

COOK GOES AWAY, BUT HUNGRY FEED JUST THE SAME

Captain Kline of Salvation Army Not Daunted at Big Meal by Loss of His Cook at Critical Time.

STENOGRAPHER PLAYS CHEF

Does the Work to Satisfaction of Many Persons Seeking Food.

ALL GOES OFF IN FINE SHAPE

Just as the New Year's dinner was ready to be served to the men at the Salvation Army Industrial Home, Eleventh and Dodge streets, yesterday, Cook Stigts got a terrible toothache that sent him off in a hurry to the dentist's.

There in the kitchen was the food—a pile of meat all cut up from eight turkeys and twelve chickens, a washbowl full of mashed potatoes, kettles of carrots, corn, gravy and a big boiler of savory coffee.

Out in the big room were the hungry men, nearly a hundred of them.

Captain Kline leaped into the breach and soon he had his stenographer, Walter Monroe, arrayed in a blue apron that extended from his neck to the floor. Walter was appointed Dispenser of Turkey.

Dishwasher Larson, gray bearded and willing-handed, was put in charge of the wash boiler of mashed potatoes.

Sergeant Joe Allie slipped an old shirt over his Salvation Army uniform and helped Foreman Hodge in placing big pitchers filled with coffee on the tables.

There were six big tables seating eighty men and when the call was given they were soon filled.

Some hobbled in on crutches. M. J. Cavanaugh, a skilled tailor down on his fortunes for the time being and a member of the industrial home staff, was among them. Mr. Cavanaugh repairs old clothing that comes in and makes it fit to wear. He can take the velvet from a woman's hat and make as fine a velvet collar as a man could want on his best overcoat.

When they were all seated, Captain Kline asked God's blessing, while the men sat with bowed heads. Several voiced loud, "amen's" as the prayer was concluded.

"O, Lord, bless us and keep us during the year 1916," were the last words of the prayer. The next he turned to the captain and said: "Go to it, now, men, and if you don't see what you want ask for it."

With a right good will they fell to it like the best of trencher men. Hardly a word was spoken. A perfectly behaved gathering it was. Fortune, perhaps had not smiled her sweetest on them but when good digestion waits on appetite and turkey'n gravy on both, why?

"Let the world slide, let the world go. A fig for care and a fig for woe. And if I can't pay, why I can owe. And death makes equal the high and low."

Then the captain, while he huddled around and saw that everybody had turkey and things, made a little impromptu address in the vernacular which all understand. He said:

"I don't want you fellows to get the idea that the Salvation Army and the Liberal People Help.

captain are giving you this feed. It's the liberal people of Omaha that are slipping you this grub. All we did was to prepare it and serve it. If I had depended on the income from the industrial home to put this feed across I'd have bumped the grit sure.

"What I did to get this dinner for you was to go to some men and hit 'em up for a piece of change and they kicked in with from $1 to $10. I had enough regard for men who are down and put to burn these folks for the cash and they're the ones you can thank that your belts are tight today. A happy New Year to you all."

When, at last, the eighty could eat no more there were the last words waiting for the second table. Word had gone out that all would be accommodated as long as the grub holds out." Fortunately it held out just about as long as the hungry did. Supply and demand were exhausted at about the same time, much to the satisfaction of the fed and the feeders.
