The case of the state against Jonathan Jones, for murder, is set for trial for tomorrow. This is the fourth time the case has been tried here, and it has been reviewed by the jury on three occasions. David Roberts was killed at Loveland, Ia., nine years ago, and still the responsibility of the case is unsettled.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Walters sustained a sad bereavement Monday afternoon in the death of their little son, Jesse, aged two years and nine months. He was seriously ill but two hours, and his sudden death is a severe blow to the afflicted parents. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence at 121 Grace street.

The case of the parties who received contributions from Mrs. B. M. Morgan, and then failed to turn over the money to her, is far from being settled. The police are now ascertaining just how much was collected, after which the solicitors will be allowed to inform the public what disposition they make of the money. It is very evident that there has been crooked work on the part of someone.

A survey of Mrs. Amy's land on Bryant street was made yesterday by David Tostevin from an old plat made by him eighteen years ago. The result was quite different from what was expected by his brother, the city engineer. Yesterday's survey places the corner of the city land where Mrs. Amy claimed it should be, but the city will not have it so. The end is not yet.

Did you attend H. Friedman's opening? If not, you missed one of the prettiest displays of beautiful things that delight the ladies' hearts. The windows were especially attractive. The east one contained, and does yet, worsted work and hosiery of every conceivable shade, making a perfect kaleidoscope of colors. The west one contains hats and caps, or ladies, misses and children, and are of all the latest fashions and patterns. The store itself is beautifully arranged, and forms a study for a painter. You should see it to-day, before it is badly broken up by sales.

Last evening the Indian in front of the Manhattan was moved from its usual position. It was at first thought he was off on "a tear," but his usual sober, quiet habits disputed this theory. After a long search he was discovered standing in mute admiration before Eisenman's lady with a sort of meek, white-wife expression upon his face. He was finally induced to return to his old quarters by the promise of a new overcoat. Verily the pride of wax melteth the heart of wood, and he isn't the only bachelor in the city that feels that way either.

Money to loan. Cooper & Judson.

Strength of Broadway Bridge. Mr. F. B. Moore gives the following facts, which are of interest at this time, showing the comparative strength of the old Union Pacific bridge and the new one being constructed by the Omaha & Council Bluffs Bridge company. The cylinder piers of the old bridge each contain 100,000 square feet. The new ones contain 420,000 square feet at the base of the pier. The deep water caissons in the center of the bridge—each contain 450,000 square feet, being six and one-half times greater than the caissons in the old bridge in the same place. Thus it would seem that the new bridge is strong enough and sufficiently permanent to resist any pressure that may be brought against it, as well as bear any weight it may be necessary for it to carry.

Personals. Mrs. F. E. Haynes, of Chicago, and George McFarland and wife, of Hastings, Neb., arrived in this city yesterday morning to attend the Palace-Huntington wedding, which occurs this evening.

Cupid in Church. EVANS-MARKEL.

Another wedding of social importance and interest occurred yesterday afternoon at St. Paul's church, the hour of the ceremony being 5 o'clock. The church was beautifully adorned with flowers and plants. Three tall green arches were gracefully trimmed, and below the center one were two intertwined rings. The chancel bore the appearance of a sumptuous, fairy bower. Mr. Gratian, the organist, caused low, sweet music to pervade the church while the invited friends were gathering. There were many, and before the hour for the ceremony was reached nearly every seat was taken.

Promptly as the bell was striking the hour the center doors were thrown open, the low music burst into the louder measures of the wedding march and the bridal party proceeded up the aisle. The ushers were Charles Haas, W. F. Sapp, jr., E. E. Hart and William Sherman, in full dress suits. The bridesmaids were Miss Nellie Hatcher and Miss May Morgan, of Kearney, Neb., who marched up the aisle together, both dressed in cream, with light blue slippers, sashes and mits of the same color. Then the other two bridesmaids, Miss Bell Hatcher and Miss Anna Bowman, also with cream colored dresses, their slippers, sashes and mits being pink. The bridesmaids all wore roses in their hands. Then came the bride, Miss Anna Merkel, and her sister, Miss Barbara Merkel. The bride wore a heavy cream Fall Francisca, en train, the dress trimmed with sea pearls. A full veil of white tulle was worn, and the bride carried white roses in her hand. Her sister was dressed in cream. It seemed most befitting that these two sisters, who have so long blended their voices so sweetly in song, should thus be together.

The bridegroom, Mr. Frank H. Evans, with his friend, Dr. George Brown, were waiting in the chancel, with Rev. T. J. Mackey, the officiating clergyman. The ceremony was very impressive, and the low music of the organ throughout, added to its beauty. The newly wedded ones on leaving the church made their preparations for departing on last evening's train for Chicago, and after remaining there a few days they will proceed on an eastern trip, expecting to be absent about a month. On their return they will make their home at the residence of the young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Evans, on Sixth avenue, where they will remain this winter. Mr. and Mrs. Evans intending to be in California until spring. Their young couple will in the spring occupy their own new residence.

Few young couples start upon their matrimonial life with brighter prospects, or more real friends. The happy man is active in business, and a popular in social circles. His bride has won her way into public favor largely by her voice, she being one of the sweetest singers in the west. Her many womanly qualities are worthy of the possessor of so rare a gift of song.

The Police Doings.

The usual amount of business was transacted at the police court yesterday morning. Homer Smith, Isaac Soules and Andrew Erickson were discharged. They wanted work, and were put in the way of earning their livelihood. John Cody was fined $5.10 for a drunk. George Tate was discharged. As near as could be learned he was arrested because three strangers were trying to rob him. He came across the river on the 9:30 run and was coming up Broadway, after drinking rather freely, when he was joined by the three men. Officers Stevens and Covalt saw what was up and attempted to arrest the quartet. The three men, however, drew their pistols, and Covalt was about to arrest the remaining pair when one of them pulled a revolver, and keeping the officer covered, backed out of range and quickly skipped out of sight with his companion. Stevens turned his prisoner over to John Bates, a private citizen, and went to the assistance of Covalt, but a long search failed to discover the men. In the meantime Bates had proceeded to the city jail with his charge, but just as he reached the door the remaining one of the trio showed a gun under his nose, and after a very brief conversation vanished. Tate was lodged behind the bars during the night and discharged in the morning as stated.

Capturing a Rink. A pleasant event occurred last evening at the home of Anton Rink on Main street. This gentleman has been the efficient secretary of the Maencheror, a popular society of this city, ever since its organization, and as a token of esteem for his valuable services, the members of the society presented him with an elegant gold-headed cane, on which was inscribed in German, "Council Bluffs Maencheror, to its secretary, A. Rink, on his twenty-fifth birthday, October 11, 1887." The evening was pleasantly passed with refreshments and songs. The Maencheror numbers about one hundred of the best German citizens.

Looks Crooked. The evidence against the men, Wilsey, Monroe and Turner, keeps accumulating. Upon raising a window, yesterday morning at the residence of Mrs. Ballard, a part of a knife blade was found, the blade having evidently been slipped under the sash and broken in the attempt to force an entrance. Chief Mullen took the broken piece to the police station where it was found to exactly fit a broken knife taken from one of the prisoners.

THE HAWKEYE EVICTIONS. Attorney General Garland's Attention Called to the Matter. FEDERAL PROTECTION ASKED. Commissioner Oberly Comes Out With Another Civil Service Order—A Temptation to Counterfeiters—National News.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The reported evictions of settlers from the unearned land grants of the St. Paul & Sioux City railroad has been brought to the attention of Attorney General Garland by States Attorney General Baker, of Iowa, in a letter in which he appeals for federal assistance in protecting the settlers until the question of their right to the lands held by them can be determined by the courts. The attorney general referred the letter to the secretary of the interior for such suggestions as he may deem proper under the circumstances. The attorney general, speaking of the matter to-day, said it was brought to his notice about a year ago, but was not then in such shape as called for action on the part of the government.

Whether it is now in an open question which can best be determined by the records of the interior department as to the title to the lands in dispute and the methods employed by one set of claimants to dispossess another set in advance of a judicial settlement of the questions at issue. The newspaper statement that the attorney general refused to stop the proceedings in the state courts was incorrect, as shown on his face, as he had no jurisdiction whatever over state courts.

A Temptation to Counterfeiters. WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—[Special Telegram to the Bee].—There is a decided antagonism among the bankers of Washington towards the new method now in vogue in the bureau of engraving and printing in printing the reverse side of the silver certificates. When Mr. Graves was installed into office as chief of the bureau there were seven machines for printing from plates in operation in the office. Now there are eighteen, and three more are soon to be added. It is claimed that no machine has yet been invented which will take the place of the human hand in distributing the ink over an engraved plate, and the remaining ones it is impossible to get good results with any other color than green. For this reason only the green side of the silver certificates are printed with the machine. The ink, it is said, is inferior to that used when hand printing is done. The silver certificates printed on the machines are much less durable than those printed by hand, and the ink will easily run off when the bills are in the least moist. Mr. Brooks, chief of the secret service division of the treasury, said to-day that the United States is falling to the rear place in the quality of the notes which it issues. He is opposed to the printing machines as a means of increasing the production of counterfeiters will increase in the use of these machines. It is thought that a decided effort will be made this winter to induce congress to prohibit their further use in the bureau. It is said that the government pays the inventor $1 for each thousand impressions made with the machine. If this is true there can be no great amount of economy in their use, as the number of hand printers displaced by each is only four.

Captain Norton's Aspirations. WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—[Special Telegram to the Bee].—New England is not to be deprived the contract of defending the American cup without a contest. The British yachtsmen conclude to try once more to carry it across the Atlantic. Captain Norton, of this city, who is the inventor of the Norton lifeboat, has made up his mind that the principles which give his boats their buoyancy can be used to excellent advantage in building a yacht of sufficient size to entitle her to compete for the honor of defending the American cup. He is now preparing plans for a vessel which he proposes to finish in time to enter the races next year. At his boat yard in Alexandria Captain Norton is finishing the first lifeboat for the navy department. The principle upon which he bases his new scheme is that of a vessel built upon his plan require no ballast and yet they sit so firmly upon the water that it is almost impossible to upset them. This is attained by the use of a compressed air which is supplied through the bottom of the boat by the movement of the water. The action of the waves upon the sides of the boat causes the air to change its position and the water which serves as the compressive force is correspondingly changed. Captain Norton has one medium-sized yacht now upon the stocks which is being fitted out with the self ballasting principle and he says that he proposes to cross the ocean in her with his family as soon as the weather is favorable. Concerning the racer which he proposes to build he will say very little as yet. He prefers to get his plans perfected, before giving out any of the details for publication.
