MAYORS CELEBRATE AT THE AUDITORIUM

Representatives of Transmississippi Cities Give Modest Accounts of the Municipal Government of the Region They Represent.

Total Admissions Yesterday 29,033 Total to Date 1,916,401

No event in which the interests of a great people were involved had a more auspicious beginning than the grand Peace Jubilee which was inaugurated yesterday. All things combined to cheer the hearts of those whose expectations were merged in the enterprise and to predicate a measure of success commensurate with its importance.

The unexampled beauty of the day was in itself enough to inspire the people and emphasize the confidence of the management. The rain that poured almost incessantly through the preceding night left the landscape of the White City as fresh and bright as when they delighted the senses of the first visitors in June.

Most Rare Combination. As a result of the combination of the week the beauty of the day was almost enough to make a notable success of the exposition.

Short but Enthusiastic Reception Held at State Headquarters. The Missourians, who were on the grounds in large numbers yesterday, held a short love feast at their exhibit in the Agricultural building at 2 o'clock.

Today is Governor's day and the executives of the transmississippi states will occupy the rostrum that the mayors filled so honorably yesterday.

assured them that all departments of the city government were at their service to give them any information and assistance that they might require.

Other Mayors Respond. In response Mayor George T. Baker of Davenport paid a high tribute to the exposition, which, he declared, is a wonderful educator.

Major John MacVicker of Des Moines said this celebration glorifies the best part of war, the end of it. He spoke of the vast scope of the enterprise and from this selected for his subject "The Man Who Wants to Come Home."

President Wattles was expected to close the program with an address, but he said that what he had to say referred to the beauties of the grounds and buildings and their artistic embellishments.

At 1 o'clock the visiting mayors, with their wives, were entertained at lunch at Markel's cafe by the officers of the exposition and the Bureau of Entertainment.

AT THE GOVERNMENT BUILDING.

Formalities to Be Carried Out When Secretary W. V. Cox of the government board has completed the arrangements for the reception of President McKinley when he visits the building on the afternoon of President's day.

The Government building will be closed to the public at 1:30 p. m. to allow preparations for the reception. During his presence the president's flag will float from the flagpole in the center of the east front of the building.

The president, with his guests, accompanied by the president of the exposition and the secretary of the government board, will enter the Government building at the north entrance, opposite the north colonnade.

Invited guests will be admitted at the east entrance, opposite the north colonnade. The president will receive with such pomp as is possible in the building.

Seated for the presidential party will be the members of the Department of State and in the rotunda. Other guests will be seated, as far as possible, in the rotunda.

Members of the government board and their wives will assist in entertaining the invited guests of the president. Order will be maintained in the Government building by the police and marines.
