FLAG DAY

SAID HENRY WARD BEECHER: "It's not a painted rag. It is a whole national history. It is the Constitution. It is the Government. It is the free people that stand in the government on the constitution."

The anniversary of the birth of the American flag has become the occasion for fitting observances of the kind that re-kindles latent patriotism, and today, more than at any other time, the observance is one of appeal to every citizen. The shadows cast by coming events are largely responsible.

With Charles Evans Hughes, the choice of the people, a nominee for the presidency; with Theodore Roosevelt, an acknowledged leader in this country, renouncing his intention to again seek the presidency, and instead, falling into line for the support of the people's choice and a return of republicanism, the flag observance takes on a new significance this year. It means that with the coming change of administration, the American flag will be restored its prestige on land and sea, that the "new freedom" we have been hearing of as a possibility of late, will emerge from Utopia into Reality as "undiluted Americanism," with beautiful but ineffective phraseology supplanted by judicious action.

Scattered Shots

WHO SAID, "Where's my coat," to-day?

MUST HAVE BEEN a fellow arguing on selling needless junk.

"WHAT IS THERE?" queried W. H. A. Renner, our nearest counterpart of Justice Hughes, who admires Wilson only because he likes baseball; "what is the one factor in connection with this here national game that makes it so uncertain, and changes a lot of otherwise staid citizens into a howling, yelling mob?"

"THE UMPIRE," sagely replied the "cheerful" idiot, sitting back of W. H. A. R. at last Sunday's game.

NOW THAT HUGHES is nominated, there is a whole lot of real prosperity—for a return of real prosperity.

TWENTY-FOUR QUART orders are just now taking precedence over the two-quart variety, according to Dorris advice.

A Talk With a Klamath Falls Man

D. C. Smith, Carpenter, of 22 Ninth Street, Tells of an Interesting Experience

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Klamath Falls man:

"I used to be subject to lumbago, which, at times, was very severe. Often my back got so lame and stiff that it bothered me a great deal when I came to straighten up. Whenever I feel this trouble coming on, I start taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and they always relieve the misery in my back and make it possible for me to get about as well as ever."

Price, 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Smith had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Roosevelt Shows Signs of Illness While in Gotham

ROOSEVELT ON HIS RECENT PREPAREDNESS TOUR

United Press Service
NEW YORK, June 14.—Colonel Roosevelt was evidently ill today when he met his son Kermit and the latter's wife and child as they landed from a Panama transport. He showed signs of suffering pain, and frequently pressed his hand to his side.

Mrs. Richard Derby, his daughter, said that the Colonel was ill all of last night. He consulted a physician today.

Optimism Pervades the Democrats at St. Louis

Itself had been repainted throughout, mostly with white paint, so that every possible bit of light was reflected into its gigantic interior.

Special ventilating apparatus cooled the sultry air. Delegates and alternates alone were permitted on the ground floor, permitting more comfortable seating space for the men who actually do the convention work.

One topic which was eagerly discussed by the crowds on the streets and in hotel lobbies was the so-called "unit rule" and "two-thirds" regulation which from time immemorial has ruled at democratic conclaves.

There was general belief expressed that the regular quadriennial attempt to overthrow these ancient rules would succeed this year. Delegates recalled that the attempt was made four years ago in Baltimore and defeated mainly because there was such bitter strife between the candidates. If the two-thirds rule had not been in effect at Baltimore, Champ Clark, Missouri's favorite son, would have been named.

This year, it was conceded, will be an excellent opportunity for the democratic party to abolish the precedent requiring a two-thirds majority as necessary to a choice. There is only one candidate in the minds of the people—Wilson—and this offers a free road to revision of the rules.

Most important, also, in the minds of the gossipers and hotel lobby debaters, was the platform upon which democracy will make this year's race. The democrats believe they have the "edge" on the republicans, simply because they will have an opportunity to see what sort of a statement of principles the Chicago convention has enacted, and to meet these principles in the democratic pledges.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphates before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who get up with a bad breath coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.—Adv.

Military Career of 17-Year-Old Briton Is Very Brilliant

After Fibbing About His Age, Youth Wins Promotion and Decoration for His Valor in Action

By WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 14.—Scads of thrills—enough to make the wildest dreams of a movie hero pale to insignificance—have been packed into the young life of Lieutenant Clifford Probert, aged 17. The full story came today from Blaenavon, Wales, Probert's native village.

Daring deeds under fire, promotion from the ranks, awarded the D. S. O., wounded twenty-two times, blown up while on a hospital ship and lapse of memory are a few of the youthful soldier's experiences.

Before the war young Probert operated a haulage engine in a coal mine, and was the assistant chief boy scout of the district. In September, 1914, he joined the army by misrepresenting his age to a recruiting sergeant. He told the sergeant he was 18 years old when he was only 15. His parents objected to his militarism, so he changed his name to William Gordon Williams.

At Hill No. 99 in Northern France, the youthful soldier received his baptism of fire. He also went to the hospital for twelve weeks with two wounds in the head and two in the legs. Some time after he had rejoined his regiment, the colonel commanding decided that a distant tower was being used as an enemy observation post. The colonel chose two men to cut the wires that connected the tower with enemy batteries. The men chosen were Lieutenant Murphy and Williams (or Probert). After crawling two hundred yards through darkness in the direction of the tower, Murphy was shot through the head.

Probert crawled forward and eventually arrived. He dug in the ground around the tower for an hour with his hands before he discovered the wires. There were seventeen, which meant that seventeen German batteries were being accurately informed of the accuracy of their fire on the British positions. Probert tried to snip the wires with his pocket knife. The metallic sound produced, however, made the operation dangerous, and he searched his Red Cross packet for vasoline.

Smearing the oil on the wires, he spent several hours in noiselessly cutting all seventeen, and then crawled, tediously back to the British trenches. It was on September 25th, the start of the big British offensive, that the young trooper again got into action. His regiment charged. A handful reached the third line of the German trenches. Probert was one of the handful. A shell exploded nearby and threw him into the air. Dazed and suffering from the shock he arose and charged again, but came under the fire of a machine gun, and fell with five bullet wounds in his abdomen, both hips riddled and his head badly battered. He lay in the open, without attention, for two days before stretcher bearers came along.

Probert hovered between life and death in a base hospital for weeks. Youth and vitality finally conquered, until he had sufficiently recovered strength to be sent to England. Subsequently, with other wounded men, he was taken to Boulogne and placed aboard the hospital ship Anglia. The Anglia was half way across the English channel, en route to Folkestone, when she was mined. The explosion occurred just as a nurse was raising Probert's head to see the coast of England.

The nurse and an orderly carried Probert, cot and all, to the main deck, and telling him to hold on tight, slid him into the sea. A receding destroyer picked him up before he had swallowed too much sea water.

Eventually he arrived in an English hospital. Here he was awarded the medal of the distinguished service order for gallantry, and apprised of his promotion to a lieutenantancy.

Weeks later Probert was well enough to be discharged from the hospital. But he had not gone long before something seemed to snap in his brain and wipe away his memory. The young officer was finally found in London, wandering. Someone recognized him from his photograph published in a London newspaper. It was not until he caught sight of familiar scenes in his native village that Probert regained his memory. He hopes to rejoin his regiment in another month.

"I want to get back into the scrup before it is all over," Probert is telling his townsmen up in Blaenavon, Wales.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

DARKENS BEAUTIFULLY AND RESTORES ITS NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE AT ONCE

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the sage tea and sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application of two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.
