CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Question of Pay for Police Commissioners Gets Partial Settlement.

CITY ATTORNEY AWARDS IT TO NEW BOARD

Council Adopts the Report and Then Allows the Old Board Salary for the Time Its Members Actually Served.

The most important bit of business at last night's council meeting, which lasted only an hour, between 7 and 8 o'clock, to enable the exposition stockholders to hold their meeting, was a report from City Attorney Council regarding the unpaid salaries of the members of the old board of police commissioners. The council has not allowed the salaries of the former from February to September and of the old members from June to September because it was unable to decide which was entitled to the salary.

in advance of the bid of the Board of Education, particularly as the city would thereby be benefited. The veto, however, was not sustained.

The council also returned without its approval a resolution ordering wooden sidewalks on both sides of Ames avenue from Thirtieth to Forty-second streets and north side of Grand avenue from Thirtieth to Fortieth streets, because the streets are brought to police by floods.

STABBED IN A DRUNKEN ROW

Brawl in a Saloon Ends in Death of Bartender Jones.

GEORGE CHALLMAN STRIKES A FATAL BLOW

Trouble Starts Over Proprietor's Refusal to Sell Liquor on Credit—Murderer Surrenders Himself to the Authorities.

A drunken row Monday night in a saloon at the corner of Thirtieth and Webster streets culminated in a stabbing affray in which J. R. Jones, the bartender, received a wound on the neck which he died in less than five minutes. George M. Challman, who did the stabbing, gave himself up to the police yesterday morning.

Challman's Story of the Murder

Challman's version of the murder is that he and Maher and Grady were drinking in the saloon and Grady became involved in a quarrel with the proprietor, Johnson, over credit. The bartender took Johnson's part and Challman interfered to save Grady from possible injury. After the quarrel the three went to the bar, where they stood talking. While standing there, Challman says, he took out his pocketknife to cut his fingernails. He had this knife in his hands, he says, when he and his two companions started out of the saloon. Just as he was about to pass out the bartender came and stood in the door. Fearing that the bartender intended assaulting him, Challman says he made a backward blow at Jones with the knife. He said he did not think the knife struck something, but did not think then that he had inflicted on the bartender other than a flesh wound. He then threw the knife away and leisurely walked up town after separating from his companions.

He Is Sorry Now

Challman says he is sorry he killed Jones, and says it was not intentional, but the impulse of the moment, as he thought Jones intended kicking him as he left the door. He says he had only known Jones a week, having met him last Sunday when he with his brother Emil, Thomas Lenahan and two women were in the saloon, and had some trouble with Jones because of the women. He denied having had any enmity against Jones because of this trouble. Challman is an employee at the Union Pacific shops and lives with his parents at 831 South Twenty-first street. He is about 25 years old.

An inquest will be held over Jones' body this afternoon. His father, J. R. Jones, is a hatter at Adrian, Minn. He has been notified.

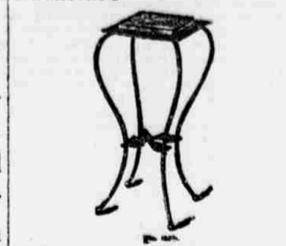

Grady and Maher, who were with Challman at the time of the murder, will be held as witnesses until after the inquest.

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS.

The record for stamp sales at the South Omaha postoffice was broken last month when the total receipts for stamps amounted to $5,352.27. For the last fifteen months the business of the office has been increasing steadily, each month's receipts going a little bit ahead of the preceding one. In July last this office was advanced to one of the first class and aside from Omaha more business is transacted at the office here than at any other in the state. In order to attain the dignity of a first class postoffice the receipts must be $40,000 a year. At the rate business is going now the receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, will be between $50,000 and $60,000.

Business in the money order department is constantly on the increase and some days as high as thirty money orders are sent out. The number received is slightly in excess of this and is growing every day. By the time the new postoffice building is completed the daily business will most likely have attained such proportions that quite an increase in the number of postoffice employees will be necessary. While eight carriers are now employed two more could be used to advantage and it will not be long before the postmaster will be compelled to ask for the appointment of more carriers. The same can be said of the mailing department. At the present time the clerks employed in distributing and sorting mail are worked to the limit and another clerk is needed at the present time in order to relieve the pressure. It is understood that the present force will have to suffice until the new postoffice building is occupied.

Failed to Identify McGuggin.

Thomas McGuggin was arrested Monday and charged with being a suspicious character. It was thought by the police that he had something to do with the holdup at Freeman's grocery store Saturday night. From the description given by Elmer Howe, the clerk, it was thought that McGuggin was the man. After several requests from Chief Carroll, Howe was induced to visit the city jail for the purpose of identifying the prisoner. Late yesterday afternoon Howe showed up, but stated that McGuggin was not the man. He said that McGuggin was a little bit too tall, although in other points he corresponded with the description furnished the police.

Union Pacific's New Engine.

The Baldwin locomotive, which has been on exhibition at the exposition and was purchased by the stock yard company, was turned over to Master Mechanic Himmock yesterday and taken to the Union Pacific shops. The Westinghouse airbrakes on the engine will be replaced by American vacuum brakes and a number of other changes will be made before the new engine is placed in service. This engine will be known as No. 7 from this time on and is designed to do heavy hauling on the grades about the yards.

Concrete Work Begins.

Lenahan & Co. commenced work yesterday on the concrete work about the new postoffice building. The present curb, which was set at the time the street was paved, is to be replaced by new curbing and workmen commenced yesterday afternoon digging the old curbing out. This firm will lay concrete walks about the new building besides doing all of the inside concreting.
