READ HIS OWN OBITUARY.

Justin McCarthy Once Had that Petteive and Enjoyed It. Justin McCarthy, the well known lecturer and Irish nationalist, has been forced to retire from his post in the British Parliament on account of failing health. The fact recalls the fact that some twenty-two years ago a well-known all-round journalist named McCarthy died in London. The news was deemed sufficiently important to be put on the wires by one of the press agencies and after a few minutes reached Liverpool. Here it fell into the hands of Mr. now Sir E. R. Russell, the editor of the Liverpool Daily Post. Sir Edward Russell at once jumped to the conclusion that the sad intelligence referred to Justin McCarthy, who at that time was in Parliament. A strong friendship existed between these two; they had known each other for many years and they had been colleagues on the staff of the old London Morning Star. On receipt of the telegram Sir Edward Russell, under the impulse of a deep feeling, wrote an eloquent and touching appreciation of Justin McCarthy, as journalist, novelist, an essayist and a man. The notice, which ran to a full length column, appeared in the Daily Post the next morning and was read with keen interest in Irish circles in Liverpool. The sequel can be imagined when it became known that the subject, far from being dead, was very much alive and in the enjoyment of excellent health. It was a long time before either Sir Edward Russell or Mr. McCarthy recovered from this too previous obituary.

APPEAL FROM GALVESTON

Postmaster Griffin Tells of Terrible Suffering as Result of the Storm. WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Postmaster General Charles E. Smith recently received from Postmaster Griffin of Galveston a letter telling of the personal and financial losses which had befallen the employees of his office as a result of the terrible storm of September 8, of the fearful strain under which they had been working day and night since then and of the administrative spirit which animated the men notwithstanding their misfortune. Postmaster Griffin suggested that if the vast army of postal officials, clerks and carriers could know the true condition of the men at Galveston a small amount from each might be cheerfully contributed and would give the needed relief; otherwise it was to be hoped a benevolent government, to which they were loyal, will hear and answer this appeal.

To this communication Acting Postmaster General W. M. Johnson sent the following reply: The department is in full sympathy with the appeal of the postmaster of Galveston in behalf of the employees of that office, who have suffered the loss of their homes and possessions. It is gratifying to learn that the action taken in this regard by the department has been so successful in the twenty-five years of the association's existence.

Chance for American Enterprise.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—A letter received at the United States Department of Agriculture from Perth College, New South Wales, Australia, calls attention to the great need of improved types of agricultural machinery in that country. The writer states that there are not more than a dozen machines for cutting and collecting maize in New South Wales and a machine for cutting sugarcane would be greatly appreciated by the cane growers in the north of that colony and in Queensland. He suggests that there are great opportunities for American manufacturers of agricultural machinery who are desirous of extending their business beyond the United States.

Given Another Office.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Senator Don Luis P. Correa, the Nicaraguan minister here, has been accredited by his government to Mexico City. He was already minister to Chile so that he now holds three positions simultaneously. Senator Correa had just arrived at New Orleans from Nicaragua when he received his last appointment and proceeded at once to the City of Mexico. It is understood that the purpose of his mission is to arrange for the post to have a suitable representative in Mexico during the approaching Pan-American conference next October.

Victims of Accident.

NEWCASTLE, Oct. 14.—The terrible accident which happened at the Pittsburg & Lake Erie bridge, near Pittsburg, Pa., on Saturday night, resulted in the death of three persons. The dead are John Koehn, a prosperous farmer from Keokuk, his daughter, aged 12 years, Annie Koehn, another daughter, aged 12 years, and several other persons who were on the bridge.

Slush Fund for Fusionists

Of course there is nothing new in the peculiar variety of campaign methods being practiced this year by the reform fusion forces in the urgent assessment of their officeholders to provide campaign funds. This practice, against which the fusionists have so often, so loudly and so recently inveighed, is always practiced by them in every campaign, but this year the assessment levied has been so brutally pushed that a general howl is with difficulty suppressed by the overcast victims. About ten days ago notice was served on all who are holding positions under the reform county administration that they should contribute in an amount equal to 3 per cent of their annual salaries for the fusion fund and the chairman of the county committee has just sent out another letter in the nature of a hurry call, demanding payment at once of the overdue sums levied.

Table listing names of individuals and their respective salaries and assessments for the fusion fund.
