DEMOCRAT WANTS CLERKS

A Resolution Offered by Mr. Whealdon

The minority party in the house does not receive much recognition. Tuesday an attempt to have the hop inspector bill so amended that the appointment of that officer be made by the governor himself, was defeated by a decisive vote, showing the comparative strength of the two parties in the lower house. This morning another disappointment was experienced by the minority party. Whealdon, in a jocular spirit, offered a motion providing that the Democrats of the house be allowed a clerk to assist in their clerical work. In explanation of his purpose in offering the motion, Mr. Whealdon stated that the membership of the minority party, while equally prominent and influential members of the house, had not received many prominent committee assignments. The motion had scarcely reached the clerk's desk until Eddy moved that the consideration of the motion be indefinitely postponed. The unusual disposition to curtail the cost of clerks was here shown, and the motion of Eddy prevailed by a large majority.
