SALEM DAYTON NEWBERG

Should be Connected by Electric Line

Lafayette, McMinnville and This Garden of the Valley Would be Benefitted

Dayton and Newberg, at times appear very much isolated communities. This is especially so when boats are unable to run on regular time on account of extremely high or low water. It is a trying situation to those who happen to be "caught out" at these times. Perhaps, after waiting a good portion of the fore part of the forenoon, as did the editor and about a dozen other people who wished to take passage on the down river steamer Tuesday, then be informed that you could go and get your dinner before the arrival of the boat. Then repeat the waiting until a late hour in the afternoon, and then be informed that the boat would not arrive that day. It can probably be imagined what would be the feeling of those who had been in waiting most of the day. They could not express their feelings in words. Some gave up their tickets to Agent Baldwin, who refunded their money without any hesitancy, and the parties then took the train for Portland, which did not help them, as they had to lay over in Portland until 4 p. m. next day before the train leaves that city for Dayton and Newberg.

Sitting on a Log.

When going up to Salem Monday on the Ruth the editor left John Hoffman and C. Peavy sitting on a log at Weston awaiting the down river boat, which usually arrives there about 1 p. m. but that day arrived about 7 p. m.; whether they waited until then we are not informed. The Pomona had stuck on a gravel bar above Salem, which delayed it. The Ruth on the way up to Corvallis Monday, stuck on Black Dog bar, 6 miles below Albany and laid there until the Pomona assisted in getting her off Wednesday morning. Ed. arrived at Weston that evening on the Pomona at 7 o'clock. We have heard it said that Dayton and Newberg were convenient to get to and from. We beg leave to differ from the gentlemen making the statement. It is true that we have a railroad running north and south, one train each day, but making no connection anywhere. And there is a boat runs to and from here to Portland each day, but does not make any connections. On the Willamette river, the way that boats are now run, you are never sure, when you start, whether you will "get there or not." By taking an early start in the morning, from the capital or other points south of this, it is possible to reach Dayton by rail late in the same day, by taking near 100 mile journey.

A Motor Line to Salem.

If one is able to keep a team, or hire one he may be able to drive the 22 miles to Salem and return, by rushing in one day—by boat it takes two days. What makes Newberg and Dayton convenient places to get to? Where does the convenience come in? We believe we know what we are saying, in this matter, having had it in mind for some time, and now state the situation as it is today. If one doubts it, let him take a trip on the boat during low water, or at time of high water, when the locks are closed.

An improvement that we have heard suggested at different times, would relieve the present state of affairs—a motor line to Salem. This would give direct and reliable communication at all seasons of the year with Salem and intermediate points. It would tap a rich and prosperous section that would afford a great amount of farm products that would be shipped in both directions over the line. This is a matter that is important to this section, and especially to Newberg, Dayton and Salem, and even Dundee, La Fayette, McMinnville and Wheatland. The latter named towns of Yamhill county, are now all connected by rural telephone, why not be still more up-to-date, and get "out of the wilderness," by building an electric line to connect all these towns, and have a service of at least two trains each day to and from Salem?

Get It and Do It.

We are aware that it takes determined work and coin to accomplish any worthy object, but with united effort and a determination to accomplish, success is generally assured—notwithstanding remarks that may be made by the "wise and knowing ones"—such as "all foolishness," "too far ahead of the times," "can't be did," etc. We call the attention of business men and citizens of McMinnville, that the editor of the Herald, at the time the damn, damned (we do not use this in a profane way, but in its true meaning) Yamhill locks were constructed, advocated the construction of an electric line from that city to Dayton, and predicted that the locks would give no relief in traffic to the people of McMinnville. Which has proved correct. Not that the government engineers under whose supervision the locks were constructed did not do good work; we heard those say, who ought to know, that the work was first class. Now, gentlemen, while you are waiting for that boat to run up to your city, and the S. P. Co. to build that extension from LaFayette to our city, "get in" with your sleeves rolled up, and assist in building an electric line from your city to Newberg, via LaFayette and Dayton to Salem. It will pay.

Salem Should Act.

The writer of this, who has lived in the Willamette valley over 30 years, and passed up and down the Willamette river from and to Salem by boat, and by land on each side of the river, innumerable times believes that he has learned something of the situation, and by observation has gained a slightly intelligent knowledge of the requirements of that portion of the valley, which is the garden spot of Oregon.

The attention of the greater Salem Club is called to this matter, several members of which the writer is personally acquainted with. If they take the matter up for serious consideration, of which it is worthy and undoubtedly would result in great benefit to that city, we are willing to give or sale any information that we can as to the country, etc., for them.
