

SUSTAINED BY THE JUDGES

Ex-Sheriff Coburn Wins All His Suits Against the County.

OPENING OF TWO MAY TERMS.

Ed. Neal, the Alleged Murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Jones, is Arraigned and Pleads Not Guilty.

The May term of the district court opened at a very late hour yesterday morning.

When Deputy Sheriff Grobe had gone through the formality of declaring the court opened, Judge Doane made his announcements.

Before the judges appeared, Clerk Moore announced that, after next Friday, he would send every member of the bar a postal card every night giving the filings in the cases of each attorney.

This announcement called forth great cheers from the attorneys and cries of Long Live Clerk Moore.

When Deputy Sheriff Grobe had gone through the formality of declaring the court opened, Judge Doane made his announcements.

The first was that the bailiffs who served at the former term would continue during the May session.

The second was that the following gentlemen would constitute the bar committee: John D. Hayes, J. H. Rogers, E. J. Cornish, H. J. Davis and R. W. Patton.

Then came a number of decisions, the first four of which resulted in the board of county commissioners receiving four votes each.

The Kinney tobacco company was given a judgment for $225.00 against G. H. Mack & Co.

In the case of the Cameron Steam-pump works against the A. L. Strang company on a bill of exchange, judgment was rendered in the sum of $422.08.

Vladav L. Vodka was appointed administrator of the estate of Joseph Kriz.

A HELENSTEIN SUBTERFUGE.

How the Wily Land Grabber Wants to Delay the Suit.

The May term of the United States district court opened yesterday morning with Judge Dundy on the bench.

Six young lawyers were admitted to practice before the court as follows: J. Hart, R. D. A. Wade, W. H. Morseman, George F. Wittins, H. C. Atwell and M. L. Larson.

Motions were heard of cases pending and many dismissed, none of them, however, being important cases.

The reading of the docket occupied the balance of the morning session, the monotony of which was relieved when the Helenstein cases were called.

The attorney for Helenstein, moved for a change of venue, stating that the court was disqualified to judge the case for the reason that a relative of his was a grantor in the deed.

Judge Dundy said that the information was news to him but that he would look into and decide and asked the attorney who the relative was.

Mr. Young stated that E. S. Dundy, Jr., had owned one of the lots in controversy.

The court then adjourned for some time, but knew nothing of this case.

The opposing counsel then stated that the Helenstein case was merely a subterfuge to keep it in the courts for a number of years and give the plaintiff an opportunity to blackmail as many people as possible.

This view caused some of the spectators to laugh and the attorney for Helenstein to look somewhat uncomfortable.

The case of Gandy versus Anderson et al. will be tried before a jury tomorrow morning.

Grand and petit jurors are as follows: Petit Jurors—Henry Morrison, Lincoln; J. C. Warren, Red Cloud; A. J. Conley, Beatrice; James Robbins, Tecumseh; Frank Phillips, Grand Island; J. J. Kennedy, Stratton; J. A. Devore, Nelso; J. P. Lull, Plattsmouth; James Swan, Lincoln; Grant Engstrom, Lincoln; William Guards, Falls City; Philander Hall, North Platte; J. H. Brown, York.

Grand Jurors—Peter Schwenk, Norfolk; H. C. Brown, York; J. H. Brown, York; Jacob Herber, Falls City; Cook, Lincoln; McArthur, Lincoln; N. J. Edholm, Omaha; Hugh McCaffrey, Omaha; B. J. Hulstner, North Platte; Harry Clark, Bellevue; James Dickey, Marshall; John Polman, Johnson; Samuel Rich, Brownville; Pat Hall, Ashland; Ran McKee, Palmyra; O. Nadilla, Grand Island; J. H. Brown, York; George T. Black, Fremont; Henry H. Martin, Shenandoah; Dennis Keleher, Omaha; Isaac Reynolds, Indianola; William Neligh, Omaha.

MAKING PHARMACISTS.

Yesterday's Session of the State Board of Examiners.

The board of examiners of the state board of pharmacy met in the Murray yesterday morning at 9 o'clock.

There were present, Max Becht, first vice-president of Omaha; J. E. Riggs, second vice-president of Lincoln; James Reed, treasurer of Nebraska City; Henry D. Boyd, secretary of Grand Island; Mr. Cook of Red Cloud, president of the board, was unable to attend on account of sickness.

Max Becht presided. The following gentlemen presented themselves for examination as pharmacists under the state law: Samuel G. Boyer, Tecumseh; J. H. Brown, York; C. E. Ballard, Arapahoe; J. G. Best, Hartington; Ben L. Hamilton, Gethsemane; J. F. Fruter, Sioux Center, Ia.; D. D. Hayes, M. A. R. Hughes, W. C. Hanson and R. B. McCoy, Omaha; J. W. Heskett, Verdun; Woodrow F. Knapp, York; Homer E. McKenzie, St. James; E. Patton, Lincoln; P. A. Rauen, Plattsmouth; Ben H. Reed, Beatrice; Adam Kubendahl, Madison; W. A. Stevens, York; J. H. Brown, York; T. J. Tager, Omaha; A. S. Warner, Springview.

laughed at various times while being taken to the court room handcuffed to Jailer Miller. He passed numerous compliments upon the architecture of the big court room into which he was taken. He wore his eyes closed and looked up at Judge Clarkson perfectly erect and firm while Mr. Mahoney read the lengthy information charging him with the murder of Allen and Dorothy Jones.

"What do you plead," asked Judge Clarkson, who Mr. Mahoney had finished, "guilty or not guilty as to both informations?" "I plead not guilty as to both informations," answered Neal.

"Have you any means with which to employ counsel?" asked the judge.

"No, sir," answered the suspect, "but Mr. Gurley and Mr. Estelle have attended me thus far and I ask that they be appointed as my counsel."

"Very well," continued the court, "I will make an order to the effect that they be appointed."

Mr. Mahoney asked to be allowed to endorse the name of W. B. Meyers on the information as one of the witnesses, explaining that it had been inadvertently omitted.

"No, sir," objected, on the ground that it was too late.

Judge Clarkson overruled the objection and allowed the name to be entered.

Neal was then taken back to his cell.

Mr. Reed, chairman of the committee on violation of law, reported that during the last quarter he has been hunting after violators. He had made ten trips to various parts of the state and persuaded druggists who were not registered or who were employing unregistered clerks to register and obtain their licenses. In one instance, that of John Miller of Maywood, Mr. Reed was compelled to bring the case into court. Miller had made his license to box up all his drugs and medicines except those which were not patented and sell no more without undergoing examination and registration. During the examination Mr. Reed wrote 446 letters to parties against whom complaint had been made, with the result that in every instance the recipients complied with the law.

Mr. Reed seems to be the man for the place. He resorts to the courts only when suggestions fail of effect.

The board then adjourned to meet for examination of applicants in the capitol at Lincoln May 16. It will go thence to Red Cloud where it will hold another examination on May 17.

The applicants for examination assembled in parlors 3 and 4 of the Murray where, under the supervision of Messrs. Becht, Riggs, Hayden and Reed they proceeded to answer the questions propounded by the examiners. These questions are printed on sheets of paper foolscap size, and have attached blanks in which the answers are to be written.

The applicants in the main are young men though a few have passed the age at which the examination as a rule begins the study of a profession.

The examination comprehends theoretical and practical pharmacy, toxicology, materia medica and chemistry.

The board will pass upon the examination of yesterday at Red Cloud on the 17th.

The secretary can be found at rooms 124 and 125 Millard hotel.

THE WALLING INQUEST.

It Throws Little Light on the Mysterious Affair.

The inquest over the remains of Emma Walling, the woman who was found dead in her bed at 495 North Nineteenth street, was held at Burkett's undertaking rooms yesterday afternoon.

The testimony threw no new light upon the case, but rather had a tendency to shroud it in deeper mystery, notwithstanding the fact that the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to her death from the effects of escaping gas, which was turned on by accident.

Mrs. C. E. Walling, the lady with whom Miss Walling had spent for a number of weeks, testified that the last time the girl was seen alive was at 9:30 o'clock Sunday night; that she paid her room rent and appeared to be in a melancholy mood. Sunday morning the chambermaid found the door locked, but thought nothing of the occurrence until nearly noon, when she again tried the door. Mrs. Walling was then called, and after pounding on the door for some time, she proceeded to enter the room, and upon it, pushed the transom open and there saw the body in the bed covered up and lying on the right side. She called a neighbor, who opened the door open, and together they entered the room, but were nearly suffocated by gas which was escaping from a jet near the bed.

Mrs. C. Satorwey, the lady with whom Miss Walling boarded, stated that the night before the girl had paid two weeks' board, but her good night and left the room shortly after 9 o'clock. The next time she saw the deceased she was lying in bed, in her room, dead, and beside her, upon a chair, was a change of clean clothes and a new dress, which she said she intended to wear, to church.

Dr. Rosewater stated that when he was called at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, he found the body warm and the odor of gas in the room and about the bed. He was of the opinion that the girl had been dead several hours. The doctor assisted at the autopsy, which was held and testified that he found the heart normal, the lungs healthy, but the blood was thin, indicating gas poisoning.

Mrs. Satorwey was also assisted at the post-mortem and testified to the same facts.

The jurors then retired and in a short time returned a verdict as before stated.

The remains, which had been dressed in a neat suit of black by the ladies with whom Miss Walling boarded, were placed in the coffin, and after a brief service were taken in charge by Robert Crisswell and shipped to Ottumwa, where they will be interred beside those of her mother, who died eighteen years ago.

During the inquest the father, A. G. Walling, who had arrived from Glenwood, Ia., was present. When questioned by a reporter, he said: "Emma was thirty years old, but I don't care to say much about her. Her mother died in 1872, and a few years after that she married a man who was a very good man, and at times was so demoralized that she would not speak for weeks at a time. She and her stepmother did not get along well together, and Emma left home."

Robert Crisswell, the uncle, has the appearance of being a kindhearted man, and during the inquest whenever any allusion was made to the death of the poor girl his eyes would fill with tears and pour down his cheeks. He stated that after the second marriage of Emma to her father she had made her home with him until a few months ago, when she came to Omaha seeking employment. He thought her father's second marriage had weighed heavily upon her mind, and while at home she was frequently found weeping.

When asked regarding the death, he stated he was prepared to say anything that he had his doubts about it being an accident.

Mr. Joyce, the gentleman by whom Miss Walling was employed, was found in the opinion that the death was the result of an accident, but thought it strange, as she was familiar with the use of gas. He also stated that at times the deceased seemed to be in a state of nervousness, and that she would not divulge, while at other times she was unusually bright and cheerful.

Don't Feel Well.

And yet you are not sick enough to consult a doctor, or you refrain from so doing for fear of losing your position, or you are so busy that you have no time to do so. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla which will lift you out of that uncertain, uncomfortable, dangerous condition of the blood, and give you a new life of cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in cases like yours.

Fought in the Revolution.

SOLOMON, Ia., May 8.—To the Editor of THE BEH: I see by your paper of the 30th ultimo that there was a meeting at the Paxton for the organization of the Sons of the Revolution. I failed to see one of them who claimed to have a nearer relative than grandfather who served in that war. I would like to learn of someone who had made her home with her father as a soldier in the revolution, as my father was a soldier from three to four years in the army at the same time. My father was at Stony Point, at Cowpens and at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown and the many other battles.

Stephen Hopkins, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, was the grandfather of my mother. General Roccarossa's mother and my mother were sisters.
