WIRES FROM FRISCO HOT

Telegrams Were Fairly Raised on Mayor Schmitz and His Party.

REPORT OF DRINKING MADE TROUBLE

Folks Back Home Kept Up a Steady Fire of Demands that They Stick it Out in Their Talk with Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco and the San Francisco school officials, who came along here with the mayor upon the president's summons to tinker up the Japanese mess, had to stand for a telegraphic bombardment from their home folks such as probably never before fell to the lot of a president summoned party in Washington.
When the word reached San Francisco that the president had wired the mayor and the school officials of the town to "report to Washington" to confer with him regarding the Japanese situation, the San Franciscans, who, despite their distance from the seat of government, know a good deal about what goes on in Washington, instantly doped it out that when the mayor and his associates reached Washington Mr. Roosevelt would soft-soap and blarney and hector them into agreeing with his view of the situation.

They had read and heard of other outfits that had been "summoned to Washington" to "stink things over," and how such outfits had left the White House swearing that the present president wouldn't know how to go about making a mistake if he tried, and they were determined that this thing shouldn't happen to their mayor and school officials.

So before the mayor and the rest of the Washington bound outfit left San Francisco they were plainly told that they would be expected to stand by the San Francisco view of the Japanese question and that any evidence or even symptom of crawling-fishing on their part would be taken by the coasters as a deliberate "knock at California." Mayor Schmitz and his herd duly promised that they'd be good and left for Washington.
But the San Francisco folks were going to make sure. They kept right at the Schmitz delegation at every stage of that party's progress across the continent. At every stop the mayor and the rest of the coasters was handed to Mayor Schmitz and his companions signed by officials and citizens of San Francisco. "Buck up and stay bucky" was the general essence of all of these telegrams addressed to the train on which the party traveled.
"Don't wetch! no telegram read." "You don't have to be cocky, but you're expected to stick," read another. "Don't let anybody talk your arm off," was one addressed personally to the mayor. "If you stand pat you'll be patted when you get back. If you don't—" was another one. At one stop midway across the continent the party received no less than sixty-three telegrams from the thoroughly wound-up San Franciscans of which the following are a few samples:

"Be different. Roosevelt runs everybody. Don't let him run you."
"You're for California and not Teddy. Remember that."
"Take a brace. Don't be putty."
"You're going against the talkist with the teeth. Show him yours if he tries to corral you."
"Don't be quarter horses. Stay the distance."
"No curving up. Stay with it."
"Don't fall for that hypnotic gag."
"We're watching you carefully, boys."
"Show some spine."
"Look out for that mollicoddling stuff."
The man you're going to brace is a shootist."
"Don't get run down between the bases."
"We know he's great and a wonder and all that stuff. But he's wrong about the teeth. Show him yours and you'll think he's right."
"No shuffling."
"If there's clinch, look out for those kidney roasters. He fights with both mitts."
"You can't be in agreement with the big sticker and with your neighbors out here, too."
"Ask him if he meant it when he wrote that he'd send the United States army against us if we didn't behave."
"Stop, look and listen."
When the mayor and his party reached Washington, dog tired, they found another large package of telegrams awaiting them at their hotel, all of which they read before they turned in.

Before going to bed that first night, Mayor Schmitz and his associates, in a body, visited a well known Washington cafe, frequented by notables, and partook of some liquid refreshment. A San Franciscan residence here this winter caught them in the act, and he promptly sent a wire to San Francisco setting forth the statement that the first thing the party did upon reaching Washington was to repair to the spiderweb grocery and corn up to the nines. This telegram was published in some of the San Francisco newspapers. The mayor and his bunch got results from that telegram by the basketful on the following morning.
Here are a few of the telegrams they received from their watchful San Francisco neighbors:
"Reported that you're all rummy. Stop it."
"Stick to the waterwagon until you've done your business."
"Flag the red eye. The Heap Big Stick might smell your breaths."
"Papers here say you're all spiffed to the eyes. Better be good."
"Don't let 'em get next to your rumminess at the White House. Folks are thrown out of there for mighty little cause. Remember Mrs. Minor Morris."
"Win your point first and get your souse afterward."
"Stated here that you all got pickled last night. Why, Schmitz?"
"If you can't be good, be careful."

"Eleventh Commandment—Thou shalt not be caught with the goods."
"Dutch courage is all right, but don't let the booze take you."
"Can't you people have it out with him without getting all lit up in advance?"
"Be Jonardabs for this one cruise, anyhow."
"If you must drink, get under cover."
"Dutch courage is all right, but don't let it all right."
After the first conference of the mayor and his party with the president the impression got out that the president had forced the San Franciscans to admit a good many things that helped his side of the argument. This impression was wholly wrong for the San Franciscans were an unyielding lot from the beginning, but it reached the San Francisco papers, and then the mayor and his bunch were positively covered with telegrams. They are said to have received no less than 36 on the day following their first talk with the president, and many of them were hot ones. Several of the dispatches were of considerable length, notably those sent by various labor organizations of San Francisco, but these sent by individuals were crisp and to the point, and generally of the same tenor as those sent while the party was on its way to Washington, as, for instance, the following:
"So you were hot-fired, were you?"
"Joined the snow shovelers, have you?" (Snowshovelers are often alluded to by Californians folks as "razow shovelers.")
"Stated here that you're backing down. You've got to come back here sooner or later. Remember that."

"Don't be fooled by promises. Promises are made; get them in writing."
"Bad impression created here by report of first conference. Don't be bamboozled."
"The Jap coolies have got to be kept out of the United States, and Japs that have had to be kept out of California schools. These are the two points. Don't recede from them."
"He may string you, but he can't string all of us."
"If there's going to be any bulldozing, beat him to it. We're with you on that."
"Let him do the talking if it tickles him. But you get results."
"Being said here that you're becoming hypnotized. Better buy some green goggles."
The above are only specimens. Some of the telegrams were couched in terms of a great deal stronger. Nor did the alert San Franciscans cease distributing this content of dispatches at any stage of the proceedings. Every day during the conference the mayor and his party were swamped with messages from their San Francisco friends, as well as from unfriendly ones whose messages were of a threatening nature. It is said that the president was keenly disappointed when he found how "stubbornly" they resisted his oft-and somewhat cocksure presentation of his side of the controversy. The president, if this be true, could have had little appreciation of the predicament in which the mayor and his party found themselves when they were "summoned" to Washington.

KANSAN UNVEILS MONUMENT

"Manchester Martyrs" Memorial to Be Dedicated by Man Committed with Them.

DUBLIN, Feb. 24.—(Special.)—Dr. Edmund O'Meara Condon of Atchison, Kan., will on Sunday, March 10, unveil the Manchester "Martyrs" memorial in Tipperary. It is stated that he will on that day perform a function and occupy a position to which, so far as we are aware, there is no parallel in history. The memorial will be unveiled by a man who nearly forty years ago stood in the dock with Allen, Larkin and Gould, who was tried on the same evidence, identified by the same witnesses, convicted and tried and sentenced to death by the same judges, but against whom the evidence, tainted from the first, was so utterly untrustworthy that he was reprieved.
Allen and the others declared solemnly that they had not intended to hurt Sergeant Brett. Dr. O'Meara Condon, in his speech from the dock at Manchester at that time uttered a phrase which has since become historic. "I have nothing," he said in concluding his speech, "to regret or to take back. I can only say, God save Ireland."
Appropriation Bills in House. WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The house today resumed consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. The house today adopted the conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial bill.
