pearl-embroidered tulle. The tulle veil was surmounted by a wreath of orange blossoms and secured to the train by diamond stars. She stood at the altar surrounded by five girlish bridesmaids, the noble nieces of the bridegroom. The ceremony was performed by the bridegroom's father, the Rev. Lord Theobald Butler. Sir Simon Lockhart, bart, a brother officer of the bridegroom in the First Life Guards, was the best man. There was an enormous crowd of guests around the church. Lord Arthur Butler being connected by marriage with the Duke of Westminster, whose daughter is Lady Ormonde, and with the Posets, Molesworths, and many other noble families. Of course the pease was largely represented. There was a breakfast at the house of the widowed Viscountess Maidstone, at No. 17 Queen street, Mayfair. Lady Maidstone is a great friend of the Butlers. Lord and Lady Arthur Butler will pass the honeymoon in Buckinghamshire, not far from London, at the seat of Lord Chesham, who married another of the Duke of Westminster's daughters.

LARGE REPUBLICAN GAINS.

Iowa's City Elections Show Heavy Losses by the Democrats.

A REVIEW OF THE RESULT.

The Coroner's Inquest on the Body of Constable Logan Develops Some Strange Facts—Other Iowa News.

The Municipal Elections.
DES MOINES, Ia., March 8.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The result of the municipal elections yesterday show general republican victories in the state and in some localities very marked republican victories. Two reasons are ascribed for this. The first is the general dissatisfaction with the work of the democratic administration, now that it has finished half of its term, and more particularly the dissatisfaction on account of the democratic party's course in congress and the president's hostility to union soldiers. The old soldier element is very strong in Iowa and takes an active hand in all politics. The president's vetoes of pension bills and the arrangement in power of the copperheads and ex-rebels have stirred up the old soldiers to very active efforts for the success of the republican party, even in the municipal elections, whereas ordinarily comparative little partisan interest is taken in city elections. This year republicans pretty generally seemed to think it was time to go on record and so have taken a very earnest part. They feel that the administration has been on trial for work done during the last year, and that a good chance for republican Iowa, at least, to bring in a verdict. The other fact that contributed to republican success quite largely was the operation of the new registration law. It requires every man who expects to vote to be registered some days in advance, and in recording he is subjected to an investigation that is very thorough and calculated to prevent fraud. This registration law undoubtedly cost the democrats several thousand votes by the shining off of the unregistered, the non-residents and the general hangers-on who usually are found in the ranks of the democratic party, and to that extent benefited the republican party and was of a corresponding disadvantage to the democrats.

In this city the republicans made unexpected gains. The only vacancies to be filled were in the board of aldermen, the republicans electing five out of six, carrying some wards with larger majorities than ever before. The republicans also elected the whole of a majority of the candidates in the following cities: Cedar Rapids, Muscatine, Fairfield, where they elected their entire ticket for the first time; Iowa City, where they elected a republican mayor for the first time in many years; Stuart, where they secured entire control of the city for the first time in three years; Ottumwa, where very substantial gains were made; Toledo, McGregor, Belle Plaine, Grinnell, Carson, Fort Dodge, Mount Pleasant, Green and Greengield. The democrats were successful in Davenport, Dubuque and partially so in Council Bluffs, though losing the whole of the city there on a non-partisan ticket; also in Sioux City, Burlington, Fort Madison, Maquoketa and LeMars. In the following cities the elections were non-partisan or involved local issues to the exclusion of general politics: Clinton, Marshalltown, Perry, Mason City, Atlantic and Humboldt. In latter place the issue of whether the city should license billiard rooms or not, the result being in favor of billiards. In Marshalltown the labor candidate for mayor was elected.

The Killing of Logan.
DES MOINES, Ia., March 8.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The killing of Constable Logan last night while he was making an arrest in the wholesale drug store of Hurlbut, Hess & Co., has been the subject of excited comment all day. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the coroner's jury began its inquest, and with closed doors till 6 o'clock. The only witnesses examined were the employees of the store where Logan was killed and the policeman who was called in after the tragedy. The inquest was held in the police court, and Logan was shot twice, one ball entering from the front and one from the rear, apparently in that order. The first shot was fired as he turned to leave the room and was shot from behind by some person connected with the store who had been waiting for Logan to be present. Still more important was the testimony of the first policeman who saw Logan fired. He testified that he saw Logan fired from the store in his hand, his finger on the trigger, but not a single chamber empty, thus giving strong evidence that Logan was shot from behind. He was killed by the shot from behind by some person connected with the store who had been waiting for Logan to be present. The water on the ice is rising. The transfer boat and ferries are getting ready for the break-up, provisions being taken to the Nebraska side and trade in that direction is cut off. The streams emptying into the Missouri in this section are running high, and there is great danger here that all will be broken up and the Missouri river town connected the sanitary sewer will be badly flooded. The reason given for this is that the pumping station has not been put in.

A SESSION IN THE AUTUMN.

The Fifth Congress Likely to Be Called Together in September.

VARIOUS REASONS ASSIGNED.

The President Considering Names For the Inter-State Commerce Commission—A Scramble For Senate Seats.

A September Session Probable.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—It is generally conceded in official and congressional circles that there will be an extra session of the Fifty-first Congress, probably in September. The effect of this is heard everywhere by your correspondent. The experience of the past two winters in congress has shown very clearly that the interests of the country have become thoroughly too vast and complicated to be thoroughly looked after and kept within the limits afforded by the regular session. Much of the first of last session was usually devoted for the promulgation of business for the year or short session and business thus deferred from one year to another. In many cases business of the most urgent importance is dumped into the last week or ten days of congress to be but half done, or badly done, or not done at all. Enough unfinished work is left over by its predecessor to engage the attention of the Fifty-first congress till the 1st of August. There are various measures that failed to become laws, to postpone which for another year is grossly unjust to many citizens and seriously damaging to the interests of the government.

The general deficiency bill is one of them, the river and harbor bill, and certain expenditures under it, another. Everything which the late conference left in a crude and incomplete condition could be disposed of, it is argued, by an extra session. Much legislation preliminary to the regular meeting in December could be gotten into shape for intelligent and early consideration. The new members, and the remainder of those, could in the meantime be made conversant with the nature of their duties and derive benefit from a four months' preparatory discipline. Great pressure will be made upon the president to call the Fifty-first congress together in the latter part of September.

It is thought most assuredly that there ought to be an extra session, said Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, to-night in a talk with your correspondent. "Things never have been left so botched and muddled as they were by this last congress. The failure of the river and harbor bill has called up in arms the people in all these sections of the country which were affected by the measure proposed. The failure of the deficiency bill, which cannot fairly be charged to the president, will only be felt in certain quarters, but it is a large thing, you know, to have $3,000,000 locked up in the treasury, and the president ought to have been expanded and was expected in the country. As a matter of fact, there are two or three of the other appropriations bills which should have been passed, containing as they did jobs put in at the close of the session. However, I have no objection to an extra session, and I am sure several of the democratic leaders to whom I talked just before congress adjourned put no stock in the rumors of an extra session which were current at the time. The president is to be called in, it is doubtful whether it would do anything to effect the purpose for which it is called, and it is not probable that a deficiency bill would not perhaps in itself be sufficient to necessitate the calling together of the Fifty-first congress, but it is another matter to call together a number of matters which tend to make one very desirable."
