All Eyes Are Again Turned Toward the Dardanelles.

FLYING SQUADRON IS NOT FOR AFRICA

Startling Report to the Effect that England and Russia Will Combine in a Demonstration Against the Sultan of Turkey.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—While the destination of the flying squadron which is to be ready for sea tomorrow and which is to be ready Friday is not yet officially announced it is generally believed that its destination is the Mediterranean.

The Manchester Guardian, commenting on the British naval preparations, says that considerable evidence is attached to the story that the flying squadron is more likely to go to the Dardanelles than to Delagoa bay, adding:

“Empress William’s message came at just the right time to give the ministers an excuse for making preparations really intended to back their new policy, which will end the Armenian horrors and bring the sultan to his senses. The latest rumor points to a land invasion by Russia and a naval demonstration at Constantinople by Great Britain and France.”

WAITING DEVELOPMENTS.

The political crisis has reached a stage when “further developments” must be awaited before the general public can form a definite idea of how the wind is blowing.

The uncertainty prevailing in usually well informed quarters is well illustrated by the fact that today when the Standard says “The German emperor is expected to be to the Transvaal” the Times expresses the opinion that “All the signs and the Transvaal, with or without Dr. Jameson, merely a question of time, still remain unsettled.”

Andree, asking the co-operation of the countries whose territories have been crossed on the polar seas, and they have also asked the United States to distribute thousands of leaflets containing information from any one who may chance to see it of the time the balloon is seen and the direction of the wind at the time. Prof. Andree has given many years study and experiment to this subject and has become an expert balloonist himself. He read a paper on the subject at the geographical congress in London last summer, but he received little encouragement from the English and distinguished though rather conservative scientific society. However, the Swedish Academy of Science and the Swedish Society of Antiquaries and Geology have been named Prof. Andree's plan and promised to bear a share of the expense. PARIS, Jan. 13.—The Figaro says that the only reason the emperor of Germany was generally sensitive to criticism, mainly because of the position which he occupies in the face of the attacks of the English press is that he was not in a position to do more than send a telegram expressing his sentiments on the Transvaal question, showing that in his eyes the knowledge of the fact that he would be no longer in his favor. The Figaro adds: “France will not depart from the position which has made her alone the arbiter of the peace between England and Germany.”

SUGAR CANE BURNING IS AT AN END

Gomez Announces that Plantations Will Not Be Molested if the Planters Do Not Try to Make Sugar.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 13.—(New York.)—Charles A. Solomon, who claimed to be a correspondent of the New York Journal when he was arrested on arrival here yesterday on suspicion of being an agent of the Cuban junta in the United States, was liberated today and sent back to New York on the steamer Saratoga. This action of the Spanish authorities was purely voluntary and was intended to indicate the friendly disposition of the government toward the United States. Consul General Williams had a brief consultation with General Campos, in which the latter, before any request was made by Mr. Williams, offered to send the young man off the island, notwithstanding his offense, of which there was no doubt. Solomon might legally have been severely punished.

WHEREABOUTS OF GOMEZ. My last night's despatch was incorrect in certain particulars. Relying upon simple official intelligence, I reported that Gomez was proceeding east toward Matanzas province, and that it was impossible to obtain further news in that direction. After Gomez crossed the columns of General Aldaco and Colonel Galbis last Saturday, he swung about in a circle, going first south as far as Guayma, Havana, and then in the direction of Guira and Gabriel. The meeting occurred between Mirosa and San Augustin sugar estates, which are located in the province of Pinar del Rio. Gomez's people had six sport running locomotives together at full speed. John Simpson, civil engineer of this company, witnessed this. He visited Gomez's headquarters at a sugar plantation nearby, and found nothing to indicate that it was purely an English concern, and urged Gomez not to burn the property. Gomez replied that Spanish troops were being transported to the island, and that the line of policy which he must inflexibly follow.

LAUGHED AT THE STORIES.

Simpson mentioned to Gomez the sensational reports circulated in the United States concerning the burning of the sugar estates. Gomez laughed and said: “Do they think me a fool? I never thought of such a thing.”
