Former Touches a Responsive Chord in the Public Heart.

MONUMENT IS A MAGNIFICENT ONE

Stands Forty-Five Feet Tall, Wrought in Inspiring Pose and Represents Seven Years' Labor.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The heroic bronze equestrian statue of Major General John A. Logan, which rests on an imposing bronze pedestal in Iowa city, was unveiled today in the presence of the president, the cabinet, the widow and relatives of the gallant soldier, many of his comrades in arms and a vast multitude of people.

Master George Tucker, a grandson of the honored warrior, pulled the unveiling cord at 2:45 o'clock. The folds of the large American flag fell away and the dashing figure of "Black Jack" Logan, seated on his charger, stood revealed. A roar of cheering echoed far down the intersecting streets and avenues.

The president and members of the cabinet had been escorted to the statue by a military parade under command of Colonel Francis L. Duerthen of the Fourth United States artillery. The procession included detachments from the artillery and infantry arms of the regular army, a battalion of marines and a company of seamen from the navy yard, a regiment of the District of Columbia militia, members of the societies of the Army of the Tennessee and of the Cumberland and members of the local veteran associations.

Mrs. Logan Present. Mrs. John A. Logan and other relatives sat upon a platform at the base of the monument. Mrs. Logan has been quite ill with the grip recently, but was able to be present. She was accompanied by her son, Woodhull, who was General Logan's adjutant general during the civil war.

General Grenville M. Dodge, president of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, who is the only living general represented in the group on the bronze pedestal showing General Logan in council of war with his commanding officers, presided over the ceremonies. He made a high personal tribute to the dead chief and after the invocation had been offered by Rev. Frank Bristol, introduced the sculptor, Mr. Simmons, to the assemblage. The statue was then unveiled amid great applause, and the Fourth artillery rendered "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean."

At the moment of the unveiling a salute to the White lot, south of the executive mansion. President McKinley received an ovation as he was introduced and it was some time before he could begin his remarks. He spoke as follows:

My Fellow Citizens: It is a good token when patriots are honored and their achievements are commemorated. It expresses the nation's gratitude for great deeds inspired by great deeds. It is a fitting tribute to our country's appreciation of one of its heroes whose name is dear to the American people, and whose life was a noble and heroic one, and whose death was a martyr's death.

Some names instantly suggest a sentiment. That of John A. Logan is one of them. It is the name of a man who was a patriot, a soldier, a statesman, a man of high character, unflinching courage, high convictions and unswerving integrity. He was a leader from boyhood, the recognized captain among his youthful associates, and he was a man of high character, unflinching courage, high convictions and unswerving integrity.

It was not only a great general, but a great statesman. He was a man of high character, unflinching courage, high convictions and unswerving integrity. LOUBET'S TRIBUTE TO DEAD

French President Lays Flowers on Grave of Statesman—Speech on Republic's Future.

PARIS, April 9.—President Loubet, accompanied by a group of French ministers and others, placed a wreath of flowers upon Gambetta's tomb. He expressed the hope that the Parliament would soon vote to transfer the remains of the hero to the Pantheon. It is hoped that this transfer may be accomplished by the next, the French national holiday.

President Loubet subsequently repaired to the port of Nice, three-quarters of a mile away, where he was welcomed by the Chamber of Commerce and visited the hospitable home of the late statesman, who was everywhere warmly greeted. At a banquet later, and replying to a toast to his health, President Loubet asserted that the principles of justice, solidarity and good will were the foundation of the republic and inseparable to France. He said the country needed unity and that the conflicts of interests and the country's increasing wants would end in compromising the future of the nation, unless steps were taken to ameliorate social conditions. Solidarity and civil peace could not be secured except by reciprocal sacrifices.

Continuing, President Loubet said that private interests should be subordinated to the greater interests of the nation. The republic had already shown in its legislation the necessities of the laboring classes, but legislation alone would not suffice. The give-and-take principle must become part of the conscience of the nation. Thus could the country weld its unity and assure its moral grandeur and material prosperity.

President Loubet's speech was loudly applauded. In 1897 a party of ranchmen headed by Simpson went to Margreth ranch, where Sargent made his home. Investigation of alleged reports that had reached the settlement that Sargent had been beating his wife and committing crimes. It was alleged that the posse found the situation even than had been reported. Mrs. Sargent and the children were brought down to the settlement, where the woman died. The report was circulated that Mrs. Sargent made a dying statement, charging her husband with crimes. Sargent was forced to flee the country. Going to New York, he worked two years and came back with money, which he returned to his wife. He was arrested and bound over to the United States court. Just a year ago Sargent had his trial and as no evidence was introduced that would prove the charges he was acquitted.

As the matter has been before the public so many years, the outcome of the present suit will be watched with interest.

John D. Sargent Returns to Wyoming to Regain His Reputation.

WANTS TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DAMAGES

Partner of Robert Ray Hamilton Works Two Years to Earn Money to Fight the Men Who Drove Him Away.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 9.—(Special Telegram)—John D. Sargent, at one time a partner of Robert Ray Hamilton, the wealthy young tubman New York who was drowned in a mysterious manner in Snake river, near his Marymere ranch in western Wyoming in 1891 and who was suspected of having had a hand in Hamilton's death, as well as having murdered his wife a few years later, but who was acquitted, today filed suit in the Uinta county court against D. C. Nowlin, William L. Simpson and James Lannagan, all prominent citizens of the Jackson's Hole country. Sargent asks for damages to the amount of $25,000 for alleged persecution and defamation of character.

Nowlin is the man who was justice of the peace at Jackson for a number of years and the other two are alleged to have taken a prominent part in the actions against Sargent. A few years after the drowning of Hamilton and after the New York Sun and citizens of New York had failed to fasten the responsibility of the tubman's disappearance upon Sargent, an Indian scare was worked up in the Jackson's Hole region. A regiment of cavalry was hurried to the spot, and the tubman was exposed Sargent was charged by people of the Hole with having started the scare.

For some time, says the consul, it has been understood that the Austrian, German and Belgian spinners of linen had decided to unite in a reduction of product. From Paris has come the news that the French spinners are also to join in relieving the output of the mills. The object is believed to be to steady and increase the price of the product. NO CONFIRMATION RECEIVED

Reported Rejection of Cuban Platt Amendment Not Communicated by General Wood.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The cabinet meeting today lasted about an hour. Mr. Knox, the new attorney general, was present to his colleagues and created a very favorable impression.

The cabinet gave some attention to the subject of indemnity to be required of China, it being brought forward by Secretary Hay, in connection with Mr. Rockhill's dispatches received since the last meeting. Great surprise was expressed at the enormous total of the claims, which, before the ministers at Peking, approximately the vast sum of $200,000,000. Moreover, at least one of the powers insists on keeping the account open until it elects to withdraw entirely from Peking at a remote date to be fixed at its own will, by increasing the total of its claim to be increased greatly hereafter. The opinion of the other cabinet officers completely accorded with that of Secretary Hay, as to the desirability of securing a reduction of the claims. No official information has been received by the government of the reported rejection of the Platt amendment by the Cuban constitutional convention. The matter was discussed by the cabinet, and it was considered strange that General Wood had not communicated so important a fact if it were true.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The forthcoming number of the American Agriculturist weekly will say: Local reports from the American Agriculturist's corps of county observers, carefully consolidated into state averages, show a condition of wheat higher than has been noted at this time in the last ten years, with the exception of 1891. The general average, as reported for the whole belt, is 95.5, a figure which represents a practically perfect prospect over the greater part of the winter wheat area.

At the date at which correspondents of the American Agriculturist made the above report, there had been no report of warm, growing weather sufficient to cause a spring frost, demonstrating absolutely the extent to which the Hessian fly is present. SHOT BY MARSHAL

Dave O. Luse Instantly Killed at Ainsworth by Fred M. Hans.

OFFICER SERVES WARRANT ON DESPERADO

Prisoner Asks Permission to Change His Clothing for Journey.

GRABS GUN AND AIMS AT DETECTIVE. Hammer Falls on Empty Shell and It's the Other's Turn.

TWO QUICK BULLETS IN VILLAIN'S HEART. North Brown County Glad to Be Rid of Terror Who Admitted Murder, Arson, Robberies and the Slaughter of Stock.

AINSWORTH, Neb., April 9.—(Special Telegram)—Dave O. Luse, a notorious character of North Brown county, was shot and instantly killed this morning at 7 o'clock at his home near the Niobrara river by Deputy United States Marshal Fred M. Hans while resisting arrest.

On one year ago seventeen horses belonging to James & Sellers and being herded on the ranch of F. D. Hedrick in the north part of the county were mysteriously shot. A reward of $100 was offered for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party. United States Marshal Hans, who is also chief of detectives of the Niobrara road, was appealed to to ferret out the perpetrators. Detective Hans assigned one of his men, William H. Duquette, known as the tramp detective, to work up the case.

At various times Duquette was in the county looking up the case. On March 28 he appeared at Luse's home and by ways known to his profession worked the fellow that he gained his complete confidence and at the end of three days had gained evidence sufficient not only to prove Luse the man who shot the herd of horses, but also saw him kill a horse belonging to a rancher near by. On March 30 he also secured evidence to prove Luse the perpetrator of crimes of murder, arson and robberies sufficient to condemn him to the gallows, a most extraordinary feat, and connected with men in the localities capable of the worst of crimes.

With such evidence before him Marshal Hans procured and served the paper on Luse this morning. Luse through the influence of his guard by apparent willingness to submit to arrest. He only asked permission to change his clothing and prepare for the journey, but at the first opportunity he grabbed a Winchester from his place of concealment and shot Duquette in the chest.

The fact that the empty shell was in place of a loaded one saved the life of the detective. Hans followed the first bullet with a second, causing instant death. Luse, by his own confession, belonged for years to a band of outlaws and road agents in Wyoming, claiming to have helped kill Big Ed, a United States marshal, and bury the body in the grounds belonging to the first hotel built in Lawrence, Kan., besides participating in numerous other murders. Luse also tried to hire parties to murder John Sullivan, a resident of this city, and M. I. Mead, a rancher living near him, against whom he had grievances. For years he has been a terror to the people of his neighborhood and his death comes as a relief to the law-abiding people of Brown and neighboring counties. Luse leaves a divorced wife and four children.
