Not less than five hours should elapse between meals. If you are troubled with indigestion correct your habits and take Chamberlain's Tablets, and you may reasonably hope for a quick recovery. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement

JULIA DOLL IS WON BY ALICE SPEAR

Contest So Keen The Bee Adds Another, and Gives Away Four Dolls.

THREE MORE FOR THIS WEEK

Well, sir, there were so many indwellers little girls gathering pictures of dollies from The Bee that we just had to add another prize.

And four beautiful dolls were won by four happy little girls last week. "Julia" was won by Alice Spear, 4514 South Nineteenth street, Omaha, with 2,546 pictures.

"Gladys," another big doll, was won by Mildred Beindorf, 602 South Thirtieth street, Omaha, with 2,167 pictures.

"Mary," a smaller but just as beautiful dolly, was won by Gladys Meisarin, 510 South Thirty-fifth avenue, with 1,717 pictures.

"Gretchen" was won by Baby Blair, 1102 Harney street, with 1,025 pictures. Baby Blair's friends have been saving pictures for her for several weeks. They never gave up, and every week they got more and more until now Baby Blair, who is only 10 months old, is happy with "Gretchen" for her very own.

Up in Fremont lives a kind-hearted little girl by the name of Beatrice Shears. She sent in 105 pictures she had collected and wrote a letter which said:

"Will you please give these coupons to some poor little girl whom you think Santa Claus won't visit and who tried to save enough, so she won't be disappointed."

Now, the great lesson in the doll contest is that the little girls who don't get discouraged, but just keep on trying, are the ones that win dollies, like Baby Blair and others.

This week is going to be another big week. Three more dolls are up for prizes. First is "Baby" and she's dressed in the loveliest clothes. She will go to the little girl under 10, who cuts the most of "Baby's" pictures from The Bee and brings them to The Bee office before 4 p. m. next Saturday. The pictures will be in The Bee every day, morning and evening. Cut them out and get all the people you can to save them for you. That's the way to win.

And the little girl with the second most pictures will win "Nata," a beautiful dolly, not quite so big.

And the girl with the third most pictures will get another beautiful doll, named "Helvye."

So there will be lots of chances to get a dear little dolly for yourself this week. Get to work right away, and get everybody you can to help you.

Besides the winners the following had over 100 pictures each: Blanche Bunson, 1543 7th Ave., Council Bluffs, 754; Geneva Maggie, 119 S. 8th, Omaha, 521; Elizabeth Whalen, 1114 S. 26th, Omaha, 521; Ida Greenburg, 519 26th Ave., Omaha, 333; Alice Irwinquist, 145 N. 49th, Omaha, 329; Margaret Egan, 1827 Evans, Omaha, 229; Anna Roseblatt, 1821 Chicago, Omaha 197; Josephine Waldor, 343 Evans, Omaha 180; Esther Berthelsen, 271 N. 26th, Omaha, 153.

VISITORS TELL OF WAR IN ENGLAND

Relatives of Omaha Women Live in City Visited by German Air Raiders.

NO LIGHTS USED IN STREETS

Mrs. Margaret Shepherd and daughters, Lottie and Ethel, arrived yesterday from Sunderland, England, on the North Sea, and are at the home of Mrs. John W. Hinson, 3235 Pratt street, who is another daughter of Mrs. Shepherd. Mrs. H. D. Black of this city also is a daughter.

The travelers crossed the Atlantic on the Cameronia, which sailed from Liverpool on Sunday, November 29. During the first night out they were equipped with life belts, and each bore a numbered tag which indicated the life boat they should occupy in case of emergency. All lights were out while passing through the danger zone.

Sunderland, a city about the size of Omaha, has been visited by air raiders during the last few months, although the town itself was not struck. A few miles from Fulwell, a suburb, where the Shepherds resided, a fair was struck by an air bomb and many people were killed. Police regulations require darkness at night. Lights in houses must be obscured.

A neighbor of the Shepherd family was fined 13 shillings during the fall for neglecting to draw a curtain after night-fall. There are no street lights. Corners of sidewalks are whitewashed to guide pedestrians after darkness sets in and lamp posts and trees along the streets are likewise whitened. Automobiles and perambulators carry small lights, which are visible only for a few feet, but are of sufficient brightness to avoid collisions.

To attend a picture show, for instance, one first enters into a darkened passage way before going into the auditorium of the theater. The purpose of all this is to prevent making the city a target for the air raiders.

Printed instructions distributed by the municipality to house-holders, state that in case of bombardment citizens should not go into the streets, but should adjust respirators to their faces to be immune from the effects of gas bombs which are hurled from the air. The respirators are face masks, which contain a solution known as hypo. Mrs. Shepherd and daughters say they slept for months with respirators at their bedside.

Bomb Fell Near Factory. Lottie Shepherd observed, not long ago, the flash of a bomb thrown from a Zeppelin. The bomb struck three miles from her home, killing nineteen men in a factory. In chronicling the news of these bomb destructions the newspapers do not give exact locations, the explanation being given by Miss Shepherd that the enemy might make use of the information in making their calculations of flight.

"I suppose you have heard Harry Lauder sing?" was a question asked. "Yes," replied Lottie Shepherd, "the last time he was in Sunderland he forgot half a jar of jam when he left his lodgings, and he walked back from the depot to get the jam."
