MINOR INCIDENTS.

Attend Boston store yesterday sale. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Spelman, a daughter.

A social will be given at the First Presbyterian church next Thursday evening.

Miss Maude Oliver will entertain the "Ebony Warblers" at her home on Park avenue next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. M. A. Hooten left Saturday for Des Moines to bring back her daughter, Anna, who has been contemplating a large amount of notoriety as the result of her running off with Kelly's army.

L. F. Johnson, better known as "Sleepy" Haverly, George Thomas Fitzgerald, and the arrested last evening, charged with putting the jail at Cut-off stand out of repair.

Rev. C. E. Dandy of Hardin township will be ordained as a missionary to India next Thursday evening. The ceremonies will likely take place in the Presbyterian church of Indian township and a number of representatives of the denomination in this city, among them Dr. Stephen Phelps, will attend.

A crowd of boys have been in the habit of creating a disturbance about the Christian tabernacle when meetings are in progress, and yesterday the police authorities decided to put a stop to their carryings on and complained to the police. Officer Sandwell went to the church and dispersed the boys, who were blowing tin whistles and hide and seek, and in other ways spoiling the effect of the services within it. It is likely that some arrests will be made should they fail to take the hint.

The Imperial Fire Insurance company of London is one of the largest and strongest board companies in the world. Lougee & Towle, 235 Pearl street, are sole agents in Council Bluffs for this company.

Amusement Notes. The city for the past week has been full of social amusement topics in various forms, such as minstrel shows and others too numerous to mention, but not to be forgotten was the amusing sight at the Boston street silk sale last Friday.

For this week the sale was no less exciting, as the syndicate sale is being revived daily with new shipments of merchandise at prices far below competition. Don't fail to see show window display of different goods during the sale.

For Wednesday and Thursday, various drives in cornets. Friday and Saturday, big cloak sale. During the wrapper sale twenty of our salesladies will wear a gingham or calico wrapper, showing up the completeness of the styles.

We guarantee that each and every wrapper in our store will be less than the price of material. So why make your own wrapper when we can save you so much time and trouble.

She went to the house where her ex-husband was living. She arrived in the city yesterday from Tallor, Ia., where she has been living.

Harris swore out an information charging her with assault and battery and she was taken to the city jail. She claimed, however, that she had returned to him and lived with him. She arrived in the city yesterday from Tallor, Ia., where she has been living.

Now that Kelly's army has come and gone and no more money is to be had for their visit, let us settle down to business once more and profit by the great lesson they have taught us. There is no doubt that a great deal of money was made by the army of extravagance, and oh, there's the moral: Don't be extravagant, but go to 919 Main street and let B. O. Whitehead tell you how to save money, whether it's shoes, furnishing goods or hats you want.

Mr. W. J. Lauerwasser, well known to be one of the best furnace men in this section, has engaged with the Maltese Cross. You will work together, and it goes without saying that whatever they do will be perfectly done. Now is a good time to look up the furnace question.

When you come to the best horse for springing the lawn it is the Maltese Cross. You can always get this and Lighter's grades in rubber and cotton hose at Bixby's, 202 Main street.

Injured Man Identified. The man who was picked up by the side of the Milwaukee tracks last Friday recovered consciousness for a few minutes last evening for the first time since he was taken to the Women's Christian association hospital.

He would regain consciousness for a few minutes at a time, almost immediately falling into a deep sleep. During his periods of sensibility he said his name was Harry Ostad and that he had been working for a man named Flynn, when the latter fell or what was his first name he could not tell. He claimed he was not on a train when the accident occurred, but that he was driving a wagon and the team fell or what was his first name he will recover. It is hoped that the name of his employer will aid in his identification.

NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

Judge Deemer's Appointment Warmly Approved by the Citizens.

WELL LIKED BY LAWYERS AND LITIGANTS

His Service on the District Bench for Soundness and Expedition in the Transaction of Business—Was Once a Base Ball Catcher.

The Bee's telegraphic dispatches yesterday contained an account of the appointment of Hon. H. E. Deemer, Republican, to a position on the state supreme bench. The news caused much rejoicing among the friends of Judge Deemer, who number legion in Council Bluffs.

When he was elected he was but 25 years old, and the youngest man on the bench. It was expected at the time that he would have a good deal of trouble in holding down some of the old lawyers, who might not relish practicing before a man so many years their junior.

But if any attorneys tried to play fast and loose with him they were satisfied with one experience, for Judge Deemer, throughout his term and a half of office, has been equal to all demands made upon him. He is possessed of a fine legal intuition and a disposition to work, and these two characteristics have combined to make him one of the ablest and most successful judges on the district bench.

It is interesting to recall the fact that at the time of his election Judge Deemer was catcher for the base ball club of Des Moines. He is still a good ball player, and he is also a good catcher as he can get out with the boys and catch a game that surprises people.

Old Settler Recounts the Pleasures of Traveling Overland.

Kelly's slide on foot has set some of the old settlers to brushing cobwebs off their memories. One of the old settlers of Iowa, who has been there himself, thus recounted his experiences to a newspaper man:

"I walked from Des Moines to Council Bluffs and back in 1853, and I can do it again, if it should be necessary. The spring of 1853 was a wet one. The roads were fearfully muddy. The only public means of conveyance was the stage coach. I called at the stage office on Third street, near where the square is now, and inquired of the agent, Mr. Sears, what the fare was to Council Bluffs. He said $15. I inquired how the stage would reach there, and he said he did not know. I then called on Mr. Johnson, the secretary, and Colonel Hooker, the manager of the Great Western Stage line. I received the same indifferent answer from all of them. People now think that railroad conductors and their ticket agents are independent and indifferent some times, but the independence of the old and early stage coach drivers was far more well drilled in walker's line of travel and being what was called in those days a 'stage driver.' I took my grip sack and started for the Blue River, where I had a dinner at Adel and stayed over night at Irwin, near Redfield. The second day I took a noon train at Squire Morrison's station, where I had a dinner at the depot, that will bear relating. I met the stage coach coming west from Council Bluffs at that point. We all took dinner together and when I inquired of the driver what his bill was he inquired whether I was a stage passenger or a foot passenger. I replied that I was a foot passenger, and he charged me 25 cents. I then inquired of the gentleman, standing near by, 'you charged me 50 cents for my dinner and this man ate three times as much as I did,' to which the driver replied, 'I don't know, but I can't help it. My rule is 50 cents for stage passengers and 25 cents for foot passengers.'"

The second night I stayed at Lewis, then the night at the Maltese Cross. The third day I took dinner at Big Grove station in the western part of Pottawattamie county. It rained very hard that afternoon and I stayed all night. The next morning I ate a hearty breakfast, took a lunch with me for dinner, which I delivered as I trudged along about midday. I arrived at the old Pacific house at 6:30. The next morning I took a stage coach to Council Bluffs. The stage was a good shape, and the stage coach that left Des Moines the same day arrived some time during the night. I returned on walkers' line the same as I went, and the stage came back in five days. Many places the bridges were gone and I had to walk a long distance across over small streams. A fanther creek crossed the bridge some completely broken, and the stringers being left for a foot path. On the opposite side was another foot passenger wishing to cross. We tramped down the stream some distance in hope of finding a log to cross on. Both sides of the creek had good sized trees and at last we found two trees leaning toward each other across the stream. We each borrowed an ax of the nearest neighbor on each side, felled the trees toward each other, and formed a pass. We crossed over, he took my ax home and I took his. On the evening of the fifth day after dark I reached Scott's Bridge, across the Des Moines river. On the east side it was one large body of water from the bridge to the west side of high land where the Miller hotel now stands, could hear the rapping of canoes and skiffs in the distance, but to reach them I had to wade out in the water knee deep. Ekana Fitzwater rowed me over."

This was pointed to by Grimm as a specimen of his prowess as a disciple of Isaac Walton. For a time his story went down, but later in the day it leaked out through one of his companions that it was not Grimm, but Agnew, a fisherman whose name is familiar to sportsmen, who had caught the fish, who was responsible for the cat fish being jerked out of his slimy retreat. The fish cost half a dollar, but that will not spoil its flavor.

Clara's Fork Placers. It is learned from M. W. Parker of Red Lodge that work on the Clara's Fork placers has been going on several weeks. These gold fields, which were discovered last fall all along the bars of Clara's Fork of the Yellowstone, about twenty miles south of the mouth of the Anasconda Standard, and in some cases extend up the streams into the flank mountains. About sixty men are at work and the reports received from the Clara's Fork placers are very flattering. Very little snow falls in the region of these placers and a very long season of work can be had. A large number of those operating the mines are from the vicinity of Butte. Shill boxes are used in the old way. There is an ample supply of water at all seasons and the placer is carried to long distances.

Mr. Potter believes that the mines are good, but says that much more will be known as soon as spring opens and thorough prospecting can be done. An extensive trade is looked for with the opening of spring.

Rich Quartz Lode. Little has been heard lately of the operations of the Gould Co., says the Chronicle. Working steadily and to such good purpose that they have a surprise in store for their friends and the mining world generally.

They have not made a strike or opened a second Independence, but on the Nil Desperandum, in the bottom of a 40-foot shaft, they have opened a vein the full width of the shaft in size, nine-tenths of which is as fine looking quartz as any seen in 100 miles travel. Near the surface this quartz only assayed about $8 per ton, but it is steadily increased in value until now the milling, near the surface, will pay for milling. Near the surface great masses of iron pyrites were encountered, none of which contained values of any moment. An extensive strike of this fast giving place to crystallized quartz and it is not improbable that this vein, owing to its size, will soon become a famous producer.

Ground Hog Gold Mine. In the Grand Hog gold mine, which is by far the largest oxidized quartz property on the Little Colorado, big bodies of red, sulphate and iron pyrites have been disclosed. Some of the ore is so valuable the gold is quoted as per cent instead of ounces. Two of the lessers will ship, but the inclement weather has kept the others from account of being unable to dry their ore, and they will not ship until June, when a shipment will be made from the whole mine, which the Eagle Standard says will throw all former yields in the shade.

The indications of a strike are very flattering in the Little Colorado, also owned by this company, but it is not known if any water was encountered during the week and the rock is becoming mineralized.

Lots of Nuggets. A rich find was made on Wolf creek by Rice & Co., the ore being fine milling and running twenty ounces in gold to the ton. The camp is wild with excitement, says the Denver News. In the Iron Cap lode was found nuggets of gold as large as pin heads and lots of them. The ore is being taken to a car of ore on the dump ready for shipment. There is great need of a good stamp mill in Dubois, and if one was kept in operation it would be kept busy. There is a great amount of ore on the dump that will hardly pay to ship and return from a stamp mill.

Lively Times in Siouxland When Lucie Stalks Abroad.

A LO CINCH ON CIVILIZATION

Blowing Themselves on the Wills and Gains of Modern Civilization—Feasting on the Fat of the Land and Riding in Carriages.

The Indians composing the Sioux nation are so spry and happy and most contented mortals in the country. This state of affairs was brought about by the distribution among them of tens of thousands of dollars in cash by the government. This money was the first regular payment made these Indians for ceding to the government 11,000,000 acres of land a few years ago. As a further payment for the land ceded, the Sioux will also receive during the next year, 100,000 bushels of agricultural implements and thousands of heads of horses, cattle, oxen, etc., for which contracts were awarded at Chicago by Indian Commissioner Browning.

As a result of the recent distribution of cash, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, the towns nearest the Dakota agencies have been filled of late with Indians of all ages and conditions who let no time in exchanging their money for articles of various kinds which, in their opinion, are more valuable to them than money. Although the government furnishes the Indians with practically all the necessities of life, the red man and his family can find many ways of squandering their wealth.

One of the first places visited when they are looking for investments is a clothing store, and after this come boot and shoe and dry goods stores. In these places they can find many articles that attract their attention. Among the articles which they most highly esteem are gingham, calicoes of bright colors and flowered designs, muslin, broad cloth, and other goods. Children's shoes, overalls, beads, and occasionally silks and velvets are purchased for dresses for the squaws.

They are also attracted to the jewelry stores, and the Indian and his usually ignorant wife are very fond of the jewelry of the Sioux nation.

After a visit to town by Indians who have spent only a short time in the city, they are out of cigarettes, and young Indians of less than 10 years of age being as eager to smoke them as their elders. Young men are really very much more aristocratic, and in order to maintain the proper dignity invest their surplus wealth in huggies and double-seated carriages. went completely through the bed of the wagon exactly at the spot where the white man had been standing a moment before. The employe was notified by the incident of the Indian, laughing at his agility in getting out of the wagon before the arrow struck, walked unconcernedly away. The dexterity of the Sioux in the use of the bow and arrow rendered that weapon as dangerous as the Winchester rifle in use among them at the present day. In the past all game was killed with arrows, and the labor of the Indian was kept well replenished by this means.

Now that the government furnishes them with everything that they need, the red man is no longer compelled to depend upon his bow and arrow to keep the wolf from his pen. Accordingly it is doubtful if there is a holdout left on the entire Sioux reservation who is still an expert with the primitive, but effective, weapon of bygone years.

"Shall I Ever Be Strong Again?" Many persons suffering from chronic lack of vigor have neglected this question in vain. They have tried the one sure means of recovery, but they have not tried long for. In a very brief time, if they would but use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, they would find their appetite and sleep renewed and strength revived. The Bitters will also surely remedy dyspepsia, malaria and liver complaint.

Found Red Ochre. Great excitement exists in the discovery of a Sacred Hill on account of the discovery of an immense native mine on the farm of Mr. Helgeson, not far from Reville, Minn., says the Sioux Falls Argus-Leader. Some prospectors were looking for asbestos when they ran onto indications of paint, and upon going down three feet, were very much surprised to find a deposit of the splendid deposit of red ochre. The bed appears to be inexhaustible, and in some parts is from three to fourteen feet deep. Helgeson is a very wealthy man, and is now nearly crazy over the find, as he considers that it will make a rich man of him.

As he has spread to his neighbors, who are neglecting the requirements of the farm to prospect what they heretofore considered worthless land. Every piece of mica that the red man finds is sold for a high price. A chunk of gold, and at once posts off to the nearest "expert," only to have his bright dream of golden wealth shattered by a laugh and the reports received from the valley of the Minnesota has considerable little wealth.

We could not improve the quality if we paid double the price. DeWitt's Witch Hazel is the best salve that experience can produce, or that money can buy.

Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children. Dr. G. C. Osmond, Lowell, Mass. "Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing upon them a soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular product, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it.
