Sheriff McShane May Be Obligated to Pay Rent to County Sheriff Felix McShane, Jr., occupied the witness stand yesterday in Judge Day's court, in the case in which the county of Douglas seeks to collect rent from the sheriff for the use of the jail kitchen and utensils in the preparation of the prisoners' meals for which he collects 50 cents per day from the county. The courts have practically decided that he may continue to charge 50 cents per day for feeding the prisoners, and the county is now seeking to collect for the equipment he uses. He testified that the whole kitchen outfit of the jail was not worth $200. He said he had an option on a kitchen he could have rented just across the street from the court house for $50 per month if it became necessary. HIGBEE SAYS HE WAS NOT IN AUTO THAT HIT BOY C. V. Hiebe, president of the Nebraska Cider and Brewery association, is worried over the fact that his name has been used in Lincoln in connection with an auto accident, in which a pedestrian was run over and passed by without stopping. Several fellows attending the national convention got on my car out the other night and took a joy ride. It is explained, and evidently they ran over somebody. The number of the machine was gotten and my name appeared on the books at the police station. The affair was straightened up without a police court hearing and now I get no chance to make it clear that I wasn't the fellow in the car. Issues of Husbands' Troubles. WILLIAM ROCHEFORD KILLED

His Two Sons Are Injured When Street Car Hits Auto. IS PINNED BENEATH MACHINE Well Known Contractor Was Driving His Machine Across Leavenworth at Twenty-Second When Crash Comes. William Rocheford, well-known contractor, living at 2123 South Eighteenth, is dead as the result of a collision between his automobile and an east bound trolley car at Twenty-second and Leavenworth streets yesterday. His sons, Ector and William, Jr., who were in the automobile with him at the time, are badly injured and are in a hospital. Rocheford was driving north on Twenty-second street and was just crossing Leavenworth street when his auto was hit by an east bound car. The machine is completely demolished. According to Paul Huntington, a passenger on the car who was thrust through a window from the back of the impact, Rocheford was driving comparatively slow, while the street car was moving rapidly. Rocheford's view was obstructed by two high piles of brick at either side of the track, the street being torn up for repaving. The machine was directly across the rails when the car struck it and was carried along for a distance of some twenty feet before the street car could be stopped. Rocheford was thrown on the fender, with the demolished motor vehicle pinning him down across the shoulders, with the remainder of the steering shaft directly across the center of his back. The police ambulance rushed the man to the Wise Memorial hospital, but before the car had traversed half the distance he had passed on. The body was turned over to the coroner. A second trip to secure the two lads was made. Of the two, Ector was probably injured more severely. An examination at the hospital revealed the fact that his right collarbone was fractured. Both men were too badly shaken up to make any statements and no one but the immediate family and the physicians were allowed to see them at the hospital. William Rocheford was 62 years of age and was an Omaha pioneer. His home was at 2123 South Eighteenth street. Ector Rocheford lives at 242 South Seventeenth street and William, Jr., at 229 South Twenty-fourth street. At the time of the accident the trio were on their way to the firm's offices in the Paxton block. The crew of the motor car consisted of Ed Hatcher, conductor, and William Hetherington, motorman. Hetherington is said to be one of the oldest and most reliable men in the service of the company. Motorman Hetherington was arrested, but released when Superintendent of Traffic Musgrove of the street car company went to his bond, which was placed at $1,000. A post-mortem was held over Rocheford's body by Dr. S. McCleneghan, under the direction of Coroner Crosby, and a finding of death by internal injury from accident was returned. When the news of the accident reached Mrs. Rocheford, she, together with other members of the family, immediately went to the hospital. Upon arrival there she learned that her husband's injuries had been fatal. It was worse than she had expected and overcome by grief she swooned away. She was revived after a little while and was then taken home and cared for by relatives. Here Thirty-Five Years. Mr. Rocheford was born in Vermont, sixty-one years ago and learned his trade there. When he first came to Omaha about thirty-five years ago he was employed by Henry Livesey, a brickmaker and contractor. A few years later he quit work with Livesey and entered into partnership with F. P. Gould and under the contracting firm name of Rocheford & Gould built the auditorium of the St. Joseph hospital. Later they erected the Krug Brewery, Metz Brewery and the Crane & Co. building, Orpheum theater building, Armour packing plant and several other large structures. About eight years ago Rocheford & Gould dissolved partnership and Mr. Rocheford and his son, William, Jr., founded the William Rocheford & Son Co. William Rocheford owned much property in the residence section of the city, including thirteen brick houses and an apartment, all on Douglas street between Twenty-fourth and Twentieth. In addition to these he owned the independent garage at Twenty-fifth and Farnam streets and five brick terraces on Twenty-fifth street north of Chambers' academy. Mr. Rocheford leaves a wife and five sons and one daughter, who are William, Jr., Fred W., Elmer, Ector and Arthur and Mrs. W. S. Stryker.

WANTS DIVORCE BECAUSE HUSBAND HAS LIFE SENTENCE After setting forth in a petition for divorce that John Enos Stoner was guilty of cruelty toward her and that he used vile and indecent language toward her, Tirzah Stoner held the climax of her allegations for the last clause in her petition filed in district court. After running through the usual routine about cruelty and vile language, she recites that the defendant has the further fault of being under a life sentence to the state penitentiary of Missouri on the charge of murder. She then modestly prays for a divorce and asks that she have restored to her her former name, Tirzah Case.
