Omaha 8, Minneapolis 2.

The errorless game Omaha played Sunday, together with its consequential victory, was the probable cause of another large turn out yesterday.

In fact, it was the biggest Monday crowd seen upon the grounds this year, and the smile that wreathed President McCormick's face as he leaned over the umpire's box and watched the progress of the fray, was as broad as the side of the new Joe building.

And again the White Sox pitched without the shadow of an error.

Great work that, isn't it? It was a lively, rattling game from start to finish, characterized by some lively hitting, some great work and par-excellent fielding, and, best of all, Omaha yanked in another scalp.

Clarke was in the points for the White Sox, and that fact materially helped them on to victory. Just when Minneapolis needed a hit, a nice little liner—say, out over short or past Andrews—Dad put that stop-the-motor smile of his, got a ball, a regular, a tantalizing twist, and lo! Minneapolis tumbled every time.

It was tough luck on Morton's lambs, but better they should have it than the placid Seales.

It was one, two, three for Omaha in rapid succession for three innings, and Mickey Morrison looked as if he meant to give them the razz-dazzle on to the end.

In their half of the third the visitors made their first, last and only score.

Turner lost out over the right-bagger way out past Jake Strauss, and ran home with an earned tally on Morrison's safe drive. Then Dugdale smacked out a single, and the crowd feared that they were onto a dandy for keeps.

But he fooled them.

He took out a bag full of new slants, and when Morton's bats got to get too fussy he sprung them, Minnehan and Miller striking out, and West going out from Grover to Andrews.

That was clever twirling.

The White Sox evaded in the next.

Cooney scampered like a rabbit, round to second on Foster's hit, and to second on Cleveland's sacrifice, and crossed the plate on Strauss' long fly to Tamer.

The fourth was a clean drive, although Andrews did line out an elegant three-bagger; he was caught napping, and the golden opportunity slipped away.

But it made no difference, for he distinguished himself in the very next inning by winning the game, smacking out one of the longest hits ever made on the grounds—a homer, way out over the right field fence, near the carriage gates, and sending in Crooks, Walsh and Nagle before him.

Oh, my! What a clincher at that! You could hardly hear your own name, and Wally came waddling in to the bench amidst a very shower of big John dollars, five dollar gold pieces, currency and other choice and rare game.

But here is the episode in detail:

Cooney was the first batter up, was retired on a bunt to first, and then he smacked a hit, but Strauss' flow out, and another blank stared us in the face.

But the brawny lad with the flaming hair came to the plate. He made a single, Cleveland reached third. Then Morrison gave Walsh his base, and the bags were full. It was a breathless moment.

Mickey was nervous, hot, rattled. He gave Nagle his base on four more wide ones, and Cleveland was forced across the plate.

"Hey! hey! hey!" vociferates the crowd. Andrews now stepped to the plate, and after fooling for several minutes with Morrison's erratic shots, he caught one just right.

The collision cracked like the report of a musket.

Away went the sphere, up, up, and out, out, out, while the crowd stood up and yelled themselves hoarse, for it continued on in its meteoric flight, until the fence had been passed and it disappeared away off among the Doric columns of Kountze's addition.

Everybody ran home, and for five minutes the uproar was deafening.

The exploit netted the big first baseman at least $7500 left for the ball on horseback immediately at the close of the game. He's going to have it stuffed.

This knocked all the vim out of the Minnies, and the balance of the game was as tame and gentle as a lamb.

The White Sox, however, did earn two more runs in the eighth, on Sir Thomas Nagle's single, Andrews' second three-bagger, and Daddy Clarke's opportune drive.

And thus the game ended.

Several Non Witnesses Examined in the Cronin Case.

The evidence not startling.

A Man Supposed to Be the Mysterious Williams Arrested at Winnipeg—Maroney and McDonald Released.

Pursuing the investigation.

Chicago, June 17.—The grand jury examined numerous witnesses in the Cronin case this morning, but so far as known no new evidence of a startling nature was adduced.

Frank Woodruff was seen in his cell at the jail to-day by an Associated press reporter regarding the statements in his last confession.

Woodruff maintains in detail the accuracy of his last story, and is evidently determined to stand by it. He incidentally denies preparing any additional statement or confession, and insists that many conflicting stories previously credited to him emanated entirely with the police and were fabrications intended to discredit anything he might say in the future.

Among the witnesses examined was Harry Brown, clerk and local parker at the Cronin-Sullivan. Much the same questions as those propounded to Mr. Windes on Saturday, were put to him. His testimony was of a very negative character, but clearly established the fact that Sullivan's relations as a lawyer and an Irish leader were distinct and separate and that his knowledge of Lawry's alleged activities in the Cronin case was never allowed to interfere with or become merged in the business transactions of the firm.

Andrew J. Duggan testified at length to his alleged knowledge of Lawry's alleged activities in Cronin. Beggs is the senior guardian of the Cronin-Gael club which is said to have tried Cronin for treason.

George Beckwith, a witness, testified that while he had regarded the doctor as a friend, and that he had, at times, at times, they were really on terms of personal friendship.

T. P. O'Connor, an active member of the Cronin-Gael, and one of Cronin's intimate friends, testified that he was at one time approached by an agent of the Triangle and notified to prepare himself for a "secret mission" to Chicago.

Two of the members of the firm of Lester & Co., brokers and real estate agents, testified that they were really on terms of personal friendship.

George Beckwith, of Lake View, testified that about April 8 a man giving him the name of Martin Burke called on him at his store at Lake View and engaged in conversation. He corresponds to the description of the man who hired the Carlson cottage, and he is under surveillance.

Immediately after the discovery of Cronin's body O'Sullivan's ice house and the Carlson cottage were visited by Martin Burke, who was standing near at the time, was photographed. This same Burke is now said to be under arrest at Winnipeg on the charge of being one of the men who hired the Carlson cottage, and the man who hired the expressman to move the furniture from the Carlson street to the cottage.

The photograph was shown this afternoon to the Carlson. Old man Carlson thought he recognized Burke, but his wife and son were not sure. The photograph was somewhat clouded. The jury debated for some time as to the advisability of indicting Burke at once in order that steps might be taken promptly to identify the man who finally resolved, however, to defer action until the expressman, who was sent to New York to identify Moroney and McDonald, should return and see the photograph.

Williams Caught at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., June 17.—Last night the chief of police arrested Martin Burke, alias Delaney, in connection with the Cronin murder. He was boarding the car on express and had a ticket for Liverpool, and Superintendent Hubbard of the Chicago police, who was communicated, with notified the authorities to hold Burke.

Burke, alias Delaney, arrested yesterday, has retained counsel and has determined not to voluntarily return to the United States, but all knowledge of or complicity in the Cronin case, and says he was merely making a trip to Ireland.

At the marks on Burke's linen and books and papers found on his person have been obliterated. A name on the band of a hat found in his valise, resembling that of Cronin, had been smeared over with ink.

Chicago's Police Think It is Williams.

Chicago, June 17.—It is stated by the police this morning that the man arrested at Winnipeg yesterday is Williams, the man who rented the Carlson cottage and who hired the furniture moved from 117 Clark street to the cottage. The detectives have had him under surveillance, but he gave them the slip and they had lost track of him for some time.

Burke's connection with the case, it was found out later, is just this: He is the man who hired the expressman, to carry the furniture from 117 Clark street to the Carlson cottage. Detective Palmer secured the photograph of the fellow, which was shown to Martinson and declared by him to be that of the man who hired him to carry the furniture to the Carlson cottage. Burke obtained some money from persons whose names he had given to Liverpool, and with it bought a ticket for Liverpool via the Allan line. He then boarded a train for Winnipeg, intending to return to Chicago on Monday afternoon, at the former place. Burke is a Clan-na-Gael man and came here several weeks before the murder. He is from Hancock, Mich., the home of ex-Governor, and was a friend of P. O. Sullivan.

Chief Hubbard said, in regard to Burke, that he was a right man, and that they were nearer the truth in the matter of Maroney and McDonald than they were at first. Extradition papers will be got out as soon as possible and the man will be brought here in two or three days.

Maroney and McDonald Released.

New York, June 17.—The three men who came on from Chicago for the purpose of identifying Maroney and McDonald as principals or accomplices in the murder of Dr. Cronin, visited the Tombs this morning with authority to see the prisoners. The suspects were placed in line with a score of other prisoners. William H. Hatfield, who sold the furniture afterwards found in the cottage where Cronin was murdered, was first to pass along the line, and he had to identify either of the men. He was followed by Martinson, the expressman, E. G. Throckmorton and Deputy Sheriff Williams, all of whom were asked to identify the suspects. Maroney and McDonald were then taken back to their cells, and the Chicagoans left the prison.

Judge Roberts this morning discharged Maroney and McDonald on the ground that there was no evidence on which to hold them. Judge Andrews, after reviewing the arrest and proceeding, said: "Although it is a matter of general newspaper notoriety that Cronin was recently murdered in Chicago, it appears that no competent legal evidence whatsoever was produced before the magistrate, either of the fact of the murder or that Maroney or McDonald committed the crime."

Sullivan's Wife Believes Him Innocent.

London, June 17.—Mr. Maxwell's wife, wife of Alexander Sullivan, who is spending a few days with friends here, says that while she is deeply pained at the imputation implied in associating her husband's name with the Cronin tragedy, her knowledge of her husband's absolute ignorance of the crime sustains her. As far as the sensation pointed to her husband, says she sees in it Chicago newspaper yet, composed partly of antiquated calumnies, whose truth was shown years ago, and partly of malignant aspersions of personal and political enemies. Chicago editors do not appreciate. She deeply deplores Cronin's death and says the presumption that her husband had personal interest in her death rests upon an error, which for a time may seem to justify censure. This error will be perfectly shown hereafter. Those who now condemn her husband will be generous in acknowledging his patience and fortitude.

"Fake" Interviews Denied.

Chicago, June 17.—To-day Miss Pauly, sister of the saloon-keeper quoted last night as corroborating Woodruff's latest statement, denied emphatically the interview attributed to her. She says she knows nothing of Alexander Sullivan, and never saw any answering his description with Woodruff. Her brother also denies the important feature of the interview represented as coming from him.

CURIOSITIES OF FREIGHT.

Rates Less From New York Than Chicago to St. Paul.

THREATENING THE TRUNK LINES.

The Effect of the Alton's Withdrawal From the Inter-State Commerce Railway Association—The Cut in Lumber Rates.

The Northwestern Complication.

Chicago, June 18.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—The Northwestern situation has been still further complicated by a reduction of the St. Paul & Duluth to 51 cents, New York to St. Paul. This brings out the interesting state of affairs that New York and eastern merchants can ship freight from seaboard points to St. Paul 6 cents cheaper than the Chicago merchant can ship exactly the same class of goods from Chicago to St. Paul, the local rate from Chicago to St. Paul being 60 cents.

After repeated and futile attempts to settle the question with the Lake lines, the roads now have under consideration the abolishing of all pro-rating arrangements via Chicago. This will, in effect, make the through rate from the seaboard to St. Paul the sum of the local from the seaboard to Chicago, and from Chicago to St. Paul. The proposition is a bluff, but it is more than likely to win. The object of the bluff is to compel the trunk lines to stop helping out the lake lines by pro-rating with them at Buffalo. All-rail freight from the seaboard comes via Chicago and central traffic lines to Chicago. The Vanderbilt lines, the New York Central, Lake Shore, Michigan Central and Nickel Plate; the Pennsylvania road with its western line; the Fort Wayne and Chicago; and the whole Baltimore and Ohio system, are vitally interested in the continuance of the pro-rating arrangements with the Alton road, and through rate become the sum of the local, and the trunk lines still feed the lake lines at Buffalo, almost every pound of freight to and west of Chicago and central traffic lines. West-bound traffic over the Central Traffic lines, and trunk lines without lake connections, will be carried through the Alton road. The Alton is the club of the western roads are holding over the heads of the trunk lines, and if it falls, as it is liable to do, the thud will be of the Alton.

To-morrow the matter will be considered by the western roads, and according to the present outlook, pro-rating arrangements via Chicago will come to an end.

Alton's Withdrawal.

Chicago, June 17.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—The prospect of the utter collapse of the Inter-State Commerce railway association, owing to the withdrawal of the Alton road, seem to be a trifle premature. As a prominent official of a Central Traffic road said, to-day: "It seems to me that the withdrawal of the Alton will have less effect on the association than that of any other road in it. The Alton is not, by any means, a demoralizer. It will probably cut the live stock rate to the bone, but will not cut it open. For this reason the roads in the association will have no difficulty in meeting the rates as an act of the agreement, introduced by the way, by Vice-President McMullen of the Alton, gives them all the privilege of meeting immediately any rate made by an outsider. Although the Alton can not officially sever its connection with the association until July 15, it considers itself, and is considered by the members, as an outside road. The withdrawal of the Alton is not more of a reason for the dissolution of the association than the refusal of the Illinois Central to join was a reason, in the beginning, for its non-formation."

The Alton is not ready to say yet what action it will take relative to the live stock traffic, except that it proposes to get its share. Not long ago Vice-President McMullen claimed that the live stock rate from Chicago to Chicago was too high, as it gave a chance for the weak roads to manipulate it. He was in favor of lowering the rate to a living figure, where it could not be cut except at a loss. This policy will undoubtedly be adopted.

To-day General Manager Chappell said: "Our withdrawal was decided on only after the most careful consideration. A meeting of the directors was called, and they agreed unanimously with us. It was the proper thing to do. We stood the manipulation of the St. Paul road as long as we could. We have practically been paying them money in a letter to the board, which has not been fully brought to us. We are going to quit that now and pay the money to the shippers."

The St. Paul Reduces Rates.

Chicago, June 17.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road to-day gave notice that, taking effect June 20, the rates from Davenport to the interior of Iowa and east of the Mississippi river would be so arranged as to virtually abolish bridge tolls and amounts to a reduction of 10 per cent in rates from Illinois points located on the river. The action of the Chicago & Alton railroad in giving notice of withdrawal from the Inter-State Commerce Railway association is generally regarded as the beginning of the end of the president's agreement. Chairman Walker in a letter to the President McMullen of the Alton, acknowledging the receipt of his communication, says: "I can not refrain from expressing my regret that before making your action formal you did not inquire as to the course taken by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul under the recent recommendations of the executive board. Had you done so, believe that your inference would, to some extent at least, have been modified."

The Cut Lumber Rate.

Chicago, June 17.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—The long delayed notice of reduction in the lumber rate to Missouri river points, by the Alton, will be sent to Washington to-night. It was found impossible to lower the rate to 10 cents without starting a rate war from southern lumber points, and a compromise was made on 13 cents, the southern roads agreeing to maintain their rate. The 13-cent rate will be met by all competing roads.
