FACTORIES FOR OREGON

As a result of the exhaustion of eastern forests, many inquiries are coming to Portland Chamber of Commerce in regard to the wood supply of Oregon, and the cost of the various kinds. Pencil manufactures, clothespin makers, firms engaged in making baskets, washboards, wooden piping and even cork, are anxious to obtain a new supply of wood. In consequence, a new market is being created for Oregon lumber and it is predicted that within the next few years many factories, using wood in producing the various articles, will be established throughout the state. Klamath County is well supplied with an abundance of the finest timber on the coast, and if the proper effort is made, there is no reason why we should not secure some of these factories.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

Senator Carter, of Montana, has made a strong plea for the establishment of postal savings banks by the government. "The bill" said Mr. Carter, responds to the long continued and earnest demands of the people for the use of the post offices as saving depositories. Dwellers in remote country districts will have the same inducement to economize and save now enjoyed by those residing in the vicinity of the best conducted savings institutions in large cities. The incalculable benefits to the people and to the government destined to flow from the establishment of postal depositories no one can estimate, but all can appreciate. A prudent, thrifty man is rarely, if ever, a delinquent citizen, and good citizenship insures good government and respect for law. That which will tend to discourage extravagance and encourage a saving disposition will surely tend to suppress vice and encourage virtue.

FOLK FOR PRESIDENT

Following the meeting of a few big guns in Democratic national politics in Chicago, it is reported that Governor Folk of Missouri may be a compromise candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. This possibility was discussed at a meeting between Chairman Taggart of the Democratic national committee, Secretary Urey Woodson of Kentucky, Norman E. Mack of New York and Roger Sullivan of Illinois. An attempt may be made to nominate the governor in case less than two thirds of the delegates to the Denver convention are for Bryan, and that a few more than one third are for Johnson.

The large number of people in Oregon who were persuaded by land locators that they were entitled to some of the rich timber land within the Southern Pacific land grant, have found themselves sadly disappointed. Over 300 applications were recorded at Albany alone, and according to reports from the department of justice, they are not worth the filing fee, to say nothing of the money paid for locating. When the matter was first made public, the rush for these claims were akin to madness, and parties well versed on the subject declared that not one of them could possibly acquire any prior rights to the land in question. Notwithstanding this the madness for timber lands reached such a height that hundreds were induced to pay large sums into the hands of locators, whose only motive was gain.

Republican Candidates

U. S. Senator—Hon. H. M. Cke, aka U. S. Senator, is all that we can ask for in one candidate. Mr. Cke is a man of pleasing appearance, an eloquent speaker, a man that understands the political situation. While many regret that Mr. Fulton was beaten, yet we realize, by the vote Mr. Cke received in his home county that he is as popular there as Mr. Fulton was here. Mr. Cke is deserving of his party vote.

Congressman—W. C. Hawley points to his past record with pride; in fact his record is his platform.

Justice of the Supreme Court—R. S. Bean needs no special mention.

Dairy and Food Commissioner—J. W. Bailey is also a Winner.

R. R. Commissioner—T. K. Campbell is a man for the people and is entitled to the support of the entire party.

Prosecuting Attorney D. V. Kuykendall, as Prosecuting Attorney, is practically without opposition. He is well qualified and Klamath and Lake Counties are to be congratulated on having been able to place so competent an attorney in nomination for the place.

State Senator—Geo. H. Merryman, as State Senator, is a rising young Statesman having served one term in the Lower House and demonstrated his ability.

Representatives—Our State Representatives, H. P. Belknap and H. A. Brattain, are strong candidates and will more than poll their party strength.

Sheriff—W. B. Barnes is well qualified to fill the office, having served as assessor of Lake County, also as deputy sheriff. He has a good education, is an active man, well acquainted with all the surrounding county and make an efficient officer. Vote for him.

County Clerk—C. R. Delap, as County Clerk, is well known to you all, having served this county as School Superintendent in a way that is a credit to himself. He is now serving as Deputy Sheriff of this county and is known to be a thoroughly competent man.

County Treasurer—L. Alva Lewis, as Treasurer, is well known to you all and he points with pride to his past record.

School Superintendent—J. G. Swan is a man that has been conspicuously before the public for the past five years and has accomplished wonders in educational lines. He is well fitted for the place.

Assessor—Bert E. Withrow, as Assessor, is the right man in the right place, having served a number of years in the Abstract Office and having a complete abstract of every piece of deeded land in the county, puts him in a position to better judge the value of real estate than any other man we know.

County Surveyor—M. D. Williams has been conspicuously before the public during his term of office. His work speaks for his efficiency.

County Commissioner—C. J. Swingle is a pioneer of Klamath County. He is a conservative business man and has made a success with his own business ventures, and it is fair to assume that he will do as well with the county business.

Fish and Sleep. Aristotle, over 300 years B. C., laid it down that fish sleep, like other animals, and to an extent the old philosopher was correct. Recent scientific experiments have shown that carp, dace, roach, tench, gudgeon and minnows among fresh water fishes sleep periodically, like many living terrestrial creatures, and that of the marine fishes the bass, wrasse, dogfish, dory, conger and all the flat fish do the same. The salmon tribe, the goldfish, the pike and the angler fish rest periodically, but never really sleep, while with those fishes which actually sleep there is no preference for night over day for the purpose. Fishes have very little brain, so that there is not much need for the recuperation in their case of cerebral energy—that is to say, bodily rest without sleep will mostly suffice to make up for the resultant fatigue of piscatorial activity.

The Ostrich. Professor Duerden in the report of the South African Association For the Advancement of Science alludes to a curious habit of the ostrich, which may have given rise to the once widely spread belief that it tries to hide itself by burying its head in the sand. The young chicks, it appears, when alarmed lie down flat on the ground, with the neck stretched out. In this position they harmonize with their surroundings and are not easily seen. If taken up they are found to be limp and helpless and do not recover for some time. This is an instance—not uncommon in the animal world—of death feigning for protective purposes. Adult ostriches, however, being swift of foot, usually seek safety in flight. At times, however, if suddenly alarmed, as by the appearance of a man from the top of a kopje or from behind an ant hill, an adult bird will collapse and fall to the ground with outstretched neck. This Professor Duerden thinks, may be a retention of the death feigning instinct of the chick, and it has probably given rise to the fiction that the ostrich tries to escape observation by hiding its head in the sand.

There are some very attractive people in the world whose strong point seems to be making resolutions and getting some one else to keep them.

Profound Emotional Sense. Hold out your hands to feel the luxury of the sunbeams. Press the soft blossoms against your cheek and finger their graces of form, their delicate mutability of shape, their pliancy and freshness. Expose your face to the aerial floods that sweep the heavens. "Inhale great drafts of space," wonder, wonder at the wind's unwaried activity. Pile note on note the infinite music that flows increasingly to your soul from the factual sonorities of a thousand branches and tumbling waters. How can the world be shriveled when this most profound, emotional sense, touch, is faithful to its service? I am sure that if a fairy bade me choose between the sense of sight and that of touch I would not part with the warm, endearing contact of human hands or the wealth of form, the nobility and fullness that press into my palms—Helen Keller in Century.

The Mares of Mohammed. In bygone days there was no more enthusiastic breeder of horses than the Prophet Mohammed. In the course of time he became the owner of a vast number of mares, and the point was how to arrive at a selection of the very best. At last, says Country Life, he hit upon the following scheme: For three days and nights the mares were kept without water; then they were loosed and, as might have been expected, tore madly off to their usual watering place. Just as they were on the very brink of the water the trumpeter blew the war signal or assembly. Muddled with the thirst, the mares forgot their training, all save five, who, forgetting their own urgent need, galloped back at once to seek their masters. These five mares were set apart by Mohammed as representing the pick of his stud, and from them, we are told, descended the best and noblest breed of horses.

Imaginary Conversations. Charles I. of England and Louis XVI. of France were discussing various methods of execution at the clubhouse of the Associated Shades society, and Charles frankly confessed that his had hurt him. "It wasn't the ax so much as the thought that there at the last minute I was cut by one of my own former employees," he observed. "You'd have thought he'd never met me before." "The guillotine was absolutely painless," said Louis. "You'd hardly believe it, but it is true that I didn't even know the thing had happened until next morning, when I started to brush my hair and discovered that my head was gone. It was the shock of that discovery really that killed me." Annals and Baron Munchausen were so affected by this story that they left the clubhouse weeping.—John Kendrick sang to Harper's.
