DR. FISHER TALKS HEALTH

Gives Some Helpful Advice on the Care of the Body.

SHOULD LIVE CONSISTENTLY

Each Individual Should Study Himself as to What His System Requires in Food and Exercise.

In his closing address Monday night before a gathering of Young Men's Christian association athletes, Dr. George J. Fisher gave his listeners some helpful suggestions upon health. The subject of his address was "Physical Efficiency." He illustrated that the human body was built for energy plus and in this respect showed that we have two ears, two lungs, two brains, two kidneys and so on down the list, yet when it came to a pinch we could get along with only one of each.

"We rarely reach the top of our powers," said the doctor. "And if we only know what a storehouse of energy there is in our body what a wonderful thing it would be for our physical welfare. If we did we could prolong our lives anywhere from ten to twenty years."

Dr. Fisher then dwelt upon the art of living consistently and of studying the needs of the individual body. What agrees with one does not always find harmony in another and so it comes to a point where each individual should study himself with a selfish consideration as to what his system requires, not only in foods, but also in the way of exercise. He pointed out that the first stage of existence is purely a physical one, the second stage becomes a mental and physical co-operation and then the third is a combination of these two with a moral influence.

To make them all work consistently they have to be in cordial sympathy with our blood circulation. If this is good we are bound to eliminate the poisons of the system and overcome the exhaustion of tissues which we use up in the course of a day's work.

Dr. Fisher also warned that people should always take any kind of a pain as an index to something about their bodies which is not quite right. "If you will do so," he admonished, "you will save yourself many an unnecessary attack of illness which will cost you both time and pain."

GOVERNOR PROUD OF COLONELS

Chief Executive of Nebraska Marchals His Forces.

BALTIMORE, March 4.—Special Telegram—Monday was a busy day for the staff of Governor Morehead here, but it began with a disappointment for the governor. He had stopped off in Washington on Sunday night in the hope of meeting William Jennings Bryan, but Mr. Bryan was not there. As Governor Morehead's train left Washington for Baltimore this morning Mr. Bryan stepped from a train in Union station.

When he reached here he received a great reception from his staff and their wives who were gathered in the lobby of Hotel Emerson.

A reception committee of state officials took them through the public buildings, Fort McHenry and other parks and points of interest. On the governor's return he gathered his staff in a military group and received in audience former Governor Edwin Wakefield of Maryland.

Felicitations on both sides being finally accomplished, the governor reviewed his troops once more and had them perform in the best of spirits a series of evolutions and evolutions for the women of the party. At the finish of the drill he called them together and delivered his final instructions as to their procedure in Washington.

"I am proud of my staff," said the governor. "You are the handsomest governors' staff in America and I am sure the state of Nebraska is proud of you as well."

After the governor finished, ex-Governor Warfield issued an invitation to the entire party to visit him at his office in the Fidelity building. As the staff had made arrangements to leave the city for Washington for the suffrage parade at noon the invitation could not be accepted.

This was Governor Morehead's first visit to Baltimore. "You know," he said, "it is famous in our country ever since the coming to return here with my family and visit here a week or so."

"When I see more of Baltimore I will be better prepared to tell you how I like it," said Mr. Morehead, who was also on hand. "No, I am not an advocate of woman suffrage and I don't think any one in the party is. We don't hear much of woman suffrage in our part of the country."

SCHOOL BOARD ASKS FOR ADVICE ON SMOKE NUISANCE

The Board of Education will invite R. L. Wolfe, city boiler inspector, to explain to the board any method he may know of abating the smoke nuisance. Wolfe wrote a letter to the board which was read last night. In this letter he said the smoke ordinance recently passed would not be enforced until June 1, but he advised the board to begin arranging to abate the nuisance as far as possible.

Culls from the Wires

Hearing of the government's suit in Chicago against Albert C. Frost, and five others charged with fraud in securing Alaskan coal claims was postponed until Thursday.

STYLE WEEK FOR OMAHA

Big Omaha Stores to Spring New Styles at One Time.

LOUD COLORS PREDOMINATE

Water Line Raised a Little—Balkan Blouse is New—Hats to Be Smaller—Chinese Numidi Replaces Algrette.

Omaha's second annual style show, more comprehensive than the first and even more finished than those of eastern cities where similar events meet with great interest, has been set by Omaha merchants for the week of March 11.

Every merchandise store in Omaha is expected this year to join in a great movement to show to buyers the very latest creations of the market during that week. Thus stores throughout the city will enter into a strong competition for the most attractive displays of merchandise as well as store arrangement and decorative styling to the city during style week. The first of gala aspects.

The first annual style show was conceived by a few of Omaha's larger stores a little over a year ago and was carried out by them with such complete success that other stores have concluded to enter the lists this year to make of the second annual affair one for all Nebraskans as well as Omaha.

Already the Brandeis stores, Hayden Brothers, Thompson & Belden, Orkin Brothers, Kilpatrick's and some of the other larger stores are making plans for style week. Others will enter the ranks shortly and over all the shopping district there no doubt will be seen during the week of March 11 the results of close competition in manner of display and in quality of goods. Thus the buyers may be assured that during the week the very best will have been recently unpacked for their choice of purchases.

Omaha Ranks First.

One fact that certainly will be established by the openings of the various stores is that Omaha ranks first with the other cities of the land in the introduction of styles. Omaha's stores during style week will show simultaneously with New York's and Paris' stores, the newest goods and designs, and just as large and varied assortments. The latest imported and domestic apparel and fabrics and other spring style merchandise for men, women and children will be taken from the shipping boxes and placed on Omaha counters at that time. There will be new weaves, new colors, patterns and designs making their initial appearance and no doubt the show of the week will be equaled by much rivalry among the stores to show the extreme novelties.

And of these latter there is the usual assortment, especially in things for women. The Balkan blouse, for instance, will make its premier on many Omaha counters. This is an outgrowth, not of the trouble in Turkey, but of the vivid imagination of the artistic modiste's brain. It will present a suggestion of comfort for the wearer while retaining for her her natural good looks. It is a loose-fitting waist whose lower extremity strikes some where, most anywhere, below the knees and the hips and is brought close to the body by a brilliant sash which will be more or less of a flowing nature.

Water Line Raised.

Woman's waist line, many will be glad to learn, will remain practically in the same place. If there is any change, modistes say, it will be a slight rise upward, the bulging blouse and the sash at least, making it appear so. Women's skirts, it will be shown style week, are slightly looser, yet will remain tight enough to make a slash up from the ankle necessary in many instances. Some skirts will be slashed to the knee, not also a director, for the slashes will be filled in with goods or faces of color.

Riot of Colors.

And of color, there will be plenty in the dress of men and women this spring, and colors commonly described as "loud" will predominate. For men's apparel there will be at least two new shades, the Nell rose, which is somewhere between a muberry color and a rose pink, and the Dorothy blue, of a hue having more life than the Alice blue which it supplants. These shades are given the names supposedly in honor of Neil and Dorothy Wilson, daughters of the man made president today. Both are lively colors, as are the other hues which will predominate in the spring styles. There will be much use put to brilliant yellow gold, the color having been adapted by modistes to women's coats, which also will be given an added spark of life by gold brocade.

Spring hats already have been seen to some extent around Omaha streets. The displays of style, week, however, will unveil new methods of the milliner's conceit.

Hats Are Smaller.

All hats will be small and very bright of color with the advantage of narrow curled brims. They will come more closely to the head than in lines recently past, thus doing away to some extent with the long, vicious hatpin. This is conceived to be another step in the direction of common sense in woman's dress, as is evidenced in her shoe of later make, which is calculated to be more stylish the lesser the heel it has.

The decorations for the hat also introduce some innovations. Ribbons which have been somewhat submerged by the styles of the last year or so will become more in evidence, and as in the case of the other apparel, will be of the brightest colors. The algrette and plumb will take a second place to the numidi, which comes all the way from China. It is taken from the tail of the Chinese pheasant and is more durable than the algrette. The numidi comes in stalks of three to the feather usually; it has a little curl to it and is capable of taking and holding the more brilliant dyes. These are just a few of the things to be shown during style week in Omaha. Many others, such as the new rolling collar for the frilly waist, which this spring will be a modification of the Robespierre collar of last, named for General Robespierre, who died in the French revolution and could not object, many, many new and beautiful things will be placed before the eyes and within the pocketbook reach of all Omaha during this big style week event.

Taft's Last Day Busy One

Quits His Room in Executive Offices Without Backward Look.

GREET'S HUNDREDS OF PERSONS

Retiring President Receives Both Wilson and Bryan and Nebraskan Tries New Chair in Cabinet Room.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Taft's last day in the White House was one of his busiest. As a working day it did not last more than ten hours, but it was crowded with unusual events, full of incidents that fall to the man who sits in the White House and crowned with pleasant memories. The president shook hands with several hundred citizens and officials of the government; received scores of telegrams from friends all over the world; signed his name to pile after pile of pictures and letters and held three receptions.

He quitted the room he has occupied for four years in the executive offices with a smile and without a backward glance and with many a pleasant recollection of the days he has spent there. He met his old-time friends of the Washington diplomatic corps and the justices of the supreme court in the White House and last of all gave the first formal welcome in that mansion to the president-elect and Mrs. Wilson.

One of Taft's Happiest Days.

Tonight the president and Mrs. Taft were guests at a private dinner given by Miss Mabel Boardman. Altogether, as Mr. Taft told the visitors today, it was one of the happiest days of his life, and the regret he may have had over things he was unable to accomplish was more than offset by the remembrance of the pleasant paths he has walked. The president received the president-elect and Mrs. Wilson at 6 o'clock. On the bronze seal of the United States imbedded deep in the marble floor of the main hallway President Taft was waiting to receive his guests. He offered his arm to Mrs. Wilson and escorted the best "first lady of the land" to the quiet of examination by the prosecution, intimidation Saturday by W. J. Ford, assistant district attorney, that Darrow might have had employees in Burns' office caused a clash between counsel so bitter that the court was forced to warn them that they were in contempt.

Bryan Sits in Secretary's Chair.

William Jennings Bryan was one of the last distinguished visitors who saw the president in his office. Colonel Bryan came unannounced late in the afternoon. "Here's something I want to show you," said the president, as he grasped his visitor by the arm and led him to the cabinet room.

"This," continued the president, "is the cabinet room."

"I just dropped in to say farewell," he told the newspaper men as he departed. "I have many republican friends as well as those in the democratic party."

Before he left his office for the last time, the president shook hands with the members of the executive office staff.

DARROW TRIAL NEARS END

Arguments on Bribery Charge to Begin This Afternoon.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY EXAMINED

Fredericks, Questioned by Darrow, Says Tveitmo and Johannsen Were Indicted for Dynamiting of Times Building.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 4.—Cliff A. Tveitmo and Anton Johannsen, the San Francisco labor leaders, were the "John Does" in the indictment charging murder in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building, according to District Attorney John D. Fredericks, who was the principal witness today in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, charged with the bribery of jurors on behalf of the McNamara brothers.

Darrow himself played a unique double role in today's proceedings. At the forenoon session he was a witness under cross-examination under Assistant District Attorney Ford; in the afternoon he turned cross-examiner, with his chief accuser, District Attorney Fredericks, as his witness. The grilling of the prosecutor provided one of the most lively features of the trial, because of the interchange of words between defendant-counsel and prosecutor-witness and the frequent objections raised by others of the prosecution.

To Go to the Jury Thursday.

The case will go to the jury probably late Thursday. Arguments are expected to begin tomorrow afternoon, each side taking eight hours.

It was during his direct examination that Fredericks told of the "John Doe" indictments in connection with the McNamaras. He was telling of the concluding negotiations for the plea of guilty by the brothers. Attorney Leconte Davis, he said, had asked him about the disposition of the cases of others involved. The two indictments as "John Doe" he said, were the labor leaders and he told Davis he was willing that those cases should be dropped as there was very little evidence against them.

Fredericks Contradicts Darrow.

Captain Fredericks denied flatly having taken part in a conference with Davis and Darrow, as they claimed, prior to the denouncement of the McNamara case. He declared he had not been approached directly on the subject of a compromise plea for both brothers until the night of Thanksgiving day, the day before the McNamaras entered their pleas, although he had been summoned to two conferences called by those projecting the plan and had attended for a short time. He would not consent, he said, to J. J. McNamara going free.

The witness admitted on cross-examination that he had first agreed that J. J. McNamara take a sentence of ten years.

This was after the Franklin bribery expose, he said, and the time was subsequently extended to fifteen years after he had conferred with Judge Bordwell, who was trying the McNamara case. It was calculated, the witness explained, that a sentence of fifteen years would be equivalent to ten years' actual imprisonment.

Burns' Detectives Crooked.

Burns detectives peddled information to Darrow during his defense of the McNamara brothers, he testified today. Black and Burin were names mentioned. "I'm not sure whether we got anything from Berlin," Darrow testified, "but I know he was always trying to do business with us."

Darrow's testimony was given on cross-examination by the prosecution, intimidation Saturday by W. J. Ford, assistant district attorney, that Darrow might have had employees in Burns' office caused a clash between counsel so bitter that the court was forced to warn them that they were in contempt.

PRIMITIVE NEBRASKA EXHIBITED AT AUDITORIUM

Arrangements were perfected yesterday by the Federation of Nebraska Retailers to have a "Made-In-Nebraska" show, from March 5 to 11 in the Auditorium, an exhibit of the primitive Nebraska citizens who inhabited this section of the country long before the white man came. This exhibit will consist of something like eighty varieties of roots, herbs, plants, grains, cereals, etc., used by the Indians in those days. It will also have a complete exhibition of manufactured articles made by the Omahans at that time.

Prof. Melvin R. Gilmore will deliver a series of lectures, using illustrated slides, in the lecture room on Indian tribes of Nebraska. Prof. Gilmore is curator of the Nebraska State Historical society and a member of the faculty of the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. He has a most interesting collection and the exhibit will cover 500 square feet of space. It will be placed alongside of the Robert Glider prehistoric exhibit, the two forming a connecting story of the manufacturing industries of the state of Nebraska from the glacial period many thousand years ago on up to the time when the white man came to take possession of the fertile lands of Nebraska. This will be an educational feature and will be carried through down to the twentieth century by the "Made-In-Nebraska" displays.
