THE PROH CONVENTION.

The Delegates and Their Friends Have a Happy Time. BLUE AND GRAY CLASP HANDS. A Southern Preacher Put on the Ticket in Sign of Fusion. Indianapolis is much older and more staid than Minneapolis. Its streets and avenues are broad, it has many fine residences and public buildings, and it is also a railroad center. But it has not the life and snap of that young Minnesota giant. There is a smoky, dingy atmosphere about it that detracts. However, they now HAVE NATURAL GAS, which will largely displace the use of coal, in heating, cooking and running machinery. This will tend to dissipate the smoke. At points ranging from six to twenty miles from this city, this gas has been successfully bored for, and already they are bringing it to dwellings, factories, hotels, street lamps, supplying light, heat and power at much below the former cost. In daytime you notice fire places full of white blocks of stone, about one-fourth the size of a brick, thrown in much as coal would be. At night, jets of natural gas, from a pipe introduced from below, transmute them with a clear, steady red hot glow. There is no flickering, no smoke, no soot, no ashes. Nor does it need replenishing, for, LIKE MOSES' BURNING BUSH, it burns but does not consume. You can shut off the supply of heat; the pieces of fire-brick soon cool down, and are pure and white as before. The pressure of this gas is as high as 300 lbs. to the square inch, and pipes are furnished to fifth and six stories of buildings, which supply a flame that appears three to five feet long, and one to two feet in diameter. The churches are substantial, and many have a green, creeping plant running over them, reminding one of the ivy-covered buildings in Europe. Fruits and vegetables are abundant, as southern trains come in daily. OUR NATIONAL CONVENTION was held in a hall capable of seating 4,000 persons, of which the city gave us free use. But it proved inadequate for our need. The delegates and alternates, numbering a full thousand, occupied the large platform and most of the floor; the rest of that space and the double galleries were filled with intensely interested spectators. Such enthusiasm I never saw before. But I must ask a little of your space to describe the preliminary exercises. First came a band of boys, from eight to twelve years, dressed in striking costume, with life and drum, who entered the hall preceding a column of "Juniors." These were young men, not yet old enough to vote, uniformed in a militia. These were enthusiastically cheered. Then the COLLEGE PROHIBITION CLUBS, from various states, competed in the declamation of prohibition pieces for a large gold medal, the gift of W. J. Demorest, late publisher of Demorest's Fashion Magazine. He has lately placed his business in his son's hands, that he may devote his time and energies to the third party. At night the college boys contended for a prize in five minute speeches; after which Col. Sobieski, grandson of the Polish king, John Sobieski, and a number of prominent pros, among them a colored orator, made brief and stirring addresses. ON MEMORIAL DAY, the army of the blue and the gray, composed of union and confederate veterans, held evening services in the hall. Col. G. W. Bain, Col. R. S. Choris, Mrs. Merrivether, a colored orator and Bishop Turner, also colored, (all of the south), together with Capt. Cleghorn, Miss Willard and Commander Hudson, of the north, made short speeches. The Silver Lake quartette sang, "Clasping Hand with Hand, the Blue and the Gray." The band played, "Marching Through Georgia," and the grays joined in cheering. Next "Dixie," and the blues echoed the grays. Then "Yankee Doodle," and all burst forth in exultation. But when the darkey clasped hands with the ex-confederate, Col. Choris, the applause was deafening, the audience from north and south, east and west just going wild with delight. Father Mahoney, whom I have mentioned before in this correspondence, was in ecstasies, and insisted on giving $100 out of his $500 salary, toward the campaign. The audience called home to the platform, and applauded to the echo in token of the breaking down of sectional and sectarian lines through the prohibition party. How I wish this scene could have been witnessed by the people of Mt. Angel, St. Paul and Gervais in old Marion county. Father Mahoney believes that Bishop Ireland, the Father Mathew of the temperance cause, will yet come over to us. THE WOMAN SUFFRAGE QUESTION aroused a warm but good natured debate. When it was voted to insert a moderate woman suffrage plank, but to make prohibition the test of party fealty, and the head and front of the party and platform, Sam Small—who has long ago learned that one southerner cannot whip two Yankees—subscribed $500 towards a newspaper and $250 for the general fund. And when he reached over and clasped hands with Miss Willard, after her peerless speech, it seemed as though the cheering would never cease. St. John, the chairman of the convention, received an ovation that must have compensated to his feelings for all the hangings and burnings in effigy, the injurious attempts to bribe, BEING CALLED "A SKUNKLET," and all the fulsome abuse he has been called on to endure. The Kansas delegates presented him with a gavel made from the tree on which he was first burned in effigy in his own state. Gen. Fisk was not present, having charge, as chairman of the committee of arrangements, of the general conference of the Methodists in New York. But he must have almost heard the deafening cheers that followed his unanimous nomination for president of the United States. Dr. John A. Brooks, of Kansas City, a southerner, and former confederate sympathizer, was unanimously nominated for vice president. He was nearly carried to the platform, to give his acceptance, and the cheering was as hearty as for Fisk. He is pastor of the Christian church and a leader in that religious body. THE SINEWS OF WAR. The next undertaking was to raise $25,000 for campaign purposes, and it looked too big a job for accomplishment. But a Boston prohi started in with $1,000; then my old friend, Dr. R. H. McDonald, of San Francisco, gave another $1,000; a Michigan hotel keeper contributed a like amount, a Chicago man, I. B. Hobbs, subscribed $1,000, and next an Illinoisan gave $2,000 in memory of his W. C. T. U. and prohibition mother, and to celebrate his leaving one of the old hates and joining the new party. So it went on. I. G. Warner, of Portland subscribed $1,000 for that city; then $500's came in, next $250's and smaller amounts. When the giving was over a fund of $30,000 had been raised, but since our national committee broke up its session, at 11 the next morning, people were still subscribing. I close and mail this letter at Minneapolis, but leave here to-night for home, via the Canadian Pacific. It is pitiable to note the prevailing ignorance in regard to Oregon. Not one in 10,000 seems to know anything about our state, or that there is an election held there to-day. The newspaper bulletin boards mention cock fights and accidents, but not a word about the Oregon election. In my lectures and conversations I have told a good deal about Oregon, and have distributed many copies of a descriptive pamphlet sent me by the Oregon Land Company. I reserve a few for Canada. Mr. I. G. Warner, of Portland, and Prof. G. M. Miller are also distributing similar literature. J. W. W. MINNEAPOLIS, June 4th. The Stapelet of Oregon. With such important functions as the liver, are of course productive of serious bodily disturbances. When it relaxes its secretive and distributive activity, bile gets into the blood, and tinges the skin and white of the eyes with yellow, the bowels become constipated, the tongue coated, the breath sour. Then come headaches, vertigo and congestion of the organ, accompanied with pain in its vicinity or under the right shoulder blade. Shall blue pill be the remedy sought? No for mercury in any form is pernicious. What then? Experience indicates Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as the true remedy for inactivity of the liver. It not only relaxes the bowels without pain, but has a direct stimulating effect upon the hepatic gland itself, the seat and origin of the trouble. All malarial complaint involves disorder of the liver, and of these the Bitters is the most popular curative. It also conquers dyspepsia, nervousness, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

TELEGRAPHIC SUMMARY

Can Run a Newspaper. ITHACA, N. Y., June 10.—The prospective course of Journalism at Cornell University promises to surpass the greatest expectations, if present indications go for anything. Not only has the press of the country in general endorsed the proposed plan, but also young aspirants for literary fame. Already President Adams is receiving a large number of inquiries regarding the course from all over the United States, so that he has been compelled to issue a circular letter in reply. The course is open only to senior and junior and graduate students, and, like all other courses, to such special students as may be recommended by the faculty. TELEGRAPHIC SPLINTS. The California delegates to the Chicago convention left San Francisco last evening. A tramp printer named F. M. Haines, was run over by the cars and killed Sunday morning, near Holton station, Missouri. He worked in the Hannibal Courier office the night before, and was on his way to Quincy. In Omaha, on Saturday, three laborers were killed by the caving in of a bank, where they were excavating for a warehouse foundation. The Commercial hotel and eight business houses burned in Trinidad, Colo., on Sunday night. Rev. W. H. Beebe, a traveling evangelist, came near drowning a convert while baptizing her on Sunday in Lake Benton. He skipped out of town on the evening train to escape being mobbed. Wait Whitman, the alleged poet, is dangerously ill at his home in Camden, New Jersey. In Mt. Pleasant, Utah, a Mormon girl shot her lover in the face, because she didn't know it was loaded. The pair were married directly after the accident, though the young man is expected to recover. Electric Bitters. This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention.
