KLAMATH FALLS, MONDAY EVENING, JULY 20, 1908

A one-time popular song had the refrain: "In spite of all the things you hear, times is mighty hard; a dollar a day is mighty poor pay, working on the bou-le-ward." And so it is, but a dollar a word is different, and that is what they say is to be paid Roosevelt when he works for a living. That's pretty good wages—a dollar a word and no space limit. It oughtn't take long to pay off the accumulation of grocery bills that the average president is said to always carry away from the White House with him. One can almost imagine Mr. Roosevelt, back at his trade of author, planning an almost fiendish revenge, for there is little room for doubt that even he has had his little experiences with unappreciative publishers, and has had that sinking feeling that is always brought on by the appearance of that long envelope that gets to be such a regular thing in the lives of so many authors who have not yet arrived. In the name of other struggling writers who are passing through what he long ago probably experienced, Mr. Roosevelt from his dollar a word pinnacle might be appealed to. Now that the publishers are running after him as so many writers have so long ran beseechingly after the publishers, let the great man stand up for the down-trodden brotherhood of authors. Let him have some neat little white slips printed bearing the words: "Thanks, awfully, for the privilege of declining your offer. Remember declination does not necessarily mean lack of merit in your publication." Let him send these regularly and steadily to all applicants for his service, and he will avenge the heartfelt wrongs of a vast multitude. From his dollar a word coin as well as coigne of vantage he can afford to do this.

A well known Roseburg man met two women, stopped and conversed with them. As he did so he raised his hat in salutation and removed his cigar. When he left them his hat was again raised. In this he did as every well bred gentleman would do. Soon afterward he met his wife on the street and stopped to talk to her, but there was no motion of hand to hat either at meeting or parting. Everbody knows that the incident is by no means unusual. Yet is there any reason why the wife should not receive the same courteous recognition as the mere acquaintance? When a girl takes upon herself the marriage vows at the altar, is it right that she should thereby give up all claim to the little courtesies of life previously paid to her by the man she married? Why should a husband be less polite to his wife than other men are to her? Why is it that when you see a man greet a woman on the street without the usual salutation of a gentleman you invariably say, whether you know them or not, "He's her husband."—Umpqua Valley News.

Paul Delaney, editor of the Death Valley Magazine, published in a remote mining camp of Nevada, has succeeded in starting a life-sized Indian scare. Paul declares that Navajo Indians are going out on the warpath, and we may expect to hear of much bloodshed along the borders of civilization in the very near future. Doubtless he has his "dope" very badly mixed, for it is not likely that anything of the kind will take place. Those Indians have long since gotten out of the habit of doing the war dance, and want nothing more in life than a little flour, bacon and tobacco and the opportunity to doze in the sun.—Eugene Guard.

Let us hope that the hotels will put a stop to the real estate nuisance that is now being maintained in the lobbies.

The foresighted woman hesitates before ordering. Suppose one of those directorate gowns should shrink.

BONANZA BULLETIN ITEMS.

Interesting Notes About People and Conditions in Upper Project.

Roy Hamaker and wife, of Klamath Falls, were in the city Monday and Tuesday visiting friends and relatives.

C. J. Heidtman, who has been visiting his mother in San Francisco the past six weeks, returned home Saturday.

Jeane D. Walker was in town Monday from his ranch in Langell valley. He says his rye will go a ton to the acre and that he will have plenty of feed for the winter.

Many of the farmers have been busy the past few days putting up their hay crops. The crop is rather light but with what was left from last year they think that there will be an abundance for feed this winter.

In casting about for a motive for a permanent fete day, Bonanza has decided in favor of kite-flying. On Saturday, August 1st, will be inaugurated an annual festival of the kites. There will be no trying, exhaustive program; simply a big picnic party on Bowne Island, where provisions will be made for the comfort of everyone. And here the kite-flying contests will be held.

Butchers Close at 7 O'clock.

We, the undersigned butchers of the city of Klamath Falls, hereby give notice to the public that hereafter we will close our shops at 7 o'clock every evening except Saturday when we will remain open as usual.

The Waist Came Back.

"The other day I hung my prettiest waist out on the line at the kitchen window," said the fat dweller, "after I washed it. Then I forgot all about it, and when I went to look for it two days later it was gone. I rushed frantically down to the janitress, and we climbed together over the coal into the area to look for the waist. I lamented deeply. It was a beautiful waist. We couldn't find it. The janitor came from the next house and helped us look, but there was nothing doing. I came sadly in at the window back over the coal and ascended to my sixth story flat.

"The next day I looked in the drawer of my chiffonier and found the waist there. Say anything to the janitress? Well, I reckon not."—New York Press.

Curbing the Suffragette.

"It's all right, Mary," he said patiently. "Go in for politics and stand for the London county council if you want to. But remember one thing—the cartoonists will be after you as soon as you're a candidate."

"I don't care."

"And they'll put your picture in the paper with your hair out of curl and your hat on crooked."

"Do you think they would do that?" apprehensively.

"Of course. And they'll make your Paris gowns look like calico and say that your sealskin cloak is imitation."

"William," she said, "I think I'll just stay here and make the home happy."—London Tatler.
