

OPPOSING THE ROCK ISLAND

Right of Way Through Lincoln Again to Be Contested.

WANT THE TRACKS RAISED OR LOWERED

Henry E. Lewis Intervenes in Pending Litigation Touching the Subject—Fighting Over Five Children—Other Capital City Gossip.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 21.—(Special to THE BEE.)—A further delay in the construction of the new Rock Island route through this city developed today. Last summer, when the Rock Island applied to the city council for permission to cross O street at grade, the ordinance met with bitter opposition from various sections of the city, especially from the residents of East Lincoln, who would possibly be compelled to cross the railroad tracks on their way to and from the business part of the city. When the agitation of the matter was at its height, the Lincoln Street Railway company stepped in and secured an injunction restraining the Rock Island from crossing O street at grade. Notwithstanding the opposition, however, the city council passed the ordinance introduced on behalf of the Rock Island. Since that time the company has gone on with the construction of the new route, and also received bids for the erection of the new passenger cars to be used on the line.

The injunction secured by the street railway company had never been argued before the district court. Several days ago, however, Judge H. G. Wells, who had a post-nuptial secured by one side or the other. The matter was to have been brought up before Judge Wells on Monday, but he was prevented from doing so by the illness of one of the parties. He filed a petition in which he alleges that he is a resident of Lincoln, and that in order to get to his place of business each day he will be compelled to cross the tracks of the defendant company. This, he alleges, will cause him to lose his time and his health, and thus avoid all cause for complaint. In order to give him time to prepare his affidavits, Judge Wells continued the case until October 17.

Fighting Over Five Children.

An interesting legal conflict over the possession of five young children has been taking place in the Lincoln courts this week. The children were orphaned and are inmates of the Tutuila home in this city. Some time ago Mrs. Hodges, a sister of the children, secured the custody of two of them under a slight pretext and when the authorities of the home demanded their return Mrs. Hodges refused her consent. The case went into the probate court and secured the appointment of guardian over all five of them, but when she went to the home and demanded her wards the officers at the home refused to permit them to leave. This brought the matter into court. The woman claimed that the children were poor and should be at the home, but the facts in the case did not seem to substantiate her story. On the other hand the officials of the home claimed that Mrs. Hodges was unable to support the children, having a large family of her own and that she wanted them to engage in the mercantile business at that place. Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting them to the station, but they were finally removed to the hospital southeast of the city. From the Police Court.

has matured over the late planting. A conservative estimate places the average yield at fifty bushels per acre.

This has been a prosperous year for the farmers of the section. The Red Willow county records show that from June 1, 1891 to September 1, 1892, there have been 117 releases of mortgages in excess of the number filed and $2,000 in amount released more than mortgaged, not counting partial payments which have been made in many cases.

Norfolk's Proposed Fair. NORFOLK, Neb., Sept. 24.—(Special to THE BEE.)—The following program will be executed on Friday, September 30, traveling men's day, at the Northeast Nebraska District fair at this place: All trains will be met by Dainty's famous band of Council Bluffs. A visit will be made to the beet sugar factory. After dinner all visiting knights of the grip, merchants and guests will proceed to the fair grounds, where good racing is promised. One purse of $1,000, known as traveling men's purse, is a free for all. Many of the best horses of the state are already entered. A pavilion will be prepared on the grounds, where all will be entertained. In the evening $1,200 worth of fireworks will be displayed as the grand procession of knights of the grip and their guests march down Norfolk avenue. After which they will proceed to Masonic temple "by request," where a free ball and banquet will be given. Omaha people are especially invited, as well as all other business men and their ladies in the country tributary to the Elkhorn valley.

Interested in Their Work. NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 24.—(Special to THE BEE.)—The attendance at the Methodist conference is as large as on the first day. Great interest and enthusiasm is displayed by all delegates in their work. Some unusual anxiety is expressed over the appointments, which will probably be made Monday.

Today's program was as follows: 9 a. m., morning prayer meeting; 9 a. m., conference session; 2 p. m., conference missionary sermon, Rev. T. H. Worley; 3:30 p. m., auxiliary Women's Foreign Missionary society, Miss Ella Watson; evening, church extension anniversary, Dr. Young.

Fire in the Hay Fields. SCHUYLER, Neb., Sept. 24.—(Special Telegram to THE BEE.)—Fire in the hay fields west of Schuyler consumed several stacks of this year's crop. Railroad men fought until midnight to keep flames from railroad property before all was safe. The hay belonged to Webber & Bohman and is supposed to have been used by incendiaries.

Fire at Kearney. KEARNEY, Neb., Sept. 24.—(Special Telegram to THE BEE.)—A fire burned the old Journal building here this evening. It was occupied as a paint shop and was one of the city's oldest landmarks, having been used at one time as the first school building in Kearney. The loss is probably $300.

CO-OPERATIVE BUILDING. Spontaneous Reform and Its Beneficial Results. Henry George has made himself famous by drawing attention to the fact that land advances in price as population thickens, entailing a constantly increasing expenditure upon tenants and bringing a correspondingly augmented income to landlords. Long before the appearance of Mr. George this fact was clearly discerned by the American public, and it is not necessary to have the New York Sun, a distinguished orientalist, to bring it to the attention of the world by a tax, state or federal? What has been done is better illustrated in Mr. George's native city of Philadelphia than anywhere else in the union, says the New York Sun.

In Philadelphia, through building associations, some 80,000 families are housed in homes of their own. By becoming their own tenants they have captured the "unearned increment" which would have gone to the landlord. Building associations on the Philadelphia plan have sprung up, too, all over the country, and are organized into a league, of which Seymour Dexter of Elmira, N. Y., is president. He estimates the total number of such associations in the United States at 6,000 and their annual income at $180,000,000.

These concerns have not arisen at the instigation of reformers, but owe their birth and success to ordinary men who have seen how a building association enables them to save an outlay which by year tends steadily to grow. When a mechanic or clerk has committed himself to paying, say, $4 to $5 toward the purchase of a house the thrift which at first is a necessity soon settles into a habit, and in from ten to fifteen years, with no sense of deprivation, he finds himself rent-free. A good many associations include a life insurance feature, so that if a married man dies before he has fully paid for his house his widow is freed from the debt and receives a clear title to the property.

Another evil which has distressed reformers is that the poor in cities have not only to pay rents which steadily increase, but that they have to occupy tenements too crowded for comfort. This evil, too, is finding its abatement at the hands of men not of sentiment, but of business, who see gain in supplying a want. I will make Jerusalem a stone trodden down to at the nations, every one that tramples on it, mocking is mocked, and there shall be gathered together against it all the nations of the earth.

4. In that day, saith the Lord Almighty, I will smite every horse with amazement, and his rider with madness; but upon the house of Judea I will open mine eyes and all the (the) horses of the nation I will smite with blindness.

5. And the captains of thousands of Judea shall say in their hearts: "We shall find for ourselves the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the Lord Almighty their God."

(In that day I will make the captains of thousands of Judea a firebrand among wood, and a spark of fire in stubble, and they devour on the right hand and on the left all the nations roundabout; and Jerusalem shall dwell again by herself.)

6. And the Lord shall save the tents of Judea at the beginning, that the boast at the House of David may not magnify itself and the pride of the inhabitants of Jerusalem against Judea.

8. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord God of Israel shall smite the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the weak ones among them in that day shall be as David.

A comparison of these verses with the verses in the latest version of the Septuagint will show considerable divergence of language.

Prof. Hoehler, in his remarks upon this invaluable manuscript, said it was sincerely to be hoped that this most valuable papyrus of the bible, probably the oldest now known to exist, would soon be published in fac simile for the careful examination of biblical scholars. He added, in conclusion, that it was the pressing duty of the British government to institute an organized and scientific search for papyrus in Egypt. It was impossible to forecast what treasures might be placed at the disposal of modern scholarship.

Genesis of the Cocktail. The drink known as cocktail was invented and the name applied to it by Elizabeth Flanagan, the Irish wife of an Irish soldier who died during the revolution. She then became a sutler and followed the troop of Virginia horse which in 1779 wintered at the Four Corners, between White Plains and Tarrytown in Westchester county, New York. Helso Flanagan set up a hotel which the American and French officers frequented. They would come in after a night at the card table for a "bracer," and Mistress Flanagan would provide them with a drink that made them feel as "fresh as a cock's tail." In time the compound received the name by which it is now known. Elizabeth Flanagan is dead, the Four Corners has twice changed its name, first to Hall's Corners and now to Elmford, but the cocktail we still have with us.

The Great Lakes. The vast extent of the territory covered and tributary to the great lakes and now the volume of business transacted thereon are little known. The total basin area is 270,000 square miles, embraces more than half the fresh water area of the globe and the coast line in the United States extends over 3,000 miles. The extreme distance in the United States east and west is 1,270 miles and north and south 500 miles. Bordered on the lakes are eight states, with a total population of over 25,000,000. In these eight states are over thirty-six cities having a population exceeding 10,000 each and six having over 100,000 each.

Know When He Was Through. A farmer of Greene County, Pa., hired as his assistant during the busy season a recent importation from the Emerald Isle.

The young man was engaged one evening, and at the breakfast table next morning his employer said: "Well, Pat, have you had enough breakfast?"

"Oh, sarr," replied Pat. "The now, sarr, in the evening, and at your dinner," said the farmer, "for we are going to work to-day at the far end of the farm, and we won't have time to come to the house to eat dinner."

Pat resumed his eating, and when he stopped his employer asked: "Have you had enough dinner?"

"'Yis, sarr."

"Well, we must put in a good long day today. So you
