PLANS for the summer have never been at such variance and arrangements so uncertain as now.

The closing down of the travel season abroad seems to have brought about a great deal of dubiousness as to just where to go.

The Maine coast heads the list of resorts popular to Omahans. It has lured more from these parts this season than ever before.

The wedding ring was embedded in a white rose on a blue and white silk cushion, which was sent from London, England, and was carried by little Miss Ethel Elmer. About fifty guests were present. The wedding supper was followed by music and dancing on the lawn. Mr. and Mrs. Odlin will be at home at 632 North Twenty-eighth street after July 1.

"Strange Tongues" and Divine Healing Seen at Camp Meet

Cases of divine healing, persons speaking in "strange tongues" have been witnessed at the Pentecostal camp meeting now being held at Pough and Bancroft under the leadership of Rev. T. J. Leonard. Seventeen members from the Pentecostal assembly at Auburn, arrived Saturday. Ministers attending the world conference of Pentecostal ministers now going to at Minneapolis may come here.

Two received baptism Sunday, giving evidence that they were ready for this sacrament by speaking in strange tongues. Much greater evidences of divine healing are promised by the leaders of the meeting.

He is under the care of two physicians and two nurses at his home, 347 North Forty-first street, and the outcome of his serious illness is said to be very doubtful.

Overwork is given as a contributing cause of the paralytic stroke, which occurred last Wednesday morning. Mr. McCague had a severe turn for the worse Sunday night, but his condition now is reported to be slightly better.

NEGRO IS SHOT IN BACK BY STRANGE WHITE MAN

A report that a white man had shot and wounded a negro in a fight called deputy sheriffs to East Omaha Sunday night. The deputies found Arthur Alexander, a negro, with a fresh wound in the back which was the result of a shot from an unidentified white man, according to Alexander. The negro declares he had gone to the place where he was found to await the arrival of the owner, but that a strange white man appeared, demanded what he was doing, called his answer a lie and began to shoot. The white man then made his escape.

YOUNG GARDENERS EXHIBIT PRODUCE

Two Hundred Compete for Cash Prizes—Display Made at the Y. M. C. A. Building.

MANY OF DISPLAYS ARE NEAT

Burdened with armfuls of vegetables and baskets of fine, fresh vegetables, almost 200 boys and girls of the School Garden clubs entered the best of their early produce in an exhibit for fifty-four cash prizes at the Young Men's Christian association.

Besides 1,000 or more bunches of vegetables grown by the grade school youngsters, there was a special exhibit by members of the Girls' 4-H Garden club of Omaha High school, which is specializing in vegetable canning and is the first club of its kind in the United States.

Supervisor Ernest E. Dale of the garden club work was in charge of the big exhibit. Assisting him were these ten girls of the 4-H club, who helped judge the vegetables: Mabel Hoimgren, Beale Townsend, Ruth Hutton, Vera Orr, Ruth Alcorn, Mary Quinby, Mattie Wright, Florence Brunner, Alice L. Allen and Frances Byrne.

All Early Vegetables. Radishes, lettuce, onions, beans, peas, beets, turnips and spinach were the vegetables exhibited for prizes. Several of the kiddies also brought in fine potatoes to display, but no prizes were offered for them, because potatoes will be included in a second exhibit for late vegetables. The exhibit was open to the public after 1 p. m.

A total of $30 was given in prizes, $1 being first prize for each variety, 50 cents second prize and four third prizes of 25 cents. There were also prizes of $2, $1 and four of 50 cents for the best groups of any four vegetables exhibited.

Youthful Gardeners. Little Estella Houseman, only 10 years of age and one of the smallest gardeners, had a fine display. She belongs to the Park school club and this is her second year of gardening. She lives at 1115 South Thirtieth avenue.

Walter Patow, 291 North Eighteenth street, showed special enterprise in printing his own tags for his displays, which were unusually fine. He is in the Lathrop division.

Arthur Jensen, who lives on St. Mary's avenue and had a neat and attractive display from his garden, is one of the best hustlers in the garden club movement.

One of the most interesting exhibits to the many visitors was that of the high school girls, which included canned vegetables and fruit. Although they did not compete for prizes against the younger grade school children, they were very fond of their displays, especially the canned goods. The main object of the members is to can tomatoes on a comparatively large scale and sell them. Every member has at least 100 square feet of garden for tomatoes alone.
