

SCHOOL INDEMNITY LANDS NOT YET READY

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27.—At the instance of Governor West, Senator Chamberlain inquired of the general land office why it suspended the state school indemnity selections pending nomination in the field as to the mineral character of the land, the power site and irrigation possibilities. The governor thought it was none of the government's business. The land office replies that under an office order of November 29, 1910, and a departmental order of January 11, 1912, the department must make such examinations.

GEORGE McLEAN IS ON TRIAL

out and shooting them when there is any dispute about them."

"The witness said that he was present when McLean was arrested, and that the defendant had then said:

"You are mistaken, Mr. Winnard. I brought that mare from the desert."

"Did the defendant make any effort to get out of the country with the mare?" asked Mr. Shaw.

"No."

"Isn't it a fact that he drove the mare around openly for some time, making no effort to conceal her?"

"I suppose so. I live two and a half miles from the main road."

"How do you know this mare had been branded over?"

"It's too simple; anyone can tell it."

Fred Fleet, son-in-law of Winnard, was next called to the stand. He had come to this county from Hepler with Mr. Winnard and family, and was able to identify the mare.

Fleet corroborated the testimony given by his father-in-law as to the identification of the mare, and, on cross-examination sprung the first intimation of a sensation. He was asked concerning the brand, the "trunk-handle," formerly used by Winnard.

The reason this brand was not continued here was asked to be explained.

"It is too easy for a person to cover over with a pig-pen," was the reply.

It developed later that the witness had formed a poor opinion of the character of the defendant, basing this on information given him by neighbors.

Howard Winnard, a young son of H. E. Winnard, was next called. He corroborated the testimony of the two preceding witnesses, and nothing new was developed from his testimony.

George Noble and Clifford Vermillion were the principal witnesses this afternoon. The former testified that he had seen McLean in February at the Duncan place, and had recognized two of the horses then in the defendant's possession. One of them, the witness declared, was the property of Winnard, the mare in controversy, and the other was the property of Will Edal, a partner of Frank Grohs in the horse business.

Vermillion testified that he had seen the same horses at the Frank Swaugh ranch. The mare involved in the case had recently been branded and the scars were still discernable. The witness said further that he had seen McLean at the desert country in 1910, and at that time had seen a mare in McLean's possession known as "Maud."

Subsequently when witness met McLean at the Swaugh ranch he had asked the defendant what mare he had with him, indicating the Winnard mare. The defendant had replied that it was "Maud."

The prosecution will call a number of other witnesses, and it is not probable that the defense will commence until late Monday afternoon or Tuesday.

The jurors selected are S. B. Low, Charles Mack, Jess Turner, Edgar Virgil, Frank Irish, W. S. Slough, F. T. Nelson, W. P. McMillan, L. H. Rath, M. L. Allison, John Koonz and W. H. Weedon.

series of peaks, some snow-capped, and all easy of access to the mountain climber or camper.

"Beginning in the northeast, and continuing around the edge of the drainage basin of the lake are the Red and Blue Blanket, Jefferson, Mazama, Scott, Union, Seven Mile Peak, Pelican, Harriman, Odessa Range, Aspen, Long and Eagle Ridge, while in the near distance is Mount McLaughlin, or Pitt, and 120 miles to the south in California the hoary old giant, Mount Shasta. At the base of each of these mountains are lakes which feed down precipitous bluffs and through deep, cool canyons to Klamath Lake, and meet the depletion caused by the United States government canal, which has under way in the Klamath Basin. It is the intention of the Johnsons to build trails to all the lakes at the base of the chain of mountains adjacent to Pelican Lodge so that they will be easy of access, whereas at present it is necessary to take an experienced guide to penetrate the fastnesses where dwell the black, brown and grizzly bear, mountain lion and wildcat.

"Upon these hills and mountains is a wealth of timber, something like 25,000,000,000 feet. Of this, 10,000,000,000 is on the Indian reservation, 7,000,000,000 in the United States government reserve and 8,000,000,000 belongs to private holdings. One-sixth of the coniferous or white pine timber of the United States is included. Already the lumber industry is assuming an important position in the manufacturing industries of Klamath Falls and at the White Pelican landing, we were shown the saw mill section, where were located the Long Lake Lumber company, cutting 40,000 feet a day; the Pelican Bay Lumber company, with an output of 250,000 feet per day, and the new mill of the California Cannery Association, which is manufacturing boxes for its plants throughout the Sacramento, San Joaquin and Santa Clara Valleys."

C. E. Atkinson, the local merchant, has returned from a visit to Spokane, where he formerly lived.

E. G. Argraves was out on the street this morning for the first time since his recent sickness. He has had a fever, and it was feared for a time that it might be typhoid.

LABOR SITUATION HAS IMPROVED IN FEW DAYS

For the first time this summer there is a sufficiency, but not a surplus of labor in Klamath Falls.

For several days considerable work has been delayed because of the scarcity of help, but a number of men have come here from the quiet Willamette Valley towns, and now work in building, street paving and farming in this vicinity is proceeding at a rapid rate.

It was expected that in order to secure men it would be necessary to increase the rate of pay to considerable more than is now being paid in other sections of the country, but so far this has not been found necessary, except in isolated cases.

A report has been started that there are many idle men here, and that crime is now on the rampage. On the contrary, aside from one case, where a man lost $17 by burglary, and another complaint made that a drunken man had entered a house, there has not been an official complaint made to the local police in two weeks.

"It is true that there are a few men lounging about the city who apparently have no visible means of support," said Chief of Police Smith, this afternoon, "but they have all been here for a long time, and have never been known to do anything worse than gamble whenever a favorable opportunity is offered them. They have friends here, and do not strictly come under the vagrancy law, as I understand it."

"And speaking about gambling, I have heard recently of no gambling games being conducted here."

Social Events of the Week

RESUME OF THE SOCIAL EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK GATHERED FOR HERALD READERS—THE COMINGS AND GOINGS OF SOCIETY'S PETS

The moon looks down upon a silver lake—for miles and miles the shimmering ripples play over the length and breadth of Lake Ewauna, whose gleaming southern curve lies sharp-cut against the lowlands. On the farther side the gentle slopes and swelling hills that rise from the water's edge are silhouetted black against a blue-gray sky, while the receding folds of misty peaks dissolve in the distance. Along the northern shore shine the yellow electric lights that betoken the habitation of man, and climbing the rugged bluffs and nestling in the draws lies the slumbering town that will awake some day into a greater Klamath. And the moon looks down: from the rising of the same to the setting thereof, she keepeth watch.
