

OMAHA MEN WILL SHOW THEM

Visitors from Missouri to Get the Glad Hand Today.

EXPOSITION GROUNDS THE MAIN POINT

Big Delegations from St. Louis and Kansas City Coming to Look at the Work that is Under Way.

The special committees appointed by President Watters of the Exposition association to look after the visitors from Missouri will have their hands full today.

Advices from St. Louis are to the effect that there will be about fifty members of the delegation. Secretary V. M. Sterrett of the St. Louis Exposition commission writes to Secretary Wakenfeld that the Missouri delegation will be in two sections, one starting from St. Louis and the other from Kansas City. He says there will be about twenty-five persons in each contingent, the St. Louis party being composed of ten members of the state committee and the others being members of the St. Louis commission.

The Kansas City party will arrive on the Burlington at 6:30 a. m., and the St. Louis section will arrive over the Burlington at 7:55 a. m. The whole party will remain in the city for a few days, when the members will leave for their homes via the Burlington.

In addition to the members of the Watters committee named yesterday, the executive committee named yesterday has appointed C. F. Weller and W. H. Green to the committee and will add his own efforts to those of the special committee in looking after the visitors to entertain the visitors.

The Missouri commission is the fifth of the state exposition commissions to visit Omaha in a tour. The Iowa commission led the way, and was followed by the commissions of Illinois, Wyoming and South Dakota. Practically the entire membership of each of these commissions visited Omaha and were shown all there was to be seen and given all desired information by the executive committee. Without exception, these commissions have expressed themselves in terms of surprise at the scale on which the arrangements are being made and the effort and vigor which they have taken up on the work on their return to their homes.

In addition to these commissions, the commissions of Utah, North Dakota, Montana and Wisconsin have visited Omaha on the same errand and it is expected that the executive committee will have a very large number of these commissions to entertain. They have served to spread the news of what Omaha is doing and have established the fact that the Transmississippi and International Exposition will be second only to the World's fair in importance and magnitude.

DENVER SHOWS GREAT ACTIVITY.

Queen City of the Plains Will Be at the Exposition.

The people of Denver are making preparations to come to the exposition in force, and to take a prominent part in the affair, which will be betwixt the capital and metropolis of the Centennial state. Mayor McMurray of Denver has appointed a Denver exposition commission and has charged it with the duty of collecting an interesting representation for exhibit and arranging for a "Denver day" at the exposition, when the people of Denver may visit the exposition in force and enjoy a celebration commensurate with the enthusiastic interest in the exposition. The commission appointed by the mayor is as follows: Hon. F. H. Rogers, E. J. Walsh, W. J. Ward, W. C. Ashwell, A. D. Moulton, Graniteville Malcom, W. F. Bailey, Mrs. Sarah S. Watt, Mrs. I. M. Appel. This commission will meet Monday next and organize for business.

The people in the Arkansas valley in Colorado are also looking towards the exposition, looking towards the exhibition of that section of the state, regardless of what the balance of the state may do. A mass meeting of the people of Colorado, including seven counties, has been called for this week. Commissioner Giddings of the state exposition commission is one of the prime movers in this matter and will head a committee from this section which will visit Omaha in the near future.

Secretary George M. Minkley of the Colorado Exposition commission, who is in charge of the department of exhibits that the preparations for a state exhibit from Colorado have been delayed by the action of the board of county commissioners in not all the counties in the state has not been acted on because of the changes in the personnel of many of the boards. He says favorable results are anticipated as soon as the new boards are organized.

BLACK HILLS WANTS MORE SPACE.

Six Hundred Square Feet Not Enough for That Section.

The people of the Black Hills district of South Dakota do not take kindly to the action of Governor Lee and the other members of the exposition commission from that state in cancelling the reservation of 6,000 square feet of space in the main building and taking only 600 feet in that building for South Dakota's mineral display. Commissioner J. P. Hymer of South Dakota, who reserved the 6,000 feet of space cancelled by the governor, writes a rather caustic letter to the Department of Exhibits, in which he severely criticizes the action of the governor in thus attempting to belittle the mineral resources of the state. His letter was written before the South Dakota delegation which visited Omaha had returned home and he writes: "I shall take no action in this until the commission returns from Omaha, but I wish to say that the people of the Black Hills will never consent to make an exhibit on 600 square feet on two or three times that amount."

Commissioner Hymer expressed pleasure at hearing that Governor Lee had become interested in the exposition. Mr. Hymer says all interests in the state will work in harmony and a good state exhibit will be made, but the Black Hills will be represented on a scale commensurate with its importance.

IOWA CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS IT.

E. L. Ferris of Sioux City Expresses His Ideas.

E. L. Ferris, a prominent Sioux City attorney, in conversation with a Bee reporter in regard to the exposition said: "Iowa people generally and Sioux City people in particular look forward to the exposition with a great deal of interest, not only because it is to be held in a neighboring state city, but because of the direct and indirect benefits we expect from it ourselves. We are of the opinion that people who come from the north and east to visit the exposition will take advantage of the reduced rates to examine this entire northwestern country. We in Sioux City will undoubtedly have a center attraction, which will in no sense rival or attempt to interfere with the big show. It will probably take the form of a

ANOTHER TALK ON MORALS

Dr. Leo M. Franklin Gives His Second Lecture on the Subject.

CHANGE NEEDED FROM DOUBLE STANDARD

Sociological Forces at Work Among Men that Must Be Controlled—Prejudice Followed by Custom Must Be Overcome.

A further study of the subject of double standards in morals was resumed by Dr. Leo M. Franklin in a lecture at Temple Israel last night. The division of the subject a week ago included the presentation of mistaken ethical conditions governing the conduct of the present generation. It was shown that men made a practice of dishonest methods in business and political life which they would never stoop to as private individuals. Attention was also directed to the fact that society was able to excuse in a man faults that would doom a woman to social ostracism.

The topic last night was "How Shall the Change Be Brought?" and took up the consideration of the needed cure. It treated of the sociological forces at work among men which must be controlled and directed and was delivered in an easy but impressive manner. "The most formidable opposition that confronts the social and moral reformer," Dr. Franklin said, "is the prejudice which custom has allowed. The long closing of our eyes to certain abuses has caused us to believe that they should not only be tolerated but are necessary to our proper expansion. There are many even who believe that an effort to change present conditions would be in the direction of tearing down the fabric of civilization."

Dr. Franklin said that the moral reformer should not be in the direction of tearing down the fabric of civilization, but of righting an existing wrong. To do this it seems that the conscientious moralist should not hesitate to go against this existing prejudice in spite of the large opposition. He is not pleasant to feel that one belongs to a very small minority. He would not be a great preacher, but he has vindicated a great principle.

NEITHER DREAMER NOR PRUDE.

"One should not be either a dreamer or a prude, however, in his work or expectations. He must not believe that single standards of morality is possible at once with all men, but in drawing ideal pictures he may turn the thoughts of men in the right direction. For the present ideal must be a practical one; the man who has one code of morals for private life and another for business, who sets up one thing as right for a man and the opposite for a woman, is not only mentally inconsistent, but is morally ineffectual. In right and justice there can be but one standard of morality, and that is absolute. But how in the face of a prejudiced public opinion can the change be brought about? There are those who say that it can be brought about by legislation, and a common sense show that all law-making is futile in eradicating vice from the world. It may restrain individual cases temporarily, but it has never succeeded in changing a man of vicious habits into a gentleman. But in any event the law would never touch those to whom this discourse is directed. Many of these are men who are not only the best of us, upright and honorable. It makes the problem the more difficult that we have been accustomed to lift our heads in respect to the subject of morality. The one saving fact is that wrong-doing among this class comes from intellectual inferiority and mistaken education. The root of the evil lies in the perversion of public sentiment. It can be traced to a strange lack of social conscience, but if the effect of these centers of evil is not to be brushed aside the truth will be intelligently heard."

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL.

"One of the main agents in the accomplishment of this great public school, the teacher should come to feel that it is a function of the school to prepare youth for moral struggles as well as for mental contests. For if the school is to be a brain will go astray and the beginning of wisdom is the fear of God. Another great element in the formation of the public conscience is the press, and it is the duty of the newspaper to see to it that it is in the hands of the people. It is incumbent upon the writers of the press to include horticultural products in their columns. The church is the third influence in the formation of public opinion and if preachers had only been fearless and outspoken in years that are past conditions would be greatly better today, for they have often been fearful of stepping upon tender ground than in upholding the right. But justice can be served, truth can be vindicated only by courageous treatment. "In drawing a personal lesson it should be remembered that public conscience can never be made right as long as fathers teach their sons that absolute honesty is not compatible with business success, and mothers teach their daughters that honesty is an error in which they, along with others, must acquiesce. Public conscience will never be raised from the mire to the pinnacle of morality until the parents of the nation are as true as the stars. The unrighteousness and lack of logic in double standards of morality."
