MERRIMENT IN THE SENATE

Rib-Ticking Speech by Pettus, Oldest Member of the Body.

DIGNITY DISPLACED BY RISIBILITIES

Beveridge and His Oratory and Gallinger Made a Target—Cachinnations Forced Even from the Victims.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Merriment swept away the traditional dignity of the senate today. Staid sticklers for senatorial decorum literally held their sides and shouted with laughter, while the crowded galleries joined in the laughing tumult. It was not the faintest effort was made to restrain.

Had the effort been made it would have been futile. Senator Pettus of Alabama, the oldest member of the body—his age being only a few months short of four score years, delivered the funniest speech heard within the senate chamber in many years. It sparkled with wit and bubbled over with humor. His sarcasm was keen, but not bitter, and even those who were the victims of it could not but enjoy its perfect good humor and its unalloyed fun.

Throughout it all Pettus was as solemn as if he were delivering a funeral oration. Not a smile softened the deep lines of his strong and rugged countenance, and as he stopped occasionally to mop the perspiration from his face and head with a big silk handkerchief he glanced about the senate as if in surprise at the laughter of his colleagues. Indeed, he apologized once for the lightness of the vein in which he was addressing the senate on so important a question as the Porto Rican bill.

Proctor, republican of Vermont, had delivered a forceful argument in support of free trade with the island of Porto Rico. His speech was listened to attentively by senators on both sides of the chamber, and at its conclusion he was congratulated even by some senators who did not agree with him.

Gallinger and Beveridge Targets. He was followed by Pettus, who devoted the first part of his remarks to the constitutional phases of the subject; then, quite unexpectedly, came the fun, as he sharpened his wit at the expense of Gallinger of New Hampshire and Beveridge of Indiana.

"It was a gem," said one senator commenting upon Pettus' speech, "and will long stand as one of the best examples of senatorial funmaking."

Senator Dewey of New York was the first to congratulate Pettus, and the New Yorker's hearty handclasp was followed by such an ovation as a man seldom receives in the senate. Former Senator Pugh, Pettus' immediate predecessor from Alabama, was one of those who particularly enjoyed the speech. During the entire session Pettus received the congratulations of his colleagues. Considerable progress was made with the Porto Rican measure, several committee amendments being disposed of.

After an argument in favor of free trade Pettus first took Gallinger to task. "I was very much entertained by the senator from New Hampshire on yesterday," he said, "when he informed us that he was not a lawyer and he proved it to us, not only by asserting it, but by his argument. Lawyers know that when you come to read a decision of a judge you must take all he says on a subject; that it will not do to take a sentence here and another there, but that is exactly what the senator did in quoting Justice Bradley in the Mormon church case."

Anecdote of a Preacher. He then went on to relate an anecdote illustrative of his point in which a preacher of the old time—when the senator was a boy—had figured in Alabama. "The minister," he said, "was as learned in the Bible as my friend from New Hampshire is in the law. (Laughter.) He said: 'Brethren, my text today will be the following: 'Seven sons did milk a bear unto Enoch.' Now, I expect, brethren, the preacher went on, 'if you would look at the commentaries you would find various meanings to this text.

"The senator from Wisconsin," replied Spooner, "is of the opinion that they are not."

"Will the senator tell us what they are?" inquired Allen.

"They are colonists," said Spooner. "Do they owe allegiance to the United States government?" asked Allen.

"Allegiance," replied Spooner, "ows a qualified allegiance."

"No," protested Allen, "it is not a qualified allegiance that they owe, but obedience."

Lindsay offered an amendment striking out the provision in section 15, that the governor should participate in legislation. It was not deemed wise that the governor should be a part of the legislative power of the island, and should at the same time have authority to veto legislation. That, it was contended, would make the governor an autocrat. Foraker accepted the amendment.

MAGOO'S OPINION IN DEMAND

Public Men Seek to Know His Views on Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Representative Richardson of Tennessee today introduced in the house the following resolution: "Resolved, That the secretary of war be, and he is hereby directed, to furnish the house with any opinion or opinions given by the department by Charles A. Magoon, law officer of the division of insular affairs, as to whether the constitution was extended excepting the peace of the Porto Rico act."

The entire edition of the report prepared by Judge Magoon, the assistant law officer of the secretary of war's office, construing the relation of the insular possessions to the United States, has been exhausted. Senator Davis has introduced a resolution calling for the printing of 3,000 additional copies to meet the increasing demands from public men. The report is largely made up of extracts from opinions of the supreme court, all going to maintain the position that the constitution does not follow the flag, and it was this construction of the constitution as laid down in the report that served as the basis of the majority report on the Porto Rico tariff bill as presented to the senate.

Talk for Prohibition in Colorado. WASHINGTON, March 30.—A large delegation from New York, Philadelphia and other cities assembled before the insular affairs committee of the house today in behalf of the bill introduced by Gillette of Massachusetts to prohibit the importation into, or sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Porto Rico, Hawaii or the Philip-pinas. They advanced many facts to prove that especially in the Philippines there had been a large increase in the sale of intoxicating liquors since the advent of the Americans, and argued that entire prohibition was the only remedy for the condition of affairs existing and prospective. Among those who spoke were Rev. J. B. Dunn of the National Temperance society of New York; Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie and Hon. S. E. Nicholson of the National Anti-Saloon league and Mrs. M. D. Ellis of the Women's Christian Temperance union.

FOR AN INCREASE IN THE NAVY

House Committee Approves Appropriation Bill and Directs It Reported.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The house committee on naval affairs today approved the naval appropriation bill and directed its report to the house. Several efforts were made to change the bill as heretofore practically agreed upon, but no material changes were made. As the bill will be reported it provides for two battleships, three armored cruisers and three protected cruisers of the dimensions heretofore given and armor plate for the ships of the Maine class now urgently in need of armor. It is authorized at a price not exceeding $45 per ton.

The proposition for a government armor factory was again brought forward today and caused animated discussion, but no conclusive action was taken. The effort was also renewed to secure the construction of one or more of the new ships in government yards, but the matter did not reach a vote.

The bill carries approximately $61,000,000. It is expected that a minority report will be made by four democratic members of the committee, Messrs. Wheeler of Kentucky, Chandler of Missouri, Bailey of Virginia and Kitchener of North Carolina, in favor of a government armor plate factory and another by three democratic members and Mr. Metcalf of California, in favor of building one of the ships authorized in the act at a government yard.

Prominent Nebraska Doctor

COLUMBUS, Neb., March 30.—(Special.)—Dr. G. L. Humphrey died at his home at Monroe last evening. The doctor was a brother-in-law of Dr. C. D. Evans of this city and had been an invalid for some time. In 1882 he was a practicing physician and lived at Kearney. In running to make a train he suffered a dislocation of the heart from over-exertion. From this he never fully recovered. He was in the hospital here for a long time under treatment and finally improved sufficiently to engage in the drug business at Columbus. He was at years of age and leaves a family. No definite arrangements for the funeral are obtainable at this time.

HYMENEAL

Grass-McClure. HURON, S. D., March 30.—(Special.)—The marriage occurred yesterday evening of Ensign T. B. Grass of Minneapolis, founder of the Salvation army corps here, and Lieutenant S. Verne McClure of this city. The ceremony took place in the Methodist church and was witnessed by a large gathering of people, each of whom paid an admission fee of from 15 to 25 cents. In the company were a number of members of the army from out of the city. Brigadier General Halpin of Minneapolis officiated, the ceremony being that of the Salvation army, and it was quite unlike that of a usual ritualistic form. The altar and chancel were handsomely decorated with flowers and plants, and the couple were the recipients of numerous presents. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served to a large company at the home of the bride's parents.

Burglars Get a Lot of Jewelry

NEW YORK, March 30.—Some time last night the Grand street jewelry store of Isidor Weinstein was robbed of $15,000 worth of jewelry and diamonds. The big safe was practically destroyed. The burglars flew off the heads of the bolts in the back of the store. They then took the back plate and removed the asbestos lining.

but taking a common-sense view of it, I will say this. I expect that Enoch was sick and the doctor told his seven sons, great strong fellows, that it was absolutely necessary that he should have milk for his nutriment; and thereupon the seven sons went out to look up the cows. The cows had not come up the night before and so the sons could not find them, but they came across a bear and they milked her and carried the milk to Enoch; and so, brethren, it is writ, 'Seven sons did milk a bear unto Enoch.'

"That preacher," continued Pettus, amid an outburst of hoarse laughter, had as accurate a knowledge of the scriptures as some of our senators have of the law of the land."

Pettus then turned his attention to the speech of Beveridge and said: "We had a wonderful declamation yesterday, but take away the center—wonderful! It was marvelous in all its parts. It was marvelous that I dare say that such a thing has never before been heard in the senate. When you get a genuine orator he is absolutely absorbed from all rules of logic or common sense. (Laughter.) He is not conscious of any error of grammar, orthography or proof of proposition true or false, rules of common sense and the decent observance of which is due to others must not stand in the way of maintaining 'my reputation' as an orator. It will not do. If it is necessary I must break down the ideas of an observer. Some of our senators have been characterized as 'the best policy.' If it is necessary, I must draw on my imagination for facts and on my memory for flights of fancy as Ovid Boius did."

Orator's Rights in the Senate. "When an orator speaks he has a right in the fervor of his oratory here in the United States senate, in reference to the republicans and democrats and populists and any other men who may choose to take a seat here, to speak of them as enemies of the government. He has a right to speak of them as opponents of the government. The government in his mind is 'me and my wife, my son John and his wife, my four and no more' (laughter)."

"Mr. President, I was amazed at that went off in that direction. I tell you the senior or junior senator from Iowa—I do not know which—and the senior or junior senator from Maine—I do not know which—will take some intemperate reference to that orator. There is no doubt about it in this world. (Laughter.) There will have to be some caucuses on the matter. (Laughter.) I tell you, Mr. President, these four or five men from Maine and Iowa could not get their party well better than to take some consideration of the orators in this chamber. (Laughter.)"

"Mr. President, the Master once had to select a man to lead the children of Israel out of Egypt and through the wilderness and he selected Aaron; and he selected Aaron well. (Laughter.) No, he selected one of these men from Iowa or Maine and his name was Moses. And he was a stubborn man, too. (Laughter.) But Moses told his Master to his face that he could not do it, because he could not speak to the people. And what Aaron did was to take the golden calf and they took Aaron along, not in command—that was not allowed—but they took him along as a kind of deputy. And when Moses on his Master's order went up into the mountain for the tablets the orator left his Master and he was a confederate well. (Laughter.) And he put up the people down to worshipping the golden calf. (Laughter.) More people worship the golden calf now than they did in those days."

Orator Gets on Moses' Side. "But while Aaron and his people were all down worshipping the golden calf the man of God appeared and he pulled out his sword and he cut off the golden calf from the Lord's side, and the orator jumped up from his knees, drew his sword and got on Moses' side and went to killing the Israelites along with Moses."

All these orators will do the same thing (laughter) when they get to know what we saw an instance of it generally after noon. At the conclusion of Pettus' speech consideration of the amendments was resumed.

The pending amendment was that of Mr. Rogers, providing that the United States in changing the Porto Rican coinage in United States money should pay 100 cents instead of 60 cents for each of the Porto Rican pesos. After some discussion the amendment was defeated—12 to 32. The committee amendments to the exchange of money was then adopted.

Allen discussed the constitutional questions involved in the pending bill. He maintained that no man who is familiar with the constitution could honestly contend that it did not extend of its own vigor over our acquired territory.

In the course of the argument Spooner asked Allen whether the people of the Philippines were citizens of the United States.

"Yes," replied Allen. "But we do not have to keep them. Does the secretary of war (Spooner) say they are not citizens of the United States?"

"The senator from Wisconsin," replied Spooner, "is of the opinion that they are not."

"Will the senator tell us what they are?" inquired Allen.

"They are colonists," said Spooner. "Do they owe allegiance to the United States government?" asked Allen.

"Allegiance," replied Spooner, "ows a qualified allegiance."

"No," protested Allen, "it is not a qualified allegiance that they owe, but obedience."

Lindsay offered an amendment striking out the provision in section 15, that the governor should participate in legislation. It was not deemed wise that the governor should be a part of the legislative power of the island, and should at the same time have authority to veto legislation. That, it was contended, would make the governor an autocrat. Foraker accepted the amendment.
