We bought the entire Morse Dry Goods Co's shoe department from A. D. Mosre last Tuesday, and bought it dirt cheap, for shoes are not strictly in their line. We do not buy shopworn goods at any price, for that class of goods are no good anyway, but when a first class, well known and popular stock of fine shoes comes our way, it is too much to expect us to let it go by, especially when the cost is so small that it can hardly be considered.

Prisoner's Excuse for Using an Iron Bar on a Man's Head.

ALBERT ALTENDORF BOOKED FOR LINCOLN

Attorney for the Defense Failed to Get Much Satisfaction from the Court--The Prisoner Wanted to Tell of His Secret Society Troubles.

The case of the state against Albert Altendorf was disposed of in criminal court yesterday, where the presiding judge sent the defendant on the road for a two-year term, he having been convicted of the crime of assault with intent to do great bodily harm upon the person of one Cullen, who was a fellow laborer at the Union Pacific shops.

CALL TO THE A. P. A.

W. J. H. Traynor's Manifesto Exhorting the Members of the Order.

DETROIT, Mich., March 23.--W. J. H. Traynor, supreme president of the A. P. A. and publisher of the Patriotic American, has issued an official address to the order. He states that his travels in the west have convinced him "that the A. P. A. is a mighty force which no power on earth is potent enough to restrain, although monopoly, the press, a large proportion of the Protestant clergy--to their shame or ignorance, be it said--corrupt politicians and the priesthood have joined issue to suppress it."

MADE THE COURT ANGRY.

In a modest way the attorney for the defendant stated that he asked a new trial on the additional ground that at the time when the attorneys were making their arguments to the jury the judge was out of the room. Shortly after this the attorney was sorry for he had incurred the displeasure of the court. The court informed the attorney in a most emphatic manner that before leaving the room he had gained the consent of all the attorneys, and that the motion was nothing but a trap.

claim when the judge told him that he need not talk. The attorney having subsided in a most graceful manner and all of the motions having been overruled, the defendant was called forward to be sentenced, and with all the grace of a dancer, he walked to a position in front of the judge, where he was asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced. Altendorf's answer, that he had a few remarks to make, and what he said laid the foundation for a sensation, which for a time promised some startling results, but it was promptly nipped in the bud by the court.

Standing as straight as an arrow and looking the judge squarely in the face the prisoner said that when he struck Cullen he did so to protect his own life. The trouble, he said, would never have taken place if he had kept out of the A. P. A. organization. He was an A. P. A. and the Catholics were down on him.

He remains members that despite local victories the alleged "center of corruption and national danger, viz. the national legislative and government, remains apparently as powerful as ever." He exhorts every member to attend caucuses, and, independently of party, elect trustworthy members of the order, or "equally good and responsible citizens" as delegates to conventions.

In conclusion the president suggests as a watchword Wendell Phillips' utterance, "The uneducated ballot is the winding sheet of liberty."

CALL FOR A NEW VENUE.

A. P. A. Jurors Not Accepted by an Attorney in a Denver Court.

DENVER, March 23.--For the first time in the history of the courts of Colorado the question of religious differences has been raised. In the case of Tim Drew and James Burnes, charged with robbery, Attorney Tom Ward for the defense challenged a juror because he was a member of the American Protective association. The challenge was overruled. He then challenged the whole jury and found that eleven of the twelve were members of this organization. The attorney at once asked for a new venue and the coroner's office has charge of the jury, on the ground that Sheriff Burchinell was prejudiced against the defendants because they are Catholics. One of the jurors when leaving the court room, shouted: "Hurrah for the American Protective association!"

Attorney Ward finally decided to file no affidavits in the case, but to proceed with the work of securing a jury. The question of religious beliefs, however, enters into the examination of every jurymen and if it is ascertained he is a member of the A. P. A. he is promptly challenged.

IRON WORK ON THE POSTOFFICE.

An Omaha Firm Receives Notice that Its Bid is Accepted.

Omaha will be interested in the following telegram which was received in this city yesterday morning: WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.--Patton & Verling Iron works: After a long struggle your bid for iron work for Omaha postoffice has been accepted. Congratulations. D. H. MERRICK.

Mr. A. J. Vierling in speaking of the matter said that he was not advised of what part of the bid was accepted, but supposed that it was for the entire structure. "Our bid," said he, "was $1,000 below that of the Milwaukee people on the work up to the roof, but on the total bid for everything complete they were about $1,200 below us. I have been satisfied all along that they were not anxious to have the contract at those figures, as they would be compelled to pay a premium for the privilege of doing the work at that price. Our bid was figured as closely as possible, and at our figures there will be no money in it. We could not have met their figures even if we had known in advance just what they were going to do."

"Whether the government has decided to give us the whole work, or merely the part up to the roof and roofline for the balance is something that I will not know until I am further advised from Washington. This contract will give employment to about forty new men until the work is completed. We agreed to complete our work in sixty days after the masons were through, while the Milwaukee people fixed their time at four months. That was one thing on which we based a claim for the entire work, although our figures for all complete were not as low as the Milwaukee bid for that was $12,951. Their bid for all complete was $27,449.

A lot of hard work was done to secure us the award, as it was seen that it means a great deal for Omaha. The Manufacturers and Consumers association took a hand in the fight, and sent telegrams to Secretary Carlisle, as did also the Commercial club, and many prominent citizens actively interested themselves in the matter."

GASOLINE EXPLOSION.

Woman Seriously Harmed by a Blaze from Her Gasoline Stove.

A gasoline stove explosion in the residence of M. Hooley, 4244 Patrick avenue, caused an alarm of fire about noon yesterday. Mrs. Hooley was working about the stove when the tank exploded, covering her with the liquid. She was quite badly burned about the hands, arms and face. The woman's injuries are painful, but not serious. Loss of building about $25.

MURDERER CARLETON CAUGHT

He Was Well Armed, but Not Inclined to Do More Killing.

NIPPED BY OFFICERS IN SARPY COUNTY

Found Hiding Under a Bed in a Farm House with Deshane, Another of the Prisoners Who Escaped from the Fremont Jail.

PAPILLION, Neb., March 23.--(Special Telegram to The Bee.)--Murderer Carleton's lease of liberty was not of very long duration, for he and George Deshane, who escaped with him, were captured this morning at the house of Wm. Garrett, twenty miles south of Papillion. The capture was effected by Sheriff Milliken of Dodge county, Sheriff Starbuck of Sarpy county and Constable Holbrook of Papillion. When found by the officers Carleton and Deshane were snugly ensconced under a bed in company with a big double-barreled shotgun loaded with goose shot. At first they declined to come out from their hiding place, but Sheriff Milliken poked a big six shooter under the bed as a persuader, and they came forth. The arrest was made about 2:30 o'clock. Sheriff Milliken had learned that Carleton had relatives in Sarpy county, and decided to investigate. Accordingly, with two assistants he proceeded to the house of Wm. Garrett, whose wife is a relative of Carleton, and searched the premises. They next went to Garrett's, where they found the murderer's team and buggy standing in the barn.

Deshane was awakened by the noise outside and called Carleton and they hid under the bed.

Garrett, whose wife is a cousin of Carleton, was in town yesterday and procured copies of The Bee containing the accounts of the escape from the Fremont jail, and he could easily get out again, his previous success having evidently inspired him with considerable confidence in his ability in that line. He talked freely with the officers who captured him, and did not give any evidence that he dreaded what the future might have in store for him, having no fear that the end of his career would be a rope, though further than the information that he was confident of his ability to get out of jail again he did not state on what he based his hopes.

The story he tells of the way he and his companions got from Fremont does not tally with the accepted belief of the matter and shows that the taking of the horses from a neighboring barn was all a mistake, or else the other parties who engaged at the same time took them. Carleton says that on getting out of the jail he and George Deshane went directly to Carleton's place and took one of his own teams, with which the twain pulled out of the county in a rapid race. Carleton stated that they drove thirty miles in the first two hours after getting possession of the team, which was played out the horses that they were unable to proceed further at that time.

The country in which they were captured is rough and broken and admirably adapted for hiding, and had the men kept away from the houses they might have given the officers considerable trouble in finding them.

They were brought at once to Papillion and then taken back to Fremont.

Carleton was originally sentenced to be hanged today for the murder of August Gothman of Omaha, but the supreme court had granted a stay of execution until September.

The capture of Carleton and Deshane leaves only one of the prisoners who broke Jeff Garrett twenty miles southwest of Papillion, a burglar named Blake. Wicklow, the fourth man, was captured at Lincoln and returned to jail at Fremont yesterday.

TAKEN BACK TO JAIL.

Officers with Their Prisoners Arrive at Fremont Without Trouble.

FREMONT, March 23.--(Special Telegram to The Bee.)--Sheriffs Milliken and Starbuck of Sarpy arrived here on the 11:30 Union Pacific train with Murderer Carleton and Deshane, two of the prisoners who escaped from the Dodge county jail Sunday night, having taken them at the farm house of Wm. Garrett, twenty miles southwest of Papillion, last night. The trace was made through the team that they had with them belonging to Carleton, which they drove off from his father's place on the night of the escape. When taken Deshane was in bed and Carleton under the bed, and they submitted to the cuffs without a protest.

The murderer of Gothman marched up to his old quarters in the county jail with a firm step as ever and as he recognized old acquaintances he bowed right and left, as if he had simply been absent on a visit. But his best friends are very despondent. His father expresses great regret that he should have attempted to escape, saying that they had recently put up $800 to carry the matter to the supreme bench, and he now feared that the sympathy of the courts would be against him. His father says that in case the supreme court should refuse a new trial the escape might operate against a petition for a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

Frank Dezel, one of his attorneys, expressed great regret at Carleton's escape, claiming that the chances were good to get Carleton out of the county jail.

People here are very much surprised that Carleton did not exercise greater sagacity while at liberty. On Wednesday evening he was playing a game of billiards at Gretna and on Thursday he was taking the ladies out riding with his own team. He was perfectly familiar about the locality, having lived in the neighborhood of Springfield about twenty years ago, and he had many acquaintances there.

The crime of the man Deshane, retaken with him, would not have brought him back from Iowa, but he did not seem to have known it. His crime, which he will now have to answer for, is the paternity of an illegitimate child by one woman and the marriage of her minor sister without the mother's consent, having sworn that she was of age.

Court Callings.

Fred McKinney has asked the courts to sever the ties that for some ten years have bound him to his wife Leah. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant has gone to another woman and that in doing so she has set a very rapid pace.

In criminal court the case of the state against Cyrus Greek has been continued, with a possibility that it will go over the term. Greek is charged with having embezzled a large amount of property that belonged to Dorsey McDonalds of South Omaha.

Judge Ambrose goes to Tekamah next Monday, where he will hold the regular March term of the Burr county district court. There is a large docket to be disposed of and the judge is of the opinion that it will take him at least two weeks to hear the cases which are noted for trial.

burglarized some of the Elkhorn cars, stealing therefrom a large quantity of dry goods and groceries. To the charge of burglary he pleaded not guilty, but admitted that he was guilty of the crime of grand larceny.

READY TO LYNCH THEM.

Two Officers Mistaken by a Crowd for Desperate Burglars.

The report that two burglars had broken into the grocery store of Peter Back, 924 Hancock street, and that they had been surrounded and were being held captive called the patrol wagon there on the double quick about midnight Thursday night.

A telephone message was received at the station requesting that an officer be sent there at once or as many as could be spared, as the burglars had the door locked and the citizens did not dare to approach.

The patrol wagon was sent thither flying and was soon at the scene.

Upon its arrival the report was, to all appearances, true. An angry mob of citizens was surrounding the little store, and by the dim light within could be seen the forms of two men, one skulking about behind one counter and the other behind the other. Every now and again they would appear at the window as if in quest of some avenue of escape. Things looked desperate for them. Outside stood the enraged citizens murmuring low mutterings, and as the burglars would approach the door as if to open it they would be met with a forcible resistance which none dared oppose. There they were like mice in a trap, and things looked critical for them in the extreme; no arm was raised in their defense and no one would give them the benefit of a single doubt.

They were again about to make a trip out the rear door when the arrival of the patrol wagon caused a change of scenery. As it approached the men looked out and prepared for resistance.

"Open this door," was the first demand. Just as it was about to be broken open the burglars again came to the window and, looking out, saw the bright silver buttons of an officer, and at once complied.

"Why hello, Al," one of them said, "what are you doing here?" Al did not at first recognize them, and was about to hustle both men to the wagon. It was then that the real condition of things became known to the poor burglars.

They endeavored to explain why they were there at that holy hour of the night and really put such an excellent reason to the officer that he was quite inclined to let them go and as they went on to tell him further he made a decision to arrest them this time, but to give them another chance.

The two burglars were Constable Soule of Judge Coker's court and Dennis Lane. The entire stock had been taken possession of by mortgagees, and these men were in charge and this was the cause of the disturbance. When told how they came to their deaths they smiled and said they saw the people gathering there but did not know for what purpose.

It was this that caused the mob to assemble and the report that burglars were carrying off the stock by wholesale. They were somewhat disappointed when no arrests were made and that the real live burglars turned out to be just ordinary officers of the law.

CELEBRATING HOLY WEEK

Brilliant Spectacle Presented at the Sanctuaries in the Land of Montezuma.

MEXICO HOLDING RELIGIOUS FESTIVAL

Plans for a Large Settlement of Polygamous Mormons from Utah--Liberal Grant from the Government--About the Jesuits in San Luis Potosi.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 23.--Holy week festivities began Sunday and have been taking place almost continuously every day. Holy Thursday the churches celebrated solemn high mass. Visitors witnessed a brilliant sight, the chapels being full of the elite of society doing penance and bearing lighted candles. Bells of the churches stopped ringing at 10 o'clock and will remain silent until the same hour Saturday. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon occurred the washing of feet of twelve old and decrepit beggars, as typical of the washing of the feet of the twelve apostles by Christ. At night the most brilliant event of the year was had in the churches. The altars of the scores of sanctuaries blazed with thousands of lights, and by a time honored custom nearly every one paid a visit to at least seven different churches.

Today occurs the famous passion play by the Indians at Tacuba. Her advent among the worshippers, principally Indians, who believed her to be a saint. Miraculous cures were attributed to her, and the pseudo-saint attained such a reputation that the authorities experienced great difficulty in disbanding her followers. Her advent among the superstitious classes in the City of Mexico is being watched with concern by the authorities who will take prompt steps if she again attempt her practices.

For a Great Mormon Colony.

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., March 23.--A delegation of Mormons has arrived in the Degolado district, situated in the northern part of this state, and are making the preliminary arrangements to establish there another colony of several thousand polygamous Mormons. The new settlers will come from Salt Lake and other parts of Utah. The concessions which the Mormon leaders have obtained from the government are very liberal and embrace 2,745,000 acres of rich agricultural lands in one body. If the plans now under way are completed in time there will be a great exodus of Mormons from the United States to Mexico this fall.

As Regards the Jesuits.

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mex., March 23.--There is considerable doubt about the expulsion of the Jesuits from the state of San Luis Potosi, as announced. Since the order which the Mormon leaders have obtained from the government are very liberal and embrace 2,745,000 acres of rich agricultural lands in one body. If the plans now under way are completed in time there will be a great exodus of Mormons from the United States to Mexico this fall.

A commission consisting of leading and influential citizens waited upon the clerical ruler and urged the withdrawal of the odious order. From all accounts the session was a heated one and the outcome of the fight between the church and the Jesuits is hard to foresee. DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Small pills, safe pills, best pills.
