GOLDEN RULE THE PEOPLES STORE

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

BY MARGARET MARON (Written for the United Press)

(Written for the United Press) The hat upon Beinda's hair Tips up with just a little flare; Her collar flares; her Russian coat Flares out decidedly, you'll note; And in a manner quite discreet Her full skirt flares above her feet. In fact most everything she'll wear Flares up and out a bit somewhere. But I don't care a bit, do you? Unless her temper flares up, too.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Isn't it just like Fashion to decree flaring coats and skirts for the winter season, when chill blasts find getting under flares the easiest thing they know? It's a great little chance, though, for lovely woman to get back into her old stride, for she actually can get there now, with a long, swinging gait, in the new full skirts. Some are frankly gathered or skirred on the waist bands, Margaret Maron while in some other models all over pleats offer complete emancipation to nether limbs. Of course, this summer many pleated skirts of filmy materials were tried out either as under skirts beneath long tunics of lace or chiffon, or the tunics themselves were pleated over a scant and plain underskirt. Now, however, there are pleats a-plenty—sun, box and accordion—and the entire skirts of the smartest tailor suits and frocks, as well as the diaphanous evening gowns are made of 'em.

Indeed, the tailored girl's whole toilet is replete with pleats for the newest chimeettes and lawn esteves are all finely pleated like the bosom of a man's dress shirt, and even the flaring roll collar attached to the chemisette is also pleated. And while on the subject of rolling collars it is sad to relate but true, nonetheless, that fair femininity is going to get it in the neck again this season. In plain words, the high collars have already many a fashionable throat in its vise-like clutch, and is shown on all the chic plain tailored blouses for the fall and winter. Along with the high tight collar is returned the high lace shoe. With her coats, blouses, skirts and sleeves so lavishly garnished with buttons a la Militaire, it probably is a relief for a much buttoned maiden to feel that at least her feet are buttonless. Hence some of the very best ankles are all wrapped up in shoe strings. But to return to the flaring points. The really most flagrant flares of all are found on the coat and wraps. For street wear the redingote coats are the thing in the suit line, but the separate coats are all cut like a Cossack's, and the most stunning are finished around the bottom, cuffs and collars with wide bands of fur—skunk, monkey or sable preferred.

The Cossack coat for evening wear has almost the same cut as the street coat for day wear, but is developed in brilliant hues of chiffon velvet, one exquisite model is of yellow velvet, the shade of a California poppy. A long, loose waist line is indicated by a wide band of dull gold galloon and the wide collar, deep cuffs like two muffs, and broad banding around the flaring skirt is of sable. The lining is of old blue chiffon, long, loose capes flaring out about the heels and banded with fur are also lovely for evening wraps, and are made of velvet also. An adorable one of magenta velvet with a broad band of chinchilla around the feet has a Capuchine in lieu of a collar.

Carrying out the ever popular black and white effect, a white velvet cape is trimmed in monkey fur, its pointed hood furnished with long jet tassels and a gorgeous salmon velvet coat, or rather a wrap, shows a sleeve on one side with a deep skunk cuff. On the other side it wraps around the figure like a cape. A dull silver ornament of metalised embroidery fastens the cape side over to the sleeve side, and a wide band of skunk finishes the bottom and the neck. Almost all of the wraps are made of plain unfigured velvet, but so brilliant are the colors and so rich the combination with the fur bandings that the effects obtained are positively dazzling to the naked eye, and a bit staggering also to father's denuded back roll.

Time Here to Send Out the Exhibits

If Klamath county is to be represented at the Eastern and Middle Western land shows and on the traveling exhibits this year, those having good specimens of grains, fruits, vegetables, etc., must get busy at once, and bring in their offerings. The Klamath Chamber of Commerce will send these on to Portland. The following "S. O. S." call has been sent out by C. C. Chapman, Oregon state immigration agent: "Specimens for Eastern exhibits should be consigned immediately to

MOVING PICTURES

The multi-reel feature film has made a distinct hit in Klamath Falls. These films of standard plays, battles, etc., are secured at an enormous outlay, with the best talent procurable, and strict attention to historical correctness, and they have a much stronger appeal than the average vaudeville act booked in here. Not that this is a slam at the local theaters, for they try to get the best, but have to take a chance on what is sent them. Sometimes an act will be really of merit, but that is sometimes.

Manager A. Y. Tindall is congratulating himself upon securing for the Orpheus theater the five reel reproduction of "The Battle of Gettysburg," a military triumph. This was taken on the actual battlefield, and thousands of men participated in the reproduction of the bloody three days conflict. The accuracy of the scenes are guaranteed by the fact that survivors of the Titanic struggle in the 60's directed this part of the work. The battle picture will be shown Sunday and Monday nights.

Klamath Falls people were divided regarding Joe Knowles, the Nature Man, who went into the tall uncut near Grants Pass to wrest a livelihood from the primitive. In order to give them a better chance to decide, though, the Temple has just arranged for the movies taken at the Knowles camp, and these will be shown at an early date.

A seven reel rendition of "The Sea Wolf," Jack London's powerful story, will be the bill at the Star theater Saturday and Sunday. Hobart Bosworth appears in the role of "Wolf Larsen," the predominating character in the story, and he is supported by an able cast. "The Sea Wolf" is one of the most interesting books of the century, and in the motion pictures, the dual personality of the sealer—outwardly a cruel, cunning bully, securing obedience by his mighty strength and brutality, while inwardly a true student, struggling for knowledge, with a clear insight into the emotions stirring the writers of world famous passages—is clearly and forcefully brought out. The picture, it is promised, will be found fully as interesting as "The Squaw Man."

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS OCCASIONALLY IF YOU EAT MEAT REGULARLY

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys. The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications. Your attention—do we have it? LISTEN! Many a square meal is spoiled in the making by unwise grocers who think of profit's rather than quality. Stale butter, bad eggs, cheap coffee, poor potatoes, inferior off-brand canned goods, any one of which, to say the least, will spoil an otherwise perfect meal.

Some grocers make it a point of honor never to sell an article that is "off." They build up a reputation from which they are inseparable. Their WORD, as it were, is a trade mark, and becomes a force and power in their business.

WE KNOW IT. Our customers know it—others know it. And still there are others who should know it for their own sake.
