HOLDS WITH THE COUNTY

Important Precedent Established for the Suits Against Ex-Sheriffs. SHERIFF MUST PAY FEES INTO COURT. While Acting as a Receiver He is Entitled to No Perquisites, the Law Intending to Prohibit It.

Judge Slabaugh made a ruling yesterday on a demurrer which establishes a most important precedent on a question which has been in dispute between the county and the several ex-sheriffs against whom suits have been commenced for the recovery of money alleged to have been collected by these ex-officials over and above the amounts to which they were entitled.

The case at bar was that of the county of Douglas against ex-Sheriff John C. Drexel and his bondsmen, the suit being brought to recover the sum of $326 alleged to have been collected by the sheriff as fees while acting as receiver in several specified cases.

This suit is one of a number of cases started against ex-officials, in which Judge A. N. Ferguson was retained as special attorney for the county.

The defendants in this case demurred to the petition of the county on the ground that these fees had been collected by Drexel as receiver, acting under appointment of the court, and not as sheriff, and that the county was not entitled to the fees so collected.

This demurrer was argued before Judge Slabaugh last Saturday, the attorney for the county contending that Drexel was sheriff at the time he was designated by the court to act in the capacity of receiver and that he had so acted by virtue of the fact that he was sheriff, with his powers extended by the designation of the court. It was denied that he had acted as receiver independent of the county board, and it was shown that the statutes provided that the sheriff should receive no compensation aside from the salary fixed by the statute and the amount allowed to county by the commissioners for clerk hire, deputies, etc.

In passing upon the demurrer yesterday Judge Slabaugh sustained the position of the county in the matter and quoted a large number of decisions of the Nebraska and other supreme courts in support of this position. The court said that the statutes to show that it was especially provided that the sheriff, when designated by the court to act as such, "shall have the powers" of a receiver, and also another section prescribing the salary and allowances of the sheriff, the latter to be fixed by the county board, and that the sheriff is to receive the salary of the sheriff and not the salary of the receiver as provided by the statute and the amount allowed to county by the commissioners for clerk hire, deputies, etc.

Estabrook Says World-Herald Must Have The Bee's News or Fall. The arguments in the injunction case brought by The Bee Publishing Company against the Associated Press to enjoin the latter from delivering its news report to the World-Herald were continued before Judge Keyser yesterday. Henry D. Estabrook, formerly of Omaha, but now of Chicago, appeared first as the representative of the Associated Press. He said that the only contention of the attorneys for The Bee Publishing company was that the Associated Press was seeking to break its contract. Under the terms of that contract, he said, the Associated Press agreed to supply The Bee with its news service for so much money per week and to furnish such news service to no other paper within a certain described territory. Mr. Estabrook said that, reduced to its simplest expression, the present case was simply a suit to enjoin the breach of a contract. He asserted that the contract should be broken because it violated the public interest. The Associated Press declared to be a monopoly. It was the only agency of any strength engaged in the business of furnishing news and the World-Herald could not exist a week longer unless it could receive that news service. He quoted from decisions of state and federal courts to sustain his contention that the Associated Press was an organization formed for the benefit of the public and that as such it had no right to discriminate against one part of the public and in favor of another. He also referred to the Nebraska statutes, which provide that any press association engaged in furnishing news to papers in this state shall furnish such news to all papers in the state willing to pay the same price for the service.

Turning to another branch of the case, Mr. Estabrook alleged that the contract between the county and the Associated Press, which the Bee was not able to fulfill its part of the contract provided that The Bee should furnish the news from its territory to the Associated Press. The Bee could not, from the very nature of the situation, gather all the news within a radius of sixty miles of Omaha and furnish it to the Associated Press, consequently the Associated Press should not be held to its part of the contract.

Taking up still another feature, Mr. Estabrook said that The Bee had no right to demand that the Associated Press should furnish it with news from its territory. He said that the Associated Press was a monopoly and that it was the only agency of any strength engaged in the business of furnishing news and the World-Herald could not exist a week longer unless it could receive that news service. He quoted from decisions of state and federal courts to sustain his contention that the Associated Press was an organization formed for the benefit of the public and that as such it had no right to discriminate against one part of the public and in favor of another. He also referred to the Nebraska statutes, which provide that any press association engaged in furnishing news to papers in this state shall furnish such news to all papers in the state willing to pay the same price for the service.

UNION PACIFIC VIADUCT

Files Being Driven to Support the Heavy Iron Construction. BEING BUILT OVER FOURTEENTH STREET. Bridge of Iron and Steel, When Complete, Will Be Capable of Carrying Eight Railroad Tracks.

The vicinity about Fourteenth and Mason streets presents a busy scene these days, the work of constructing the new steel viaduct across Fourteenth street at that point being vigorously pushed forward by the Union Pacific. About thirty men are at work under Contractor James Saquin, and as the work advances more men will probably be put on. It will be well along in August before all the iron work is in place and the viaduct ready for the finishing touches.

At present the work is principally in driving great piles down into the street, half way across the width of the street. The viaduct will rest upon two abutments of stone and concrete, one on the east and one on the west side of the street, and will be additionally supported by a row of iron piles in the middle of the street. The piling for the support of the eastern abutment is all driven, and upon it now rests a solid structure of stone and concrete, ready for the iron work to be placed upon it. The driving of piles in the middle of the street will be completed today, and the iron piles will rest, will be begun tomorrow.

On the west side of the street workers and several teams are engaged in digging out preparatory to the work of the big pile driver. The work of excavating for the piling in the middle of the street will be finished in another week, and then the heavy machine that forces piles down into the ground will be moved to the west side of the street. When the concrete work across the middle of the street is complete the iron work will be placed in position.

All of the iron and steel work is being manufactured by the Penney Iron works, near Philadelphia, and is about finished. It is now thought that the foundations will be ready to erect by the middle of June and possibly by the first of the month. The work of putting in the bridge proper and of concreting the space above the extent of piling will take until the latter part of August. As stated in the publication of the preliminary plans, the appearance on top of the viaduct, when the structure is completed, will resemble a railroad yard. The space between the eight tracks will be filled in solidly with concrete and the floor will be as firm as that of a yard.

The Burlington company has not yet commenced work on its viaduct over Fourteenth street. The viaduct of this company will not be nearly so large as that of the Union Pacific, it being necessary to carry only two tracks across the street instead of eight. The Burlington will build later in the summer, it is announced, and will have its viaduct completed soon after the Union Pacific structure is finished. With the completion of both of these steel bridges and viaducts to the community will be removed and travel across the street made much easier.

CHEAP RATES FOR ENDEAVOURERS. Roads Fix Prices on Tickets to San Francisco Meet. All arrangements for the sale of tickets to San Francisco next July on the occasion of the Christian Endeavor convention at greatly reduced rates have been completed by the western roads. The dates for the sale of tickets have just been agreed upon. The tickets will be sold on the following dates only: June 29 and 30, July 1, 2 and 3. Every one who will take advantage of a cheap ticket must reach San Francisco by July 9.

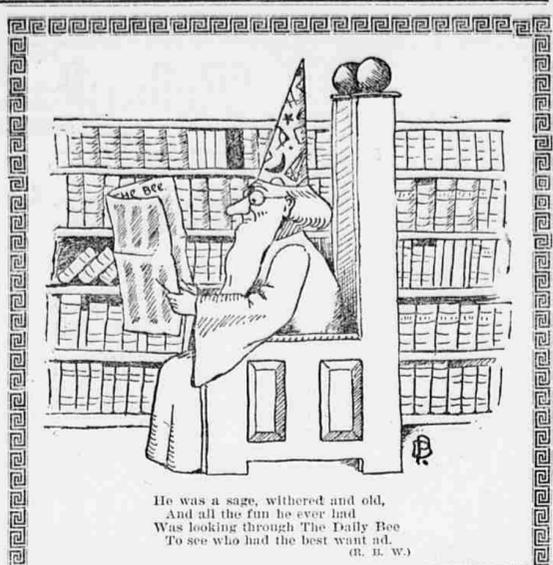

The turn tickets, there being no excursion tickets whatever, will be sold at San Francisco from July 12-17 inclusive, and on Mondays and Thursdays thereafter, as follows: July 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, and 31. As previously announced, the rate one way from Omaha to San Francisco will be the same rate prevailing for the return trip.

Reservoirs for the Elkhorn. Railroad graders, with all the equipment essential to such work, have gone from Casper, Wyo., to the interior of the section to build a number of reservoirs for the Elkhorn railway. They go first to the head of Castle creek, forty miles north, and construct a large dam that will hold a large body of water. Another one will be built at Marshall gulch, twenty miles from the Shoshone Indian mission. One and perhaps two more between and will be built near the new town of Walton.

Burlington's New Time Card. A new time card of the Union depot was issued Sunday. The Burlington's morning train from Chicago now arrives at 7:55 a. m., instead of 8. The Burlington's morning train for Chicago now departs at 9:45 a. m., instead of 10. The morning train No. 9 from St. Louis City & Pacific now arrives at 9:25 p. m., instead of at 9:55 p. m. The local train's change in the eastbound morning train will not occur until next Sunday.

Prints an Omaha Edition. All the Omaha railroads have contributed liberally toward the support of the Omaha edition of the Commercial Traveler, which will appear on May 29. The publication is printed at St. Louis and has a considerable circulation among traveling men. In its next issue it will contain an elaborate descriptive and illustrated article of Omaha, with special reference to the exposition.

Railroad Notes and Personal. Charles H. Ditcher, traveling passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio, is in the city. Traveling Freight Agent Dredgide of the Missouri Pacific left last evening for a western trip. Traveling Passenger Agent Barnes of the Missouri Pacific has returned from a trip through Iowa. The Pennsylvania has just issued an attractive pamphlet descriptive of the Nashville exposition.
