

PULSE OF WESTERN PROGRESS

Idaho Literally the "Gem of the Mountains."

THE SNAKE RIVER DIAMOND DIGGINGS.

Silver Depression Produces Industrial Paralysis in Nevada. Wooding's Finance - An Irrigation Issue - Summary of Northwest News.

The Idaho diamond diggings overshadow in public interest the gem fields of Montana. Reports from the locality on Snake river in Ada county are of the usual mining camp kind - much excitement and an influx of prospectors. The discovery was made a month ago by a party of surveyors who were at work on the site of a proposed dam, near the mouth of the Bruneau river. Suspecting that the peculiar stones which they had unearthed were either opals or gems of even greater value, the engineers communicated with friends in Portland, Ore., to whom they forwarded half a dozen specimens. The Portland people were assured by two reliable jewelers that the stones were diamonds.

Several local jewelers have pronounced the rough stones submitted to their inspection genuine diamonds. Most of them are of the water type, and one man who has visited South Africa declares that the formation of the soil in which the Idaho gems are imbedded is exactly of the same nature as that of the Kimberly diamond fields. Less than six months ago valuable deposits of fire and milk opals were discovered near Caldwell. The locators of the many claims have already sold thousands of dollars' worth of rough gems, and reminiscences of this fortunate discovery have served to intensify the existing diamond excitement.

The present is not the first discovery of diamonds in Idaho. A story possessing the hoary earmarks of tradition has it that the name of the state originated in some manner from the brilliancy of the quartz crystals found by the Indians in various localities. Idaho is the Indian for "Gem of the Mountains." In the shining light of the present discoveries the name is decidedly appropriate. The significance of the title was known at the christening, but its application by white men was not due, as some declare, to diamond discoveries in the early days.

Thirty-one years ago prospecting parties searched the locality for gold, but were not successful. One James Wilson was attracted by the brilliancy of the crystals found on the river bank. Not knowing their value he paid little attention to them, though he kept a few for pocket pieces. Two years later, after Idaho was segregated from Washington, Wilson met Governor Lyon and exhibited the crystals. Lyon told Wilson what they were and took six of them to New York, where they sold for $2,000. Soon after Wilson and a partner started out for the diamond fields, but were drowned by the capsizing of a boat on Snake river in July, 1863.

As far as is known only one of the men who with Wilson visited the locality in 1861 is now living - Colonel D. H. Fagus of San Francisco. Last year Fagus secured the services of an African diamond expert and started for the Idaho diggings, but on the way the expert died suddenly.

After thirty odd years of unbroken repose the existence of crude brilliants in Idaho is again brought to light. In a short time the value of the find will be determined.

Hard Times in Nevada.

In an interview in San Francisco Governor Colcord of Nevada confirms the reports of general depression in the state. "It is all true," he says, "and I may add that we have not won a dividend on our mining in Nevada for years. Not one of the Comstock mines is paying. The Consolidated Virginia has not paid a dividend for five or six months. It is taking out $60,000 or $70,000 a month, but the expenses are more than this. Many mines are not working at all. There are no additional expenses, either, and no holding over of dividends purposely. The situation is this: With silver reduced to between eighty-five and eighty cents, as it has been lately and is now, they cannot work the mines at a profit with the low grades of ores of which we have many. Silver at such prices cuts both ways. We will have to find a higher grade of ore or cease mining."

The county of Lincoln, Nev., is in a wretched financial plight. It has a judgment for $440,000 hanging over it, affirmed by the United States supreme court, and must devise some way of paying or disposing of it. To pay it off hand, so a local newspaper says, would absorb all the property in the county. To raise the interest on new bonds, if the creditors would accept them, would mean an increase of the tax rate to 5 1/2 per cent., or $55 on every $1,000.

Virginia City at one time contained 20,000 people and the annual output of mineral reached into the millions. At present the population is 7,000. Mines formerly paying magnificent dividends are running behind now. The quartz hills on the Carson river, where silver was at par, ran 325 ore stamps, each with a capacity of three tons of ore a day. Now there are but sixty-eight stamps in operation and these are not running to their full capacity. There is hardly enough bullion to keep the Carson mint in operation, and Nevada's small towns are being deserted. There are hundreds of claims that could be made to pay if silver were at par, but so long as it is depressed, as it is at present the owners can only hold on to them in hopes that redemption will come.

Gigantic Idaho Scheme.

A syndicate of wealthy men have undertaken a gigantic improvement system in Ada county, Idaho. It is their purpose to reclaim over 300,000 acres of desert land and to make possible for the first time the washing of the vast golden gravel and sand bars of the great Snake river valley. These bars having been left high and dry by the erratic waters of the river have never been worked save upon a very small scale, the miners finding it impossible to get water upon the ground. It has been fully demonstrated that the bars abound with gold, and as soon as water is obtainable great activity is anticipated in mining circles. The company will build a dam across Snake river at Head Trail falls, about five miles from Boise and, starting from this point, will construct a canal over 100 miles in length. The canal will be seven feet in depth and forty-eight feet in width on the bottom and seventy-four feet across the top. It will carry 15,000 miners inches of water, to be used by irrigators and miners, and its surface will never freeze over. The headgate of the canal will be located in Owyhee county, but the water will be brought into Ada county through an outlet in Spanish next year. The boundary line between South Dakota and Idaho is a long one, and will be marked by blocks of Jasper stone from the Sioux Falls quarries. They will cost from $5 to $10 each, making a total of $5,000. Spearfish is confident that both the Burlington and Elkhorn roads will build to the town early next year. Samples of the nickel discovered in the southern hills show from 5 to 15 per cent of metallic nickel and about 510 in gold. The divorce industry at Yanicton is looking up, but Sioux Falls is still the fashionable Mecca of the matrimonial misfit. President Coad of the Dendwood & Western road returned to the Hills with a long roll, and is canceling back dues. Work on the road will be resumed as soon as the weather will permit.

Wyoming.

Wyoming has a political paradox. The state has two governors and is without a governor. A cloud of birch perched themselves on a bunch of telegraph wires in Laramie. The weight broke the wires. The Wyoming and Colorado Gas and Oil company proposes to spend considerable money developing its property to Central Wyoming. Reports from the Laplata district are flattering. The Molly Gibson yields 880 ore and the Lucky Star product runs to $90 per ton. Other mines show up profitably and considerable development work is going on. A man with a great head suggests a solution of the fuel problem for Laramie, which would also prove a body blow to the coal combine. It is the building of a plug railroad to Wood Landing, where there are 5,000 acres of the finest fuel timber in the world. Laramie looks on the suggestion with favor, but as yet the plug road project is largely atmospheric.

Utah.

Salt Lake is about to invest $25,000 in a jail. The Utah Mining company has paid $15,000 in dividends. A late strike in the Ada mine at Fish Springs yielded 2 1/4 ounces of silver and 64 per cent lead. The Salt Lake lion story strengthens the suspicion that the author of Idaho's weird sea serpent yarns has settled in Zion. A ledge of gold-bearing ore twelve feet thick was tapped in the Rob Roy in the Newton district. The district is full of prospects. Contracts have been signed whereby the Central Pacific shops are to be moved to Ogden. The buildings will cost $500,000 and will employ 600 men. The first of Salt Lake's batch of public schools, for which $400,000 in bonds were voted, was dedicated last week. It was appropriately named the Lincoln.

In his annual report, Secretary of the Interior Noble gives the value of the product of the mines of Utah in 1891 as $12,250,855. This estimate is regarded as too low. For the year 1892, however, there has been less apparent activity, it is likely that production will exceed the figures quoted by at least $2,000,000.

Idaho.

James A. McPadden's mine on Estes Mountain, Custer county, yielded 860,000 this year. Four thousand dollars' worth of dressed coal was mined in a slaughter house fire in Hailey. Capital is going into Lemhi county at a rapid rate. Two companies are now negotiating for the Lincoln group, below the Yellow Jacket, near Salmon City.

In his annual message, which he will deliver to the legislature on January 2, Governor Willer will recommend the appointment of an irrigation commission of three members, which shall have charge of water rates. The recent census of the Shoshone and Hancock Indians on Fort Hall reservation gives the number of the population as follows: 18 males under 18 years, 470; males over 18 years, 210; females over 16 years, 500; females under 16 years, 221; total, 1,401.

The De Lamar mill in Owyhee county keeps up its wonderful production of gold and silver bullion. Although the mill has been running for several years on ore from this mine, the width of the vein is not known, and may not be for years to come. One thousand dollars per day is about the average profit.

An Idaho City correspondent writes: Several large teams are busy hauling coal to the Ketchikan smelters, which will be blown in in about a month. Twenty men are engaged in making repairs, so that when 1,000 tons of ore are on the dump they can be blown in without any unnecessary delay. There are a large number of mines in the upper Wood river country that have practically lain idle for several years because the owners could not get the ore reduced at home and the expense of shipping to Denver or Omaha for reduction is too great. As soon as it was learned that the lease under the control of the Union Pacific Railroad company had expired and that they would resume operations, owners of mines went to work to put them in position for producing, and there are now hopes that Wood river will again see the lively days she experienced from 1880 to 1884. Montana: Butte authorities have declared war on the hoboes. Their room is preferable to their company. A Charles Guard, a miner, fell into the shaft of the Silver Bow in Butte and was dashed to death. Westel W. Morsman has entered suit in the district court of Butte against Henry McCloskey to recover $1,632.80 on a judgment awarded him in Omaha last September. An effort to resurrect the Helena Journal, Russell's Harrison's paper, failed. A case fund of $2,500 was required, but with persistent canvassing only $5,000 was obtained. The debts of the concern aggregate $100,000. It is said in Helena that Secretary of War Elihu Root, U. S. Keens of St. Louis are in the hole to the amount of $75,000. A Montana Central locomotive exploded near Mitchell station, blowing the engineer and fireman out of the cab. The former landed on the branches of a pine tree 200 yards across a gulch. The fireman descended through the roof of the engine's cabin, striking a bunk and crushing a dog that was snoring beneath. The men were more scared than hurt.

Along the Coast.

Nevada stockmen have laid by a winter's supply of hay. Tacoma has tackled the local tiger. An active war against gambling and gamblers is raging. The Keystone mine, Lincoln county, was located in 1885 by John Taylor, who never suspected its value. Last June S. T. Goodie examined the claim and paid $20,000 for an interest in it. The ore is a brown iron oxide, which is said to assay $20,000 to the ton in spots. A shipment of ten tons of average ore brought $7,160 in Pueblo. Some idea of the sources from which the coal supply of California and a portion of the Pacific coast is derived, can be obtained from the following statement for last month: From Australia, $2,120,000; from British Columbia, $2,400,000; from British Columbia, $2,100,000; from British Columbia, $2,100,000; from British Columbia, $2,100,000.

Special Agent Allen of the land office has just completed his investigation of the watershed of the San Joaquin Valley, Cal. He will recommend that a tract 140 miles long by from 42 to 48 miles wide, and embracing the headwaters of all the rivers that flow into the San Joaquin valley, be set aside as a government reservation. This tract includes some of the finest timberland in the Sierra Nevada.

In the old oracles of the Consolidated California and Virginia mines in Virginia City a fire which has been burning since 1886 has now burst forth so fiercely that all work on the 1,650 and 1,730 levels has been abandoned. It was thought this fire was extinguished five years ago by injecting carbonic acid gas, but recently smoke was observed, and now the timbers are smoking so badly that the miners in the abandoned levels would be asphyxiated.

At Cow Creek canyon, Oregon, fifty miles from the California line, one of two girls, who were walking past a trestle in the company of a young man with a lantern, discovered that the Southern Pacific tracks had been partly torn from the trestle. She grasped the lantern, ran back up the road and swung the light vigorously, not a moment too soon to check and save a passenger train of eight coaches which contained 250 passengers. The trestle has been torn up by bandits, who hoped to rob the train.

In the United States circuit court of Oregon Judge Gilbert decided the case of the United States against the Willamette Valley & Cascade Mountain Wagon Road company in favor of the defendants. The controversy in the case was about 600,000 acres of land granted by congress to the company for building roads. The government claimed that the company had never opened the road, and that it should revert. The court held that the west end of the road was completed within the limit expressed in the act and that since the suit was commenced the remainder had been finished.

The orange growers of Riverside, the richest colony in California, have made arrangements to defy the frost this winter. The nearness of snow-capped mountains to Riverside is one of the greatest charms of the outlook, but it is disastrous to fruit in about one season out of four. To guard against them, frost pipes have been laid in all the large groves, and crude petroleum is run between the rows of trees. By burning the petroleum at equal distances, the clear air is disturbed by clouds of vapor and frost prevented. In smaller groves large pots of petroleum take the place of the pipes. It is calculated that the cost of this apparatus is not over $10 an acre. As many of the groves produce a net profit of $500 an acre, it will bespeak that the device pays.

It's hard getting through with your washing and cleaning, if you don't use Pearline. And you can use it, with great gain, upon anything that you want made clean. In washing clothes, perhaps you won't believe that Pearline is harmless. It has been proved so to millions of women, over and over again, but perhaps you won't be convinced. Then use it for something that can't be hurt. Use it for washing dishes, for instance, and save work. When you come to know it better and let it wash the clothes, you'll find that it saves the wear and tear as well as the work.
