Quarrel in Ranks of the Irish Party Culminates in Open Hostility.

TIM HEALEY DENOUNCED IN DUBLIN

Freeman's Journal Assails Him as a Traitor to the Irish Cause.

M'CARTHY'S LEADERSHIP IN DANGER

Healey's Words Taken as an Indication of Impending Party Upheaval.

SIGNIFICANT GOVERNMENT UTTERANCE

Rosebery Organ Announces that the Liberal Party is Bound in Every Sense to Legislate for Ireland Ahead of All Else.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(New York World Cable Special Telegram.)—The long smoldering quarrel within the ranks of the McCarthy wing of the Irish party developed today into an open denunciation of Timothy Healey by the Dublin Freeman's Journal, which declares that his speech of last night was a flagrant and defiant revolt against majority rule, and in violation of all his pledges and obligations. It is believed now that his speech means an overt effort to wrest the leadership from McCarthy, and that this new internecine war must bring new misfortune to the Irish cause.

Meanwhile the London Daily News, the organ of Rosebery's party, has an important editorial this week on the prospects of home rule. "Ireland," says this doubtless politically inspired writer, "must occupy an important place in the coming session. Ireland has hitherto got nothing from the Parliament of 1892. The liberal party is bound by every consideration of the honor and justice to uphold the Irish policy of Mr. Gladstone, but indeed duty and expediency point the same way. Many men who entered the House of Commons for the first time a half year ago, coldly convinced by dry argument of the necessity for Irish home rule, have been turned by experience into home rulers of a type at once practically enthusiastic. The idea that home rule means dismemberment of the empire has been abandoned to speakers and writers who have neither responsibility nor self-respect. To only questions left are, how it is to be done, and who is to do it? The Irish home rule bill is at the same stage which parliamentary reform has reached after the rejection of Lord Russell's reform bill in 1866."

MAIL CONTRACTS AND POLITICS

The semi-official threat of the Cunard company to transfer its sailings from Liverpool to Southampton has persuaded the postmaster general to concede important points in new contracts for carrying the mail, and railroad companies have at last yielded to the demands of the postmaster general to locate the docks at Liverpool, thus in future avoiding the long drive from the station. Nothing, however, can apparently be devised to prevent transfer by tender from docks, whereas, passengers by the American line go directly aboard the steamer from the train. I can find no ground for the report published here that a daily mail service is proposed. No postmaster general would venture in the present state of public feeling to give a mail contract to a Southampton vessel, since the Liverpool-Queenstown route commands the united parliamentary strength of the Ireland, Scotland and all northwest England.

WALESE WIFE REMAINS ABROAD

The repeated postponement of the return of the Princess of Wales from Russia has caused much curiosity and comment in London society. Three times the princess' equestrian was on the point of starting to escort the princess home, but each time his orders were countermanded at the last moment. For the fourth time a telegram has been received from the princess deferring her journey another three weeks, but Colonel Clark has nevertheless been directed to go to St. Petersburg and wait on her. Since the death of the duke of Clarence the princess has evidenced a desire to spend as little time as possible in England, and has prolonged her various visits abroad to such an extent as to upset seriously court plans.

AT THE MARRIAGE TODAY

Lord Wolverton, who accompanied Lord Dunraven to New York last year, and who is now a member of a syndicate represented by Lord Dunraven which will build the yacht intended to sail for the America's cup this year, was married to Lady Edith Ward, sister of the second earl of Dudley, at the Church of St. Mary the abbot, Kensington, at 2:30 o'clock. There were six young and titled bridesmaids. Lord and Lady Wolverton will spend their honeymoon at the earl of Dudley's seat at Blanford, Dorsetshire, and will afterward start on a yachting trip to the Mediterranean. The presents were numerous, and included a splendid brooch set with diamonds and rubies for the bride, the gift of the prince of Wales. The duke and duchess of York and the duke and duchess of Devon, combined, gave the bride a jeweled lace pin and the duke and duchess of York presented Lord Wolverton with a splendid diamond and tourmaline scarf pin. The prince of Wales, the duke and duchess of Devon and other members of the royal family with the duke and duchess of Athol, duke of Abercorn, the marquis and marchioness of Londonderry, the earl of Chesterfield, the duke of Devonshire, the count and lady Curzon and Baroness Rothschild and other members of the aristocracy were present. Lord Wolverton is a son of Officers Were Unable to Check the Barbaric Rage of the Men After the City Was Once Entered and Horror Followed.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(New York World Cable Special Telegram.)—The denial of the massacre at Port Arthur, called here on the authority of the New York Herald, is made ridiculous by the publication in the London Times this morning of a letter from a special correspondent, whom the Times vouches for as an eye-witness, and who writes: "The Japanese admiral, Count Ito, called on Admiral Freeman and kindly gave permission for the outfit of our fleet to land and go wherever they chose. 'All of the sights were terrible. Chinese heads were lying in the roads, and the bodies were further along. Three dead women were lying together. Numbers of Chinese who were killed were piled up in heaps and covered with matting. All the furniture were looted, and in some cases broken furniture were lying under a heap of broken furniture. The roads were strewn with dead rifles, ammunition, shoes and coats, showing how, in the panic to escape, the Chinese had thrown away everything. 'On the first day of the battle a few Japanese were captured and cut up in pieces and carried about on sticks by Chinese soldiers. This so enraged the Japanese soldiers that the officers had no hold over them, and a hopeless massacre followed. It is estimated that the Japanese lost 2,500 killed, but they probably lost more. The Chinese loss is put at 5,000.' BALLARD SMITH.

GERMAN PRESS IS FEMINISTIC

Not Inclined to Take a Rosetate View of Their Country's Future. BERLIN, Jan. 5.—It is a significant fact that the majority of the New Year's day articles in the newspapers reviewing the political situation were pessimistic in tone, expressing grave doubts regarding Germany's future. For instance, the Reichskote, the conservative organ, deplored Germany's waning influence abroad and wished Prince Bismarck back at the helm again. The Hamburger Nachrichten criticized the colonial and foreign policy of the past year as being vacillating and devoid of vigor. The most sensational article, however, appeared in the Volks Zeitung of Cologne, the main organ of the centrist party, which in the present session of the Reichstag is again a decisive factor. After mentioning the general feeling of uneasiness and uncertainty as to the future, due to it was added to the instability of the governmental machine, the article says: "The main role in all this is played by the individuality of Emperor William II. No doubt he is a highly gifted monarch with the best of intentions, but in his abnormally developed feeling of sovereignty he induces responsible statesmen to disappear more and more from view, more than we have been accustomed to, and he takes the initiative in a field in which the sovereign has hitherto not interfered. At all events, the change of the Reichstag, the higher powers render it difficult to determine with even a reasonable amount of certainty which course at any given time is to be pursued, and induces the belief that the present course will not be adhered to for any length of time."

LATER ON THE ARTICLE SPEAKS OF THE EULENBERG DYNASTY

Count Botho zu Eulenberg planned a coup d'etat and he is probably destined to be the successor of the present chancellor. The opinion is expressed that a constitutional conflict is coming and is unavoidable. These utterances, coming from the leading mouthpieces of the most powerful parliamentary party, are highly significant. Some of the leading Berlin newspapers, notably the Vossische Zeitung and the National Zeitung, speak very bluntly about the autocratic manner in which the emperor had the district around the royal castle blocked against all traffic during the court ceremonies on New Year's day. PLAIN TALK TO THE EMPEROR. The National Zeitung, commenting upon this, remarks: "The emperor has long belonged to the Berlin people. This principle was recognized by the police during the time of William I, and it is time that this principle should again be recognized."

RESPECTING THE ALLEGED UTTERANCES OF EMPEROR WILLIAM ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

The Schlesische Zeitung today declares authoritatively that the emperor had not delivered a political speech in "pure intention," adding: "He did not make the slightest reference to politics, his few words relating solely to military matters."

THE CORDIAL MANNER IN WHICH EMPEROR WILLIAM GREETED UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR RUYMON AT THE RECEPTION OF THE DIPLOMAT

was generally remarked. His majesty warmly shook hands with Mr. Ruymon and returned felicitations of the day in the purest English on behalf of himself and the whole country, coupling these expressions with wishes for the continued welfare of the great transatlantic republic. Emperor William, on New Year's eve, received a visit from Prince Hohenlohe, and it is understood that they discussed the south German situation, the approaching visit of Prince Hohenlohe to Prince Bismarck at Friedrichsruhe and the measures to be taken in order to pass the anti-revolutionary bill through the Reichstag. The visit of the chancellor to Prince Bismarck is to be a mere act of courtesy with no bearing upon the political course of the government. The visit will be a concession to the admirers of the fallen statesman and to popular feeling generally. In connection with the anti-revolutionary bill, the Vorwaerts, the organ of the socialists, which has become notorious for obtaining and publishing secret documents, on Thursday last published a circular marked "confidential," issued by the government presidents of the provinces to the police and civil authorities instructing them to suppress,

HUNDRED IN A HUNT

O'Neill Citizens Volunteer to Search the Ground for Barrett Scott's Body.

DECISION REACHED AT A MASS MEETING

Public Sentiment Voiced at a Gathering Called by Sheriff Hamilton.

SYSTEMATIC EFFORT IS DECIDED UPON

Squads Will Go Over All the Ground Between Parker and the River.

DAY BRINGS FORTH LITTLE NEW

Mullihan Released on Bail and to Have a Hearing Monday—Farmers Eager for Information Through the Town—Akin's Ideas.

O'NEILL, Jan. 5.—(Special Telegram.)

Another effort will be made tomorrow to find some trace of the body of Barrett Scott. A searching party of fully 100 men will leave the court house square at 6 o'clock. They will arrive at Parker at daybreak, and before they return every foot of ground between Parker and the Niobrara river will have been carefully scrutinized. This measure was decided on at a mass meeting of citizens, which was held at the court house this evening. The meeting was called by Sheriff Hamilton, and more than 300 citizens responded. The sheriff presided, and briefly recounted the steps which he had previously taken in the case. He added that he had done all that any man could do, and now wished all citizens who had at heart the welfare of their county and state to join with him in solving the mystery of a crime that was declared by all. He suggested that it had been repeatedly declared by men who were familiar with the country that the body of the murdered man had not been taken as far as the river, but was still concealed in one of the intervening gulches. Acting on this theory, he considered it advisable to make a thorough search of the country, and called for volunteers. Fully 100 men rose to their feet, among whom were many of the leading citizens of O'Neill. There was some difference of opinion as to the best time to start, some of the volunteers desiring for an immediate departure. The hour was finally set at 6 o'clock. WILL SEARCH IN SQUADS. The men will all be assembled on the court house square. They will be divided into four to six squads, and each squad will select a leader. It is planned to divide the forces by townships. Each township is six miles square, and it is believed that if a man is detailed for each township he can be located and the river search can be completed in one day. It is worthy of mention that James Pinkerman, one of the men arrested on a charge of participating in the shooting, was among the volunteers. It is anticipated that he may be induced to tell a few things before he returns to civilization. Another of the volunteers is L. F. Roy, the old farmer whose son is also implicated. He spoke vigorously in favor of bringing the perpetrators of the crime to justice, wherever they might be, and his loyalty to his dead friend was greeted by a volley of applause. There was only one sensational feature to the meeting. R. J. Hayes, a populist, who was appointed to succeed Scott as county treasurer at the time when the latter was removed from office, offered a resolution denouncing the press in general, and particularly the outrage, he said, of Sheriff McEvoy. This touched the key note, and with a rousing cheer the resolution was tabled. LITTLE NEWS IS LEARNED. The day has been an unfruitful one as far as developments are concerned. No scouting parties have been out, and no additional arrests have been made. Several persons are under surveillance, but it is not expected that they will be arrested at present. There has been the usual Saturday influx of farmers, and most of them were inquiring for the latest news in the case. Among them was Johnny McAllister, a young horse raiser, who lives about three miles west of Parker. He claims to have heard the shooting, and to have seen the vigilantes as they started toward the river. He was looking for a stray horse Monday afternoon, and between 2 and 3 o'clock was about a mile east of Parker. He heard a succession of shots and saw a thin line of smoke rising out of the divide. He galloped toward the place, and arrived just in time to see the outfit turning up the draw. He says that there were more than twenty shots fired. He also saw half a dozen men at the road house Sunday, but when he started to approach them they wheeled and got out of sight. His partner, John Reid, also claims to have seen the outfit as they passed the ranch, three miles away. Their description of the vehicle and of the men under protest and arrest is quiet. The sheriff has been requested to offer an additional reward of at least $1,000. MULLIHAN IS OUT ON BAIL. George D. Mullihan, the alleged leader of the lynchers of Barrett Scott, was taken before Justice Wagers this morning and filed an affidavit that he could not obtain a fair and impartial hearing in that court owing to the bias and prejudice of the justice. He took a change to Justice Costello and was allowed to bail this afternoon upon $500 bond, to appear for a preliminary hearing next Monday. This has been agreed upon by the attorneys on both sides. Dell Akin, in an interview with a reporter this morning, said that he had the names of two more of the mob, and that they would probably be arrested this afternoon or tonight. Diligent inquiry failed to ascertain whether any officer had gone to make any arrests today. It is asserted by Ever since Cunningham R. Scott has been on the bench he has been exhibiting an uncompromising enmity of the gambler. He has delivered lectures from the bench upon the evils of gambling, and for a time it was understood among the criminal classes that the easiest way to escape punishment for crime was to tell Scott that they had lost their money at gambling and had resorted to forgery or other crimes as a result of their hard luck in losing the tiger. Scott would usually deliver himself of a tirade against gambling, and up by letting the prisoner go or by giving him a light sentence, and expressing his regret that it was not a gambler or a city official who was before him for sentence.

REFUSED TO DELIVER HAMPTON.

Colored Man Will Not Be Returned to Kentucky Unless Guaranteed Protection. CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 5.—Judge Buckwalter today delivered a sharp opinion in the case of the extradition of Rev. A. S. Hampton, colored, demanded by Kentucky for shooting and wounding a Mr. Dunham in Brown county. When Hampton was first brought to court the court had refused to deliver him until he had assurance from the governor of Kentucky and from the judge of the trial court that he would be protected from violence, and that he would be given a fair trial. The court said no such assurance had been received. He found both the indictment and the requisition defective in form, but on the broader ground of securing the rights of the prisoner, the court held that he was justified in refusing to surrender Hampton. The presumption that he would die without legal process if sent back had not been rebutted by any of the kind. The court said statistics of nineteen lynchings in Kentucky within a short time and recalled the fact that one of the victims had been surrendered to the state by the governor, and that the obligation to perform a moral duty in this case, which could not be enforced by mandamus or other proceedings. He was willing to remain the prisoner upon proper ground of securing the rights of the prisoner, or other authorities had provided a force to protect him from violence and insure an impartial trial. This had not been done and the court refused to discharge the prisoner. So much interest was taken in the case that other judges left their benches to listen to the delivery of the court's decision.

ADVICES BY A LONDON PROFESSOR FROM FRIENDS IN THAT COUNTRY.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Prof. Minna Teheras, editor of the Armenia and professor of Armenian at the University of London, has received the following advice from Armenian sources: "Zekki Pasha, commander of the Fourth army corps, has had given to him by the sultan the medal of Ismailiyyeh, a Kurdish brigand led by Bogahezer, ordered an Armenian named Apar to be killed for protesting against his misdeeds. 'The Kurds have assassinated two Armenians at Daghevan, one at Armiton and another at Keuchar. 'The number of men, women and children who were cut down by sabres or bayoneted eleven villages of the Sassan district was 750. 'It is now proven that the people from the Sassan district, who during the retreat to Mount Andoka fought bravely for nineteen days, and who gave themselves up to the enemy on August 27, were deceived by the proclamation of Zekki Pasha, promising them amnesty. The Turks assaulted the women and starved and tortured them for three days. Sixty young men were finally killed by the sword, and their bodies were thrown into a well. The villages of Shenk and Giegiouzan have been burned to ashes, with their four churches. Khakho, mayor of Agpbi, his brother, Hebo, their sons, a priest named Gabriel Houch, and the Archimandrite Dabab of Shenk and five companions, the mayor of the village of Geigomovselen and numbers of mountaineers have been killed. Over a thousand have been wounded and 250 prisoners have been taken. 'The Turks blinded Priest Ohannes of Semal and made him dance.
