GROWERS' ATTENTION!

The Growers' Association is now open for business. An office and sample books are on hand.

NORMAL SCHOOL BANQUET.

President Prince Campbell and His Contingent Will Not Go Hungry.

The banquet was held at the State Hotel, and was a most successful one. The program included a play, a musical, and a variety of other entertainment.

The Public School Savings Bank was also mentioned in the program, and the elimination of unnecessary expenses of the course of study was discussed.

The program included a play, a musical, and a variety of other entertainment.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Opens With a Small Attendance of Actual Teachers.

But Many Others Appreciate the Entertainment Provided—What is Being Accomplished.

The State Teachers' Association opened its session with a rather small attendance of the school teachers of the state. This may probably be partly accounted for by the season of the year, and the fact that few teachers can afford to come from a great distance at their own expense.

Many of the leaders in the cause of education, as that is understood in Oregon, are on hand, however.

Quite a number of county superintendents are here, including J. T. Lee, of Clatsop; I. H. Copeland, Columbia; G. A. Gregory, Jackson; W. M. Miller, Lane; A. S. McDonald, Linn; A. P. Armstrong, Multnomah; J. N. Hart, Polk; E. E. Bragg, Union; C. L. Gilbert, Wasco; H. A. Ball, Washington; E. V. Littlefield, Yamhill.

Teachers present include Frank Rigler, city superintendent, and all the school principals of Portland; R. D. Reseler, city superintendent, Eugene; W. W. Payne, principal high school, Astoria; P. L. Campbell, principal Normal, Monmouth; J. M. Martindale, city superintendent, Albany; Thos. Newlin, President Pacific College, Newberg; J. B. Walker, Normal school, Drain.

The meeting Wednesday afternoon of the department of superintendence took place at the capitol, as stated in the Journal. The granting of permits, and recent school legislation were discussed.

THE EVENING MEETING.

The rotunda of the capitol on Wednesday evening presented an appearance reminding one of an evening during a session of the legislature, though there were more ladies, and especially young ones, in evidence than is usual at a meeting of our Solons.

The hall of representatives had been provided with chairs to its full floor capacity and these were nearly all occupied.

The first number on the program was an instrumental trio by Misses Lelo Nicklin, Nellie Brown and Carrie Hurst, two violins and piano. This was a remarkably beautiful piece of music, not a series of mechanical gymnastics, and was perfectly and feelingly rendered.

State Superintendent Ackerman, made a few brief introductory remarks, and then the assembly was given another musical treat.

A ladies' quartet consisting of Mrs. Hinges, Miss Mina Huetel, Miss Leona White and Mrs. Wm. F. Babcock, filled the hall with melody, and when they ended were recalled by an irresistible storm of applause, responding with a humorous song, which was well received.

Clara Hatch followed with a short address of welcome to which R. F. Robinson, principal of the central school of Portland responded in flowery periods.

Both these speakers seemed to find much encouragement for the cause of education in the new world movement by which the stronger nations are taking in hand the benevolent assimilation of the weaker and less "progressive."

The ladies' quartet then treated the audience to another song. Prolonged and insistent applause followed. The ladies indulged to withstand the storm but at length were obliged to come to the platform, when the audience good humoredly accepted a bow in lieu of the desired vocal treat.

Governor Geer's address followed. He was animated and entertaining, as usual, and his remarks were short and to the point. The governor, among other things said that he thought the normal school business had been somewhat overdone in this state, and regretted that so many of those who are educated for teachers so soon abandon that profession for others, or get married off.

He said this was like the sending of British troops to South Africa.

The program closed with another very sweet instrumental trio by the same young ladies who opened the program, or rather two trios, as the first was so pleasing as to cause a recall.

The teachers and friends then adjourned to the A. O. U. W. hall.

After the program at the capitol was concluded, a reception and luncheon was given by the teachers of the Salem schools, at A. O. U. W. hall. This pleasant feature of the occasion was well attended, and thoroughly enjoyed by the guests.

THURSDAY.

Today there are two bodies in session at the capitol; the state association proper meeting in the hall of representatives and the county superintendents in the senate chamber.

The morning session of the former commenced shortly after 9:30 with singing by the association, after which D. A. Grant, principal of the Park school of Portland, gave an address on "Some Lines of Progress in our educational field."

The children from the Deaf-mute school then gave an exhibition of exercises learned at that institution. This was very interesting to the audience and illustrated what may be done for these unfortunate by trained effort.

The Public School Savings Bank was subject of an interesting address by the speaker, and the elimination of unnecessary expenses of the course of study was discussed by A. P. Armstrong and J. W. Payne.

The program included a play, a musical, and a variety of other entertainment.

J. Ray, who was named as one of the selling committee by the banks, which they deem satisfactory and in the interest of Oregon hopgrowers. His whole time is to be devoted to their interests, and his compensation will depend upon the business he does, but his pay will not be in excess of an agreed sum, which is far less than embraced in his first proposition, and may rest assured that they will be dealt with upon an equal footing. Mr. Ray having severed all other connections and arranged to work exclusively for the association. The executive committee of the association is much encouraged over the prospects of doing business, and earnestly advises all hopgrowers who have not sold their product to pool with it at once, or in any event not to dispose of their hops to buyers unless they receive a sufficient price to cover cost of production."
