CABLE and telegraph offices are busy places since the European war has become so serious. The cables are sent subject to delay, especially in Austria and Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Thompson, 1024 North Thirty-ninth street, have received a cablegram from their son, Harold A., who is touring Europe with Dr. Louis Bushman, stating that both are in London and were among the Americans who made a rush from the continent across the channel into safer territory.

Rev. T. J. Mackay, who left New York July 15 for Antwerp, with Munich as his next stop, has not yet been heard from by Omaha relatives. Senator J. H. Millard and Miss Jessie Millard arrived in New York Monday on the steamer George Washington from London.

Mrs. George Palmer has cabled that she is in London and will return as soon as possible.

Mrs. John N. Baldwin cabled from Munich Sunday to her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Gulou. Mrs. Baldwin cabled in German: "Do not worry."

A cablegram has been received from Miss Frances Nash and Miss Nathalie Myers as follows: "Obliged to remain; we are all right and any cable sent through the State department to the ambassador will reach us."

A cablegram has been received here announcing the safe arrival in Paris of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Dietz, their niece, Miss Evelyn Stikney of Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Victor White and their daughter, Miss Louise White. They expect to sail for America August 19 on the Olympic.

Miss Brown will remain abroad until her graduation next spring.

Rabbi Louis J. Kopald, who sailed recently for Europe to spend a few months, was last heard from in Vienna. Since the outbreak of hostilities no word has been received from him.

T. J. Fitzmorris of the Bee, who has been in Switzerland, planned to go to Paris today, but friends here think that Mr. Fitzmorris and wife have returned to London.

Harry Kelly has had no word from his parents, who have been touring Germany, but he is quite positive that they are now in London, as they had planned to sail August 18 on the Franconia.

Dr. Harold Gifford cabled a few days ago: "Send nothing further." Relatives here think that they have made arrangements for returning.

Judge and Mrs. Ben S. Baker are now in London, and their Omaha friends are worried about the judge's financial condition. Most of his money was in checks, which, events may determine, will not be honored.

ANTI-SUFFS A JEALOUS LOT

General Rosalie Jones Says They're in Politics to Keep Others Out.

RIDICULE ENEMY'S WEAPON

Pedestrian Suffragist Speaker, However, Points Out that it is Right Step Toward Accomplishing Coveted End.

An anti-suffrage is a woman who enters into politics in order to keep some other woman out, according to "General" Rosalie Jones of suffrage and hiking fame, who mounted a real soap box on the steps of the court house and appealed in a sparkling witty manner to an audience of over 500 voters to help carry the suffrage amendment through on November 2.

The smiling "general" was roundly applauded as she mounted the steps and waited for the soap box to be brought. The first attendant didn't know Rosalie and brought a high stool, but she sent him back until he brought the genuine article, to which she is accustomed.

"We women street speakers," she began, "are like the Ford cars. We are found everywhere but in polite society, to which we are denied, but we will continue to be everywhere until the suffrage amendment is won. I see that the naturalization office in Omaha has been flooded in the last few days because the foreigners wish to insure the protection of our citizenship. If the vote is a protection to foreigners, it is also to women, and they need it."

Next Much Ridicule. We meet with a great deal of ridicule these days because ridicule is the first weapon of the enemy. After ridicule comes agitation, however, and after agitation adoption so we are hopeful.

Social workers in the east agree that women policemen are necessary to prevent crimes, but in many of the states, women policemen cannot be appointed because the law requires that they be electors.

Men as Bad as Women. After her introduction speech, "General" Jones opened the meeting to discussion.

"They say women haven't judicial minds," sang out a man on the landing.

"What do you say to that?"

"That if our legislators had judicial minds it would be better for the country."

"Women with the ballot will lower the moral standard of the community. That's what the anti's say," declared J. Conner, whose wife is a member of the Omaha Suffrage society.

"But it is the women who fill our churches and are its chief support," was the reply.

"Do you think that enfranchising the women will break up the family?" a man wanted to know.

"You may rest assured that women won't pass a law to vote early and late every day and she won't spend nearly as much time at it as she does right now in playing bridge."

"The women haven't driven out the liquor traffic in the states where they do vote," some one reminded her.

"According to that, you'd think that the saloon interests would be safe in our hands, wouldn't you? But the liquor men don't think so," was the rapid rejoinder.

GENERAL ROSALIE JONES, the New York Hiking Suffragette, snapped as she addressed the crowd in front of the Douglas County Court House in Omaha Tuesday afternoon.

When Miss Perry refused to discuss the subject any longer with Miss Holmes, Mrs. Philip Potter, president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Episcopal diocese of Nebraska, stepped into the breach and what threatened to be a rumour for fair, was cut short by the arrival of Miss Jones.

The funeral of Mrs. John D. Creighton was held at St. John's church, Twenty-fifth and California streets. A large number of friends gathered at the church and after the ceremonies followed the body to the grave.

Many women in mourning knelt about the church and prayed silently throughout the ceremony.

Father Bronnagost referred to Mrs. Creighton's good work in Omaha; to the many friends she had made by her simple, unostentatious charity, and to the long but patient suffering she endured until death brought relief.

The Catholic funeral rites were read, a song was sung and the coffin was carried to the hearse and the procession to the grave began.
