Nearing His Finish.

Aguinaldo is right now. He has got enough! There are many people in this town that know when they have had enough of poor laundry work on their linen, and they turn to us for relief. It is a pleasure to a man to see the exquisite color and finish that we have put on his shirt, collars and cuffs when sent home from this laundry.

STATE FAIR AND SALEM.

There were times when people commenced to come to the State Fair in June. Farmers would bring their wool down from Umpqua and Rogue River Valleys; after disposing of it at Salem they would lay in their yearly supplies here, and they would camp near the Fair Grounds until after the Fair. The State Fair has also brought many noted men to Salem whose intention was only to see the Fair, but they found other attractions that induced them to locate here. As in the case of the writer, (S. Friedman,) came to attend the State Fair in the early sixties. He was so delighted with the surrounding country that he made Salem his permanent home. A great many others that have settled in business in Salem were first attracted here by the State Fair. It is therefore incumbent upon the majority of our citizens to make the State Fair a grand success, for the Fair has helped Salem. It is not expected for people to come and camp here for several months on account of it. Now it is no use for the backmen to holler "All aboard for the Fair Grounds," for the railroad has changed things. But yet the people who come for the Fair usually manage to get into the city, view the town, visit the Capitol and Penitentiary and not the Insane Asylum just the Oregon State Hospital, and they go to hear the Deaf Mutes talk to them at their school. Then they go to the Blind School so as to let the blind see them, and above all, they never forget to stop and see Friedman at Friedman's New Rack, corner Commercial and State St., where they lay in their supplies of Dry Goods and Clothing.
