

CAMPOS RECEIVES A MESSAGE

Important Communication Handed the Spanish Commander in Cuba.

FIGHT AT MALTIEMPO WAS BLOODY

Loss on Both Sides Heavy, but the Insurgents' Casualties are Only Guesses At—Macao Nearing Havana Daily.

(Copyright, 1903, by Press Publishing Company.) HAVANA, Dec. 17.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—A highly important dispatch addressed to Captain General Campos, from the Madrid government, was received here today. Its publication is not permitted. It may be said, however, that the broadest comprehensive view of Campos and his tremendous power project in Spain, as they do among the Spaniards resident in Cuba.

Maximo Gomez remained in quiet for a brief period after reaching the Segura valley. He moved out by the northern entrance of the valley on Saturday night at the head of a force said to number 6,000 men. He passed in a northwest direction toward Las Cruces, proceeding in two columns. One column approached the Homogeneous sugar estate on the railway between Cienfuegos and Santa Clara. The other went over the road leading toward Las Cruces. At a point known as Maltiempo, between Rash and Las Cruces, the insurgent advance struck a small column of Spaniards, consisting of the Canary Islands battalion, four companies strong, under the command of a lieutenant colonel. This was on Sunday morning. An engagement followed, in which the Spaniards bore the brunt of a sharp attack, during which the 300 Spaniards engaged suffered considerably with Maximo Gomez.

FORCED MARCH SAVES THE DAY.

Colonel Arizon, with 200 men, by a forced march, reached the scene of action and probably saved the day. The rebels retired in the direction of Camarcas, which is a small stopping place on the railway, near Las Cruces. The Spanish loss was two officers and thirty soldiers killed and four officers and forty soldiers wounded. The large number of casualties in proportion to the force engaged indicates the severity of the action, nearly one-third of the Spaniards being struck down.

Colonel Arizon sent the wounded to Las Cruces and pressed on after the rebels, who crossed the railway, moving in the direction of Ciego Montero, which is six miles west of Las Cruces, near Las Lajas. The official account of the fight states that a heavy loss was inflicted upon the rebels, which is probable, as the soldiers were armed with Mausers. It also states that nearly 6,000 troops were opposed for a time to the 500 comprised in the Spanish detachment after its reinforcement. Colonel Arizon is a distinguished cavalry officer and one of the handsomest men in the army.

Proceeding towards Melones, the insurgents left a retreat route and a major died on the field. There was also an interchange of shots on the Domingo estate. The loss on either side is unknown. The property belongs to an American named Powell.

The rebels took up a rail on the line between Cienfuegos and Las Cruces, near Domingo, wrecked a plot engine and injured some persons who were on the tender. Hugh Maguire, the new consul of the United States at Cienfuegos, was stopped on his way and was unable to reach his destination.

REBEL ARMY SEEN GOING WEST.

A report from Las Lajas says that the rebels passed within thirty miles of Cienfuegos. It is also stated that they evidently strike the province of Matanzas near Havana and Santiago. The official report does not mention any of the above. Other accounts state that Macao has handed with him.

It will be observed that the situation looks more and more serious. Maximo Gomez has come with his followers into Santa Clara. These have been all along the best aggressive material in the rebel army. The rebels feel that the situation will assume an arrogant air toward the whites.

Campos left Cienfuegos yesterday by boat to Matanzas and by special train today for Cienfuegos, a central point in Matanzas. Tonight it is reported that Gomez has advanced into Matanzas. Great activity is displayed by troops in that direction.

LIWA SOLDIERS' CRUELTY.

FEDERATION OF LABOR ADJOURNS.

Adopts a Resolution Against Participating in Party Politics.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The Federation of Labor adjourned sine die this afternoon, and many of the delegates have left for their homes. At today's session a proposition to form a national organization of unskilled labor was adopted by the convention.

Delegate O'Sullivan presented the following resolution, which was carried by a vote of 149 to 133:

"Resolved, That this convention declares that party politics, whether democratic, republican, socialist, populist or any other organization, should have no place in the Federation of Labor."

A resolution endorsing the struggles of the Cuban patriots for liberty, and resolutions on the death of ex-Senator Allen G. Thurman, were adopted. Recess was then taken, after which the convention went into executive session to consider the report of the grievance committee. The matters considered were of a routine nature.

The question of electing two fraternal delegates to the British trade union congress to be held in London on September 3, 1896, was then taken up.

John McBride, the retiring president, was elected one of the delegates by acclamation. The other was nominated by the fraternal delegate. They were: Adolph Strauss of the Clear Makers' union and J. W. Sullivan of the Typographical union. Strauss was elected and Sullivan was made alternate.

STATE RESTS IN THE HEARNE CASE.

SOME SENSATIONS EXPECTED WHEN THE DEFENSE OPENS UP.

BOWLING GREEN, Mo., Dec. 17.—Among the large number of witnesses examined at the Hearne murder trial today were several that had already been on the stand. T. B. Morrison, editor of the Courier-Post at Hannibal, testified to a conversation with Dr. Hearne over an article in a Chicago paper that connected the latter with the murder.

The state rested its case this afternoon, and the trend of the defense was outlined in the opening address of Mr. Bell, one of the counsel for the Hearne. Tomorrow the defense will begin the examination of its witnesses, and it is the opinion of those well posted, that the most interesting portion of the remarkable trial will then be unfolded.

PASSENGERS GET A BAD SCARE.

Immense Wave Breaks Over a Big Ocean Liner.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The steamer La Champagne, from Havre, arrived today after an exceptionally stormy trip. On Sunday, the 8th, at 7:30 during a violent gale, a heavy wave swept over the port side of the vessel fore and aft. The solid wave broke on the hurricane deck just about the bridge, sweeping everything before it. The three large lifeboats were lifted in the air and their chocks and carried along the deck aft and badly smashed. The water reached the companion door leading to the main deck and poured into the saloons and library, breaking the heavy mahogany saloon staircase.

The hurricane deck ventilators were carried away and through the apertures the water poured into the saloons and down into the state room section. The sleeping passengers were awakened by the rush of water, which deluged many of their rooms, and to add to their excitement the electrical lighting plant gave out for several minutes, leaving the ship in total darkness. The officers finally allayed the fears of the passengers and no one was injured. The vessel carried over 400 passengers.

SHIP UTTERLY DESTROYED AND ALL BUT SIX OF THE CREW KILLED.

Ship Utterly Destroyed and All but Six of the Crew Killed.

FOURTEEN OF THE MEN ARE MISSING

Ship Was Damaged by the Storm and Another Vessel Was Coming to Its Rescue When the Accident Happened.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—Intelligence reached here tonight that on Sunday the German ship Athena, from New York to London, with a cargo of naphtha, exploded off Cape May. Fourteen lives were lost, including the captain. The first and second mates and four of the crew were rescued by the British ship Tafna and brought to this port.

The awful accident was due to an explosion of the ship's cargo of naphtha and nitro-glycerine. The explosion occurred while the Athena was lying in a helpless condition at sea off Cape May, N. J.

The following is a list of the men lost: Captain M. Haak, George Kenke, cook; Fritz Nehring, Hans Roening; John Spencer, John Anderson, Johann Voght, H. Wahlen, Saitmeyer, Holtz, seaman; Hans Ammann, Wilhelm Heintze, Bernard Decker, apprentice, and two cabin boys, names unknown.

Those saved: Alex Franzel, first mate; John F. Reese, second mate; William Mueller, steward; John Rudelt, Martin Phillips, George Schroeder, seaman.

The Athena left New York for Bremen December 10 with a cargo of naphtha in barrels and several hundred cases of nitro-glycerine. She experienced severe weather until Friday. On that day she had all her masts carried away and sprung a leak. Her bow sank down into the water and the vessel merged up to where her foremast had been.

On Saturday the Tafna was sighted. Distress signals were hoisted, but on account of the heavy sea the British doctor could not get near her. The Tafna signaled that she would stand by until Sunday morning about 5 o'clock the Tafna approached the Athena, and when within a few miles the flames were seen to shoot out of the center of the deck and the port hole at the stern.

A terrific explosion followed, and instantly every man on board was hurled in every direction. The explosion was so powerful that it is believed that the ship was either thrown or jumped into the sea water.

The Tafna put out boats to rescue them, but they were only able to pick up six. It is supposed the remaining fourteen were injured by the explosion or numbed by the cold water that they were unable to battle with. The heavy sea which was running at the time, the Tafna says, was so bad that she was unable to continue her voyage. The only theory that can be advanced for the explosion is that the side of the vessel was sprung during the heavy weather and that the naphtha and explosive oil rubbing together caused a spark which ignited their contents.

The Athena was owned by Auerbach & Roschick of Bremen. She was registered and was formerly an American vessel.

TRIED TO TELL THE TRUTH.

Experience of a Man Who Wanted to Lead a Better Life.

A Houston man who attended a great many of Sunday sermons was particularly impressed with his dramatic and practical sermons and lies of all kinds, white, variegated and black.

So strongly was he affected, and in such fertile ground did the seed sown by the great evangelist fall, says the Houston Post, that the Houston man, who had been accustomed to occasionally evade the truth, determined one morning that he would turn over a new leaf and tell the truth in his life.

So he commenced the day by scolding to speak even a word that did not follow the exact truth for a model. At breakfast his wife said: "How are the biscuit, Henry?"

"Rather heavy," he answered, "and about half done."

He then flounced out of the dining room, and he ate breakfast with the children. Ordinarily Henry would have said: "They are very fine, my dear," and all would have been well. As he went out at breakfast he saw his aunt, with whom he had always been a favorite, drove up. She was curled and stayed and powdered to look as young as possible.

"How are the children?" she inquired, "and the children?" I would come in, but I'm looking such a fright today I'm not fit to be seen."

"Yes," said Henry, "you do. It's a good thing your horse has a blind bridle on, for if he got a sight of you he'd run away and break your neck."

The aunt glared at him and drove away without saying a word.

Henry figured it up afterward, and found that every word he said to her cost him $100.00.

Exploring a Mexican Island Inhabited by Indians. W. H. Ymas Presents

To prepare for Christmas in a big store like this, is as difficult as rigging a ship from jib to cargo.

Here is a special buyer, ransacking every nook and brook in the markets, bidding on anything and everything worthy of our reputation working like a Trojan to buy things cheaply, taxing brain and wit to accomplish more than the next. But the results are gratifying, and as Shakespeare quoted "labour is ever rewarded."

Step into our store today and you'll be astonished at what we are selling for holiday use—Christmas presents—by the load—suitable to dignity and pride for small change, so to speak. Some things at even scarcely half of their real value—For instance,

Satin Suspensives—embroidered—at 25c; worth 75c.

Embroidered Satin Suspensives in single glass box, 50c; worth $1.00

3 assorted Handkerchiefs for 25c, fully worth 50c.

All linen bordered Handkerchiefs 15c; worth 25c.

Satin Mufflers, brocaded, 75c, worth at least $1.25.

Satin Mufflers, hand worked, $1.00, worth $1.75 at least.

Silk Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, quite large, 25c; worth 50c.

Silk handkerchiefs, hemstitched, white or black, 45c; worth 75c.

Silk handkerchiefs, flowered, for ladies or gents, 50c; worth $1.00.

At least 100 dozen ties at 15c; worth 25c and more.

150 dozen lovely $1.25 and $1.00 ties—your choice, 45c.

Elegant Mocha dress gloves at 75c; others charge $1.00 to $1.25.

4-ply linen bosom shirts—double front and back, 50c.

Is it not surprisingly less? And how about other things and their prices? Nothing—really nothing—is sold here without a saving margin. You'll say so, too, when you come here.

All kinds of gloves and mittens—nightrobes—collars and cuffs—jewelry—suspensives—even underwear is considered by some a sensible and useful Christmas present.

A show window fronting Douglas street contains all things suggestive for a sensible present. Goods and prices are displayed together. All you have to do is the picking.

THE FEMININE SCRIPTURE.

A SURVIVING DON.

Miss Anthony on Equal Rights for Women Translators.

A reporter of the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat called at the home of Miss Susan B. Anthony to ask for her views on the new woman's bible, the first volume of which has recently made its appearance.

"Did you have anything to do with the new bible, Miss Anthony?" was asked.

"No, I did not contribute to it, though I know of its preparation and the reason for it. My own relation to it is that I have always been peculiar, owing to my Quaker training, but I don't know that I can explain just what I mean. The Quakers consider the book as historical, made up of traditions, handed down from the ages of the past, but not as inspired by God. Of course, people say these women are impious, presumptuous, and all sorts of things for daring to interpret the bible as they themselves see it. But I think the women have just as good a right to translate and write the bible to their own advantage as the men have to twist and turn it to their advantage, and they have done always. But now that these women have dared to do what the men have always done, they are called impious. Originally the translators were men, but when the time came they did not put in an appearance, and so only the opinions of the radical women were published. The idea that Mrs. Stanton or any other of the women expected to translate or write a new bible for women's use is absurd. They have simply taken the Portuguese and revised such passages as refer to women, and written their commentaries upon them."

"Why have they not a good right to do the same thing? In 1888 the bible was revised, and it is from this revised edition that the women have taken their bible. It is not a student or investigator, nor do I philosophize. I deal only in facts and work for the freedom of women. The bible is written by men, and it is the duty of men to interpret it. I do not expect to see any other white men in this country nor of his own race, and their number is undoubtedly increasing in Omaha if we may look to the box office receipts. The man rose up, his face twice, coughed slightly, and said softly:

"Ah, indeed. By the way, that little note for $500 falls due today. I shall expect it by 10 o'clock. Good morning."

Henry looked rather preoccupied as he went on down the street and a little further on he suddenly turned into a saloon and took his drinks, one after another.

After he got to the store, a drummer came in to sell goods.

Henry's partner selected a lot they needed, and gave a pretty stiff order.

The drummer was pleased, and said to Henry joyously: "Well, we will give you the usual three months. I guess you are all right for the present."

"We are devilish hard up," said Henry. "My partner keeps a trotter and lives beyond his means, and my wife is fearfully extravagant. We may be able to hold up and we may not."

The drummer refused the order and went out, and Henry's partner stuck a bunch of bills into his pocket and pleaded with him to come out in the back yard. Henry went out and took six more drinks.

Later on a customer came in and Henry showed him some goods. He orders them sent to his house, when Henry said: "Those goods are some old stock we bought at auction, and not fit to use. We are charging you 10 per cent more than we would have charged anywhere else. Shall I send them up?"

"You can take them 'round to the lunatic asylum," said the customer, "and wait there till I can get my goods. I'll be back and I'll give you anywhere for a purse of 15 cents if you'll come out."

Henry went out and bought four more drinks and felt better.

About half an hour later Henry's partner called at the store to get him to contribute toward the San Jones token of appreciation. Henry sat up under the counter and yelled at him. His coat was ripped down the back; he had one eye blacked and the other covered with white powder. "Whazzar mazzar?" he asked.

"My dear brother," said the preacher, "I am astonished to see you thus. Are you ill?"

"You know Ananias," yelled Henry. "He's a braver man. I'm stuck in a state of Texas. Swear to golly I'll never let my ass hang long 'live. Hope Lord'll strike me 'til I git into 'er ever make a statement again 'til I can't prove to be a liar. I'm 30 years old 'n I saw a serpent in bayou long 'er railroad. 'Rah F' Tom Ochiltree. Hope 'er drop dead. I ever open mouth again without tellin' a lie. What?"

Henry retired under the counter again, and the preacher went away badly shocked, and but it's a hard thing to do. Try it yourself some time.
