

HAS BENEFITED FARMERS.

What the Secretary of Agriculture Thinks of the Work of Congress.

INCREASED EXPORT TRADE IN CATTLE.

A More Comprehensive Election Law Recommended—An Opinion on the Beet Sugar Industry—The Outlook is Bright.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The secretary of agriculture has presented his annual report to the president. By comparing prices at Chicago for October 16 of 1890 and 1889 he shows the market increase in the value of agricultural products, especially of cereals. A tabulated statement of agricultural exports the last fiscal year, including live animals, barley, hay, potatoes, hops, cheese, flax, wool, tobacco, wines, etc., under the old and new tariff rates are given and indicate a material increase in import duties on these articles, and show each to have been imported in considerable quantities. The secretary asserts that without ignoring the effects of natural causes in enhancing values the economic legislation of the last session of congress has directly benefited the farmers; improved the value of cereals.

Our increased export trade in cattle and animal products, another cause of congratulation he traces to the energetic and effective measures adopted for the eradication of pleuro-pneumonia and to the growing appreciation of our stock interests. The secretary's ability to suppress or effectually control contagious animal diseases. He declares that not a single case of contagious pleuro-pneumonia has been reported since the American cattle shipped to British ports since March last. Similar energy has been directed to our pork interests. The secretary strongly recommends that the inspection law be made more comprehensive than the present one, of all animals slaughtered for interstate or foreign trade.

The outlook for the home sugar industry is considered favorable. The analysis by the department chemist of beets grown in various states from the Missouri to the Colorado indicates a high percentage of sugar and affords what is regarded as conclusive proof that sugar sections in the central and western parts of the successful culture of the sugar beet. The practical results obtained in Nebraska and Kansas, he says, demonstrate the feasibility of home-grown sugar manufacture. In the bureau of animal industry arrangements have been perfected for a dairy division, the establishment of important laws, including experiments in dairies in arid regions, and the erection of necessary legislation. Co-operation with experiment stations has been undertaken on important laws, including experiments in dairies in arid regions, and the erection of necessary legislation. Co-operation with experiment stations has been undertaken on important laws, including experiments in dairies in arid regions, and the erection of necessary legislation.

The production of raw silk as an indigenous industry is referred to in very encouraging terms. The secretary emphasizes by reference to the imports of raw silks which have largely increased during the year and are valued for the year at upwards of $24,000,000. Encouraging words are accorded with regard to the silk industry. The tariff on silks will serve to encourage manufacturers and provide a market for home-grown raw silk. He also speaks of the importance of agriculture with the declaration of the secretary's desire to widen the present scope of the bureau so as to increase its benefits to agriculture throughout the country by extending the market for Indian corn in foreign countries has engaged the secretary's attention. He has appointed a special agent abroad, having special qualifications for his duty, to investigate and report upon the possibility of promoting the consumption of Indian corn in European countries.

In concluding his report he says: "A careful review of the events of the past year and a general survey of the present condition of the day betoken a marked improvement in the condition of our agricultural and promise well for the future. It is gratifying to find that the country is looking forward with confidence to the time when in the high quality of its work, as well as in the magnitude of its enterprise, it will be able to stand in the States this country, but shall be the leader in this great industry of all other countries."

A STRANGE CASE.

The Burchell Affair Has a Parallel at Yonkers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—There is strong support for the theory that the famous Burchell case has found a parallel in the alleged suicide of a wealthy Englishman at Yonkers. Benwell, who has money, was lured to this country and robbed and murdered. James H. Edgar, a wealthy London druggist, was lured to this country and was found dead and penniless in a Yonkers hotel. Numerous circumstances surrounding his death suggest a question which the police of that town can not ignore. Evidence of suicide do not deter them in their search for the murderer.

To Wed a Kentucky Girl.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 9.—It is rumored that John W. Norton, the well-known manager who is interested in theaters in Pittsburg, Chicago and St. Louis, is soon to be married. He secured her a remunerative situation with Dixey's Grand Opera company in St. Louis, where she made a pronounced hit on account of her personal beauty and fine stage presence. This season she has been with Kio's company, and is expected to return when they reach this city.

Shot Himself.

COLEMAN, Mo., Nov. 9.—William P. Booth of this place, shot himself through the body this morning with suicidal intent, and may die. He sought the public school yard to do the work, and after shooting himself walked back down town before he became exhausted. Booth has been in falling health for some time, and was apparently insane when he shot himself. He is a single man about fifty years old.

Catholic Educational Exhibit.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 9.—The executive subcommittee of the general committee having in charge the Catholic educational exhibit at the world's exposition of 1893 at service—a first rate position with good pay, and a pleasant location at a hill country station. There the couple met Kipling, and they became such firm friends that two years ago, when the husband got a long leave of absence and with his wife came back to Pennsylvania to visit her relatives, Kipling came with them. A few days after the party arrived the gossip began to say that Kipling was deeply in love with his friend's wife. She, however, was soon aware of it, nor did her husband. Her treatment of the guest was frank friendly and ladylike, without a particle of affectation or flirtation. She possibly agreed on this point, and they said further that it was a pity the journalist could not have bestowed his affections in a quarter where there could have been hope of return. Now word has come that the husband is dead, and that the young widow will soon return to her Beaver home. The gossip expert, Rudyard Kipling to follow soon after, and that another chapter will then be written.

AFTER TRAIN WRECKERS.

Belief That Three Missouri Scoundrels Have Been Located.

SEDAVIA, Mo., Nov. 9.—It is confidently believed that the three men who wrecked the Missouri Pacific passenger train near Ottaville on Friday morning have been definitely located, and the wreckers will probably be arrested in a few days. The names of the wreckers are Dick, Tatt and Delong, who were working diligently on the case since shortly after the wreck took place, and it appears that their efforts are to be well rewarded. After committing the deed the men took to the woods for safety, and on Friday night broke into the Moulds school house, where they hid out. They were finally located by the Missouri State police, and were taken to Ottaville on Friday morning. They were taken to Ottaville on Friday morning. They were taken to Ottaville on Friday morning.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 9.—Secretary Bester's weekly New Orleans cotton exchange statement issued today shows a fall-off in the quantity of cotton brought into the market compared with the week ending Oct. 29. The leading features of the week are the heavy export movement and large takings by American spinners. The former reached 229,114 bales, against 175,600 for the corresponding seven days of last season; while the amount taken by American spinners was 125,222, against 118,200 for the corresponding seven days of last season. The total exports of cotton for the week ending Oct. 29 were 3,987,560, against 3,968,539, an increase of 287,021. These include 561,125 by northern spinners, against 450,000 last year. The movement of cotton to southern interior ports was 15,150 bales, larger than at this date last year. Including stocks left on hand at the close of the week from the last crop, and the number of bales brought into sight thus far, from the present crop, the supply to date is 3,009,442, against 2,765,002 for the same period last year.

A WOUNDED DRIVER'S RESERVATION.

Calvin P. Jones Made a Judge of Polk County—No Hope of Complete Election Returns Before Wednesday.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 9.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—On Wednesday night last, three burglars went through several stores in the village of Wyo, Jones county, getting considerable booty. Next day they were near Baldwin and a strong party was organized to capture them. Word was also sent to Maquoketa, and a party of 300 or more went out from there. The next heard from the fugitives had reached the heavy timber near Maquoketa and that the search had been abandoned. Last evening the fugitives arrived at Key West, three miles from Dubuque. There across a brewery wagon and asked for a ride. After getting on the wagon they fired a bullet in the back of the driver, Jacob Handshelsh and demanded his money. He gave them $100 in silver and slipped $800 under the cushion under the seat. They then jumped off the wagon, Handshelsh firing the revolver. They carried the bag extracted from his back. He was very seriously injured. The sheriff organized a posse and pursued the robbers, but had not succeeded in capturing them at last accounts.

KILLED HIS STEPPAUGHTER.

That is Why Frank Gerade Will be Hanged at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 9.—In the criminal court today Frank Gerade was sentenced to the gallows. He is a German who killed his three-year-old stepdaughter, Annie Hoefler, last March by catching her up by the legs and beating out her brains against her cradle. "Have you anything to say," Judge Magee asked him, "why the court should not pronounce the sentence of death?" Gerade thought for a moment and then replied in German as follows: "I cannot say anything." "I don't want to say anything; I have nothing to say. I don't know anything about this affair," he said, "remember what happened to me. I did it. All I know is what I learned afterward—what my brother told me when I was arrested. That is all I know about it, and I am sorry that I cannot say anything." Judge Magee made no comment upon this statement. Judge White imposed the sentence. Gerade understood its nature without explanation, and was led away looking extremely woe and unsettled.

THEY WERE WILD.

Celebration of the Anniversary of the Hanging of the Anarchists.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Arms full of flowers, sympathetic speeches and a parade of 2,000 people marked the celebration today of the anniversary of the execution of the anarchists. A program characterized all the exercises. The speeches in comparison with the old-time fiery utterances were mild and cheerless. The procession marched through several down streets with banners furled and draped with crepe. The special train reached the cemetery the procession again formed and marched past the graves, each society as it passed, deposited its floral offering until George S. Hedges, a man in a coat of red and white flowers in various designs. The crowd then assembled in front of a small platform and listened to the speeches.

Arrangements for the Reception and Demonstration of the Reception.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—Even the coming visit of Dillon and O'Brien does not seem to be sufficient to unite the Irish factions of Chicago, and the visiting statesmen may be placed in the embarrassing position of being compelled to submit to receptions from rival Irish factions. So far as the general public is concerned, it has been definitely arranged that a committee consisting of Edmond McEvilly, E. Stone, J. W. Scott, Joseph Medill and Washington Hering will have charge of the arrangements in connection with the demonstration at the Irish public opinion, of an earnest appeal to O'Brien and Dillon to visit Chicago. The Telegraph, being an organ of the liberal government of Quebec, additional force is lent to the warning contained in the following extract from its leading article: "I would advise O'Brien and Dillon not to come to Chicago. We give this advice because there coming here might be the means of injuring their best friends, or if they do come, their visit would do much more harm than good. Dillon will pull the wires with the home government and cause them to be arrested. It would be well to give credit to their visit as one of the liberal attorney generals of the provinces. Such a move would be in harmony with the old trickster's career. If elected he would be able to launch a party that would sweep the liberal party, alone the party that is a friend of Ireland to a man, would suffer, and that, too, on the probable eve of the election. This is the reason why we would advise O'Brien and Dillon not to come, for they may injure the political party that they are coming to support. They may serve the orange faction and thus keep the tory enemy in power."
