

SWINE SHOW IN BIG HORSE BARN

Problem of Location for Big Event is Solved by Everett Buckingham.

TO BE HELD HERE IN OCTOBER

T. F. Sturges, editor of the Twentieth Century Farmer, returned from Chicago, where Omaha was definitely decided upon as the location for the National Swine show. This show will be held either during Ak-Sar-Ben week or the week immediately following. While in Chicago Mr. Sturges met with the committee from the National Swine Growers' association and presented to them the many reasons why Omaha should be the location of this great show.

"Five cities were after the swine show—St. Louis, Kansas City, Des Moines, Waterloo, Ia., and Omaha," said Mr. Sturges. "Des Moines was the closest competitor. Among the many reasons why Omaha was chosen may be mentioned the fact that it situated in the very heart of the hog producing country. Receipts of hogs at South Omaha last year were greater than at any other live stock market in the United States, with the single exception of Chicago. Then, too, the fine, well lighted and ventilated sanitary horse barns recently built at the stock yards afford ideal housing for the thousands of aristocratic hogs that are expected to be sent here from all over the country. Added to this, Omaha has a publicity bureau in connection with the Commercial club that is not equalled in any other city, and they will give aid in promoting this show among the hog raisers of the United States that will be a great help to the association in making their first exhibition a success."

Hog Association Coming.
One of the first results of the choosing of Omaha as the location of this show is the securing of the meeting of a committee of the American Poland-China Record association, which ordinarily meets in Chicago, on February 3. The reason for the change of meeting place is that they wish to have this occasion to inspect the horse barns, where the show is to be held.

Within the last few weeks W. M. McFadden of Chicago, president of the National Swine Growers' association, and James I. Doty of Shenandoah, Ia., secretary, have visited Omaha, looked over the horse barns and the city generally, and both seem to have very much impressed with what Omaha has to offer in the way of advantages for national meetings.

Offers Horse Barns.
General Manager Everett Buckingham of the local yards was great assistance in having Omaha chosen as the first meeting place. Members of the association were at a loss to provide sufficient headquarters for the exhibition of the stock unless an expenditure of $3,000 or $3,000 was awarded, when the local manager stepped forward offering the local horse and mule barns as an exhibition barn. The offer was immediately accepted, and affiliated swine organizations of the country Thursday voted Omaha as their first meeting place.

Outside the Yards.
While the horse barn is located at the stock yards it is entirely outside the yards and a long distance from the hog division, so that the show hogs would not come in contact with market hogs and be exposed to cholera. They would be unloaded at special chutes and would not

The Strange Case of Mary Page

By Frederick Lewis, Author of "What Happened to Mary" Pictures by Essanay

(Copyright, 1914, by McClure Publications; SYNOPSIS.

Mary Page, accused of the murder of James Pollock, and is defended by her lover, Philip Langdon. Pollock was intoxicated, she a drunk and the Pollocks, was on the fire escape watching for Langdon.

He caught up the woman as he spoke and thrust it under her eyes. The maid, with a quivering little scream of horror, shrank back amid a murmur of sympathy from the crowd. She could not speak.

"Isn't it true?" persisted the prosecutor harshly. "Answer my question—or tell us just what you did see when you came into the theater upon your return from the errand."

Bursting into a storm of tears, Janet flung out her arms in a wild gesture. "It is true," she sobbed. "Miss Page, my mademoiselle, she was standing—and she had her revolver—pointed at Mr. Pollock—and he—he—ran out of the room."

At the words, Mary, whose hands had been twitching nervously throughout the maid's story, rose to her feet with a little gasping cry as if she would speak, but before the words came she swung suddenly about and crumpled into a little heap on the floor.

In an instant the whole room was on its feet, surging forward toward the dock, and the sobs of the maid were echoed by more than one woman among the spectators, where sympathy for the time ran high, though the pendulum swayed back when someone said sharply with a derisive laugh:

"She's a good actress, is Mary Page!"
But the judge's gavel quelled the excitement and the dire threat back of his curt words that unless there was order in the court he would clear the room, was like oil upon the troubled waters of the sea of onlookers, and they sat in hushed silence as Mrs. Page and Langdon knelt beside the unconscious form of the slim young prisoner, bathing her temples and shaking her wrists until the momentary respite of novelty forsook her and she opened her eyes to the suffering of reality.

At the sight of the fear on both Langdon's and her mother's face, however, she struggled bravely to regain her self-control, and when the clerk called the next witness, she was again in her chair. Very white and wan, but erect, her pallid lips set firmly to hold back the threatening tides of emotion and weariness that were sweeping over her.

The drumming in her ears and the little waves of nausea that are the aftermath of a fainting fit made events blurred to her for a little time, and it was with a start of surprise that she recognized in the new witness her erstwhile leading man.

The mere sight of his graceful figure and his boyish face; that handsome juvenile expression that was his stock at any point pass through the stock yards.

While the details of the plan have not been worked out it is proposed to appropriate a large sum for premiums. It is expected that the cash prizes will be large enough to attract the best breeders of hogs in all sections of the country, east as well as west. If the swine show proves to be as popular and as successful as its promoters anticipate it is planned to make it an annual event at Omaha.

FAIRMONT TEAMS WIN.

MAY HAVE STEAM COAL SHORTAGE

Dealers Says There is Only Enough on Hand to Last for Forty-Eight Hours.

SEVERAL TRAINS ON THE WAY

While it is asserted that there is no particular alarm felt over the situation, it is admitted that here in Omaha the coal proposition has reached a somewhat serious stage. The facts are that right now the supply of steam coal is extremely short and there is not enough on hand to last more than forty-eight hours. However, there is plenty en route from the mines and the only thing that would bring on a steam-coal famine would be a storm of sufficient severity to tie up the railroads.

So far as domestic coal is concerned, there is an abundant supply in storage, with the exception of some of the poorer grades of soft coal.

Steam coal is used in the heating plants of all of the office and factory buildings, and consequently the demand for this class of fuel is the greatest. It is sold at a close margin and dealers, instead of laying in stocks and delivering from their yards, take it off the cars as they arrive, thus making delivery to customers.

Comes from Kansas.
A good portion of the steam coal burned in Omaha comes from the fields at Pittsburg, Kan. It is found at a depth of six to ten feet, and instead of securing it by sinking shafts, the ground is stripped off the coal veins and the coal loaded onto cars by steam shovels, similar to those used in excavating for foundations.

For the last two weeks the weather in the vicinity of Pittsburg has been so bad that men have been able to work out of doors only a portion of the time. As a result the output has been materially lessened.

It is asserted that at this time there are more than a dozen trains of steam coal en route to Omaha from the Kansas mines, due to arrive within the next two or three days. If this gets in as expected, no inconvenience is going to be experienced, but if these trains should be laid out by a storm or snow blockade, Omaha's steam coal supply is going to be very short.

Conductor Drops Unconscious from Ptomaine Poison

Charles Stuart, conductor on a West Leavenworth street car, lay on the rear platform of his car last night for many minutes unconscious from an attack of ptomaine poisoning before he was discovered. It was around 7 o'clock and the car was speeding along in the neighborhood of Forty-fifth and Bedford avenue, when the motorman, noticing that he had received no signals of any kind from his conductor for some time, went to the rear of the car and found his companion prone on the platform, unconscious.

Police surgeons were summoned, and the man was removed to his home, 315 South Twentieth street, where his condition is now said to be improving.

MAYOR SAYS MORE LIGHT IS NEEDED

Lack of Funds Prevent More Lights, but Proposed Plan Will Give More Lamps at Same Cost.

WAITED FOR THE LEGISLATURE

The electric street lighting situation is commanding attention just now among city commissioners and citizens. Mayor Dahman expressed his views in this manner:

"During the last year and a half the commissioners have been sought time and again by citizens who demand more lights. We held the matter off about two years ago on the strength that the legislature would relieve the situation, but we all know what happened at that time.

"With our present funds and under the present system we can not add more lights, but under the plan proposed by the city electrician it appears we can add nearly 500 more lamps without increasing the expense.

"Some are talking about the city buying the equipment and then getting the current from the company on a straight measured basis, the electric lamps to be handled on the same plan as the gas street lighting now is managed. If anybody will show me where the money can be found for buying the equipment now, then I will be for that plan, but what I want is to get these people more lights now, otherwise I intend to fix the responsibility where it belongs. At the best it would take several years for the city to get a municipal plant in operation. I am for municipal ownership of the electric light plant if such ownership can be kept out of politics, but I do not propose to allow a man to get control of the electric light plant and then use it as a stepping stone to get himself elected governor or United States senator."

KNIGHTS AND LADIES OF SECURITY IN UNION MEET

The Knights and Ladies of Security of Greater Omaha held their first union meeting at the Swedish auditorium Thursday evening. Several more of the union meetings are planned in order to create a "not-together" spirit among the various councils of the city. The program opened with a vocal solo by Dan L. Cahill assisted by Mrs. George Allen. Nathan Bernstein gave an interesting talk of "Doctrine of Service." Following the speaking the floor was cleared for dancing.

Indigestion May Be Due to Constipation

Neglect of Important Function May Seriously Impair Health.

There are many people who believe they suffer from indigestion when their discomfort really is due to a constipated condition.

Bloat, with its attendant mental depression, sick-headache, the belching of sour stomach gases, etc., are frequently due to inaction of the bowels. Relieve the congestion and the trouble usually disappears. The use of cathartics and purgatives should be avoided, however; these shock the system unnecessarily and at best, their effect is but temporary. A mild laxative is far preferable.

The compound of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle, is highly recommended. Mr. Benj. Bassin, 309 Madison St., Gary, Ind., thinks Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a wonderful medicine; for four years he had a severe case of indigestion and constipation before trying Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which he is glad to recommend to all who suffer with stomach and bowel trouble.

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be in every home for use when occasion arises. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 654 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.
