A Whisky Robbery.

Dan Clancy, an ex-hack driver of this city, now residing in the country a few miles from here, appeared at the police station and told a story of assault and robbery of which he claimed to be the victim. He said that he was in "The Hole-in-the-Wall" on lower Broadway, kept by John Green, on Saturday evening, when some one told him to gaze at something above his head. He did so, and was immediately dealt a terrific blow on the head, falling him to the floor.

His assailant jumped upon him and proceeded to take the money he had in his pockets, getting about $8 in money. He swore out a warrant for the robbers, for there were two of them, and during the afternoon two men were arrested and taken to the station. Clancy said they were not the right ones and they were released. He said that he was rather full at the time, and depended largely on a boon companion to relate the facts in the case. Stories of having a check for $160 on his person, and of the like nature, convinced the police that he must be drawing largely on his imagination for his sensational narration. Clancy is said to have got rather in the habit of getting robbed every time he visits the Bluffs. His imagination seems to be quickened by the use of the ardent.

According to the statement of others he has claimed to be robbed some time between Saturday night and Monday morning.

Clubs as Tramps.

The "hurry-up wagon" rolled up to the police station yesterday afternoon with a load of brass buttons, blue coats, bruised heads and sorry looking humanity. A telephone call from Bluffs stated that a fight was in progress at Price Gibson's place, and after a hasty trip the wagon was returning with the "coppers" and the peace disturbers. The pugilists were booked as Tom Pardo and Albert Rodgers. Pardo was well filled with liquid exuberance, and was unable to give an intelligent version of the affair, but Rodgers stated that he was playing cards with Pardo, and the latter became angry because he was beaten. When he was not expecting it Rodgers received a "red-hot eye opener," and, being unwilling to sit and be pounded, he called for a new deal, drew three trumps, and was "seeing" his opponent in good shape, when the police appeared and took a hand in the game. One of the "red-hot eye openers" were quickly gathered in and lodged behind the bars, charged with disturbing the peace. Pardo was also charged with drunkenness. Business will be good in the police court this morning and Squire Schurz will levy assessments according to the old standard of rates and prices.

Dr. R. Rice, No. 11 Pearl st., will give compound oxygen treatment at 50 cents each sitting.

The general strike of all the engineers and firemen on the entire Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system at 4 o'clock yesterday morning affected this point as other terminals of divisions. All engines arriving in the yards here were backed into the round house and the foreman notified by the engineers that they would respond to no more calls until the strike was ended. Instead of deserting trains wherever they might be at the appointed time, they were all taken to their destination, or at least to the end of the division. The "flyer" from Chicago was brought as far as Creston, but the regular crew would not start out from there, and the traveling engineer of the road ran the train from there to the Bluffs. The Kansas City train was taken out by Master Mechanic Bridenstein, foreman of the round-house here. When he tried to stop for the railroad crossing at Pacific street, the strikers interfered with work and he collided with another engine just backing over the crossing. The tender of the switch engine was thrown off the track, but no serious damage done. An attempt was made to arrest Mr. Bridenstein for not stopping at the crossing. He got off the engine and was ready to submit to arrest, but when he found there was no warrant and no apparent authority he again mounted his engine and rolled on his way. This incident led to numerous reports about a tender being purposely thrown across the track and numerous arrests following.

The Chicago fast mail was taken out by the regular engineer, Bert Russell, on No. 238. Mr. Russell is a member of the brotherhood, but as it is not the intention of the strikers to interfere with the mail, they will furnish men to run the mail trains, but no passenger coaches will be drawn. A BEE reporter visited the Kansas City roundhouse, and found there seven engines, more than has been in the house at one time since the strike of 1877.

Mr. M. M. Marshall, general agent of the road was running a switch engine in the yards during the morning. When seen at his office in the afternoon by the reporter, he said that the strike was not as serious as it seemed at first sight, as the passenger trains would all soon be running, as men were coming in fast from other roads. All brotherhood engineers, however, will of course refuse to lend any assistance. Mr. Marshall stated that nothing would be done until the freight line, until the force was running again. Mr. Marshall was one of the busiest of men yesterday. Besides his regular duties, which were yesterday thrown into much irregularity, he served as engineer, fireman, switchman and telegraph operator. He is one of the best "all-round" railway men, and is well up whether he needs to send a message or run an engine. He found all his abilities called into requisition yesterday.

The regular outgoing passenger on the "Q" was taken out by the traveling engineer of the road, who brought in the "flyer" in the morning from Creston. About 9:30 o'clock in the evening a couple of "seabs" went to the roundhouse and took out an engine to run the regular K. C. passenger train. They coupled onto the train, but the water was low, and the seab engineer was unable to get any more into the boiler and the fire had to be dumped. The engine immediately skipped out, and has not since been heard of. After much labor the engine was backed into the house by hand, but it is not yet known whether or not any damage was done by the water out giving.

The strikers were very jubilant over the prospect and term in the belief that the company will accede to their demands.

Coffman's Trial.

The first formal occupancy of the new court house was yesterday. Judge Looftbourow adjourned court early Saturday afternoon at the Masonic temple in order to give time for the removal to the new court house, where the hearing was to be resumed yesterday morning at 10 o'clock.

Judge Looftbourow went to his home at Atlantic to spend Sunday, and expected to return on the early train Monday. The train was late, however, and the other participants in the trial, with the exception of the lookers-on, waited patiently until next noon, when the announcement was made that court stood adjourned until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Judge Carson, who has just closed a term in Fremont county, and who is the only one of the relatives of Coffman to Harlan, was one of the prominent inside the new railing. The morning hours afforded an opportunity for him and others to determine as to the convenience of the arrangement of jury box, clerk's desk, etc. It was decided that a change was desirable, and such a change is made, the jury being placed on the opposite side from that originally reserved for them. The clerk's desk was also changed. Inside the rail was laid the old matting taken from the Masonic temple, but this is to be replaced by a carpet, more in keeping with the other elegant appointments of the new court house.

One convenience was noticeably lacking. There were many of the crowd of visitors who through the new court house, who were not only expectant but expectorators. There was a startling lack of cuspidors. And the reckless disposition of nicotine saliva was an urgent showing of the necessity of hurrying the shipment of the one hundred spittoons already ordered by the board of supervisors.

In the afternoon at the hour set, Judge Looftbourow seated himself on the new throne, beneath a rather ecclesiastical canopy, and the swearing of witnesses followed.

One of the strong points in support of the claim that Coffman shot Main in self defense, has been the evidence that Coffman was badly pounded by the defendant. Selsby was not in Trion's restaurant at the time of the trouble. Selsby, a new witness, who was not at the former trial, had testified that he saw a good deal of the affair. Blake denied that he was there.

Mrs. Trion, who, with her husband kept a restaurant, testified that she never saw the man Selsby there, and that he was not boarding there. She did not remember ever seeing him before this trial. She could not swear that he did not eat a meal in the house, but it was not to her knowledge, and she had good opportunities of knowing.

Mr. Trion testified that he could not remember of having seen the man Selsby before he saw him on the stand as a witness. He did not believe Selsby ever took a meal at his restaurant, and was there at all. Mr. Trion was an eye-witness to the tragedy, and from his account of it Main struck Coffman, knocked him back over a keg and had him down shouting for help. He started to separate them. Before he reached them the shot was fired which killed Main
