EDISON THEATRE
 COMMENCING NEXT THURSDAY.
THE BRIGHAM-COOPER CO.

Presents the sensational Comedy Drama entitled

"THE WORLD AGAINST HIM"

Four nights only, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. Special matinee Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Admission prices, 15 and 25 cents.

Edison Theatre Tonight.
 The Brigham-Cooper Company resumed this morning from Eugene, and tonight and the remainder of this week this popular stock company will appear at the Edison theatre in a new play entitled "The World Against Him." This play is a standard one of all times, as it is overflowing with dramatic situations and comes to the last named feature being one of the strongest. Mr. Chase, Caulkins will be seen in an entirely different way than any he has heretofore appeared in. Mr. Percy Brigham will appear as the cold-hearted man of the world, whose villainous schemes are in the end thwarted. Miss Iva Shepard will appear as a beautiful girl, that of "France" and there is no doubt but she will give an excellent performance. The entire strength of the company is put to advantage in this piece, and together with the many other interesting details of the production, will make it one of the most popular plays ever seen at the Edison, and well worth the prices, which from now on will be 15 and 25 cents.

His First Appointment.
 Napoleon Davis is one of the first appointees of Governor Chamberlain, since he was re-elected. Mr. Davis resides at Cleone, Multnomah county, and he has been made a very public by the governor. This recipient of the gubernatorial honor is a quodam Republican politician, and years ago was chairman of Democratic state central committee. He fell into disfavor with his party workers on the morning after the election by his failure to disburse the contents of the alleged sack, and he suddenly dropped out of politics. During the last campaign he bobbed up again just as suddenly by writing a communication to a Portland newspaper bitterly denouncing Governor Chamberlain.

A Tragic Finish.
 A watchman's neglect permitted a fire in the great North Sea dyke, which the child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating a large province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth McIver, of Vancouver, Me., permitted a little cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finish was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. "Three doctors gave me no relief, but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life." Guaranteed best cough and cold cure, at J. C. Perry's drug store. 50c and $1.00 per bottle free.

Personals

C. K. Spaulding is a metropolis visitor today.
 Dr. Clay was a Portland-bound passenger yesterday afternoon.
 Miss Mattie F. Beattie left this morning for a visit in Portland.
 Verner Major went to Portland yesterday afternoon for a brief visit.
 Rev. Barr G. Lee went to Turner this morning to officiate at a funeral.
 Miss Lucy Plantz left this morning for a visit with relatives in Spokane, Wash.
 Herman Butler, of the Preston neighborhood, is in the city today visiting friends.
 Governor Chamberlain was among the Portland-bound passengers on the morning train.
 Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Stover returned today from a four-weeks' visit in and about Spokane.
 W. F. Drager, of Scotts Mills, was the guest of his brother, County Recorder Drager, yesterday.
 T. B. Kay, of the Salem woolen mills, returned this morning from a business trip to Eugene.
 Julius Pineus, the hop man, was bound for the hop fields in the northern part of the county this morning.
 S. A. Parks, one of the attendants at the insane asylum left yesterday afternoon for Malheur, where he goes after a patent.

Mrs. H. T. Majors and daughter, Katharine, left for Portland yesterday afternoon, and after a visit there will go to Illinois for an extended visit.
 O. L. Ragan, who has been one of the clerks in Bishop's clothing store in this city left today for Portland, where he has obtained employment in a wholesale house.
 Dave Yantis, the manager of The Toggery, is expected to return today from several days' outing at Mehanam. Mrs. Yantis, who accompanied him, will remain for several weeks more.
 Dr. W. S. Mott has gone to Portland to attend a meeting of the state medical board of examiners, at which time applicants for licenses will be examined. Dr. Mott was accompanied by his son, James.

George Smith, who has been ranching in the John Day country, near Early, returned yesterday from a four years' sojourn in that part of the state. He is a brother of Bert Smith, of "Dad's" shining parlors.
 W. E. Wann and family left today for Newport, where they will camp for six or eight weeks. After the family gets well established in the methods of camp life, Mr. Wann will return to attend to business interests.

G. G. Eades, the Jefferson blacksmith, returned home this morning. He reported an abundance of hay in that locality. Cow hay is selling for about $5 a ton in the field. There is a scarcity of men for work in the hay fields, although the farmers are offering $2 per day and board.
 Attorney Woods, of Canyon City, was in Salem today arguing a case before the supreme court. He is an old-time Iowa friend of L. S. Lyon, and they had a good visit for the first time since leaving the Hawkeye state. Mr. Woods thinks Salem the handsomest residence city he has seen, but of course is loyal to Eastern Oregon.

Garrett McEnery and wife, of San Francisco, stopped over between trains Wednesday evening to visit his aunt, Mrs. Mary Martin, night matron at the state insane asylum. They were shown about the city by friends. Mr. McEnery is at the head of the legal profession of the city of San Francisco, having the largest practice in will cases and suits involving millions. He was counsel in the mission claims suit of the Catholic church against the Republic of Mexico that was arbitrated before The Hague tribunal. He was on his way home from Olympia, where he had a case in the supreme court.

When You Want Harness.
 Call on F. E. Shafer, at his new store, 187 Commercial street, near Ferry. The finest stock of harness in Salem.

Notice.
 Ladies of the Christian church take notice. The C. W. B. M. that was to meet at the residence of Mrs. C. E. Sherwood Friday, July 13th, is moved to the W. C. T. U. hall, corner of Ferry and Commercial streets. Time 2:30 o'clock. All friends are cordially invited.

Twenty Year Battle.
 "I was a loser in a twenty-year battle with chronic piles and malignant sores, until I tried Bucklin's Arnica Salve; which turned the tide, by curing both, till not a trace remains," writes A. M. Bruce, of Farmville, Va. Best for old Ulcers, Cuts, Burns and Wounds. 25c at J. C. Perry's drug store.

Circuit Court Proceedings.

The jury in the case of Catlin & Linn against S. W. Jones, after deliberating the entire day, at 9 o'clock last night was discharged. This is a suit to enforce a hop contract.
 In the case of John Schindler, et al., against C. W. Corby, an action for money, Judge Burnett granted a non-suit on motion of the plaintiff, after he had given his testimony.
 In the school cases in district No. 80, near Shaw, namely that of G. A. Setterlum against H. A. Keene, et al., which was taken on appeal from the justice's court, was also non-suited at the close of the appellant's testimony. In the justice's court the plaintiff was given $245 damages. The plaintiff alleges he was refused a vote at a school election at which came up the question of issuing bonds for the raising of funds to build a new school house.
 Isadore Lorentz against H. A. Keene, et al., was the title of another case arising in the same school district. The defendant and appellant made a motion for non-suit, which will be passed upon by Judge Burnett this morning.

A Fine Concert.
 The Salem Military Band delighted a large and appreciative audience last evening in Wilson avenue. The evening was ideal, and the halless, white-slipped summer girls were everywhere in evidence.
 The band gave one of the best programs of the season, and in the rendering of the classics, as well as the lighter selections, the boys proved themselves masters of their instruments. The trombone solo "Romance" by Mr. O. Steelhammer was one of the favorite numbers, and "Violets" was his encore.

Mr. Stoudemeyer and the members are working hard to perfect a band unexcelled by any in the state, and that Salem appreciates their efforts is evident from the demonstration last evening.

Affairs at Willamette.
 How to clear off the debts of Willamette university of Salem was the subject discussed by the trustees of that institution at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the office of the Pacific Christian Advocate.
 An offer of $7000 has been made with the provision that the trustees raise an equal sum. This will put the college on a better financial basis. The trustees have half the amount in sight.
 A dean of music is soon to be elected. It is understood that the faculty committee—J. H. Coleman, president of the university; R. A. Booth of Eugene, and Philip Buchner, of Portland—have selected the man to fill this position, and will soon make an announcement.—Portland Telegram

The Case Dismissed.
 The action of the State of Oregon against Gottlieb Hazelbacher, who was charged with the crime of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill, upon the person of Peter Rasmussen, one of his neighbors was dismissed by Justice Webster yesterday afternoon. It was shown that evidently an altercation had taken place between the two men, but there had been no attempt to maim or kill. The affair took place near Howell Prairie.

Some Vetch.
 The yield of the vetch crop in the Willamette valley is something wonderful. A passenger on the boat from Independence this morning saw a man cutting vetch with a mower drawn by two horses, and the foliage was so rank that 11 men were required to winnow and shock the stuff as fast as the machines could cut it. Three men were kept busy taking the mowed stuff out of the way of the machine to give room for another swath.

County Pays Damages.
 The county court has ordered a warrant for $1700 drawn in favor of John Krell, in settlement of claims for damages recently awarded him by the circuit court of Multnomah county. It will be remembered that Krell sustained injuries while hauling wood on the road between St. Louis and Champoeg. This is probably the largest warrant drawn in this county for a good many years.

A Canoe Voyage.
 George H. Houghton, Bernard H. Winsor, Harry G. Smith and George M. Allen, members of the Portland Rowing Club, were in the city yesterday afternoon, on their return from Eugene and other valley towns. They have been out on a canoe trip up the valley. They carry their own camping outfit, and have had a splendid time since leaving the metropolis.

Gaudy Baseball.
 The Bookkeepers put the Capitals to the bad last evening in an amusing trial at the national game. Only five innings were played, and the final score was 9 to 5. The victory was decisive, and the fans seemed to be delighted with the exhibition.

UMATILLA COUNTY'S WHEAT

East Oregonian Says Every Acre Is Yielding to the Utmost Limit

Never before has Umatilla county promised such a wheat harvest as this year, according to the judgment of pioneer farmers who are familiar with past yields and conditions.

Beginning at the top of the hill north of the Lee street bridge in Pendleton and extending to the farthest limit of the cultivated land in the North Cold Springs district, the crops are uniformly good. The stand is excellent, the straw medium, the heads well filled, the crop even and uniform in height and the quality of the grain first-class, and it will yield from twenty-eight to thirty-five bushels per acre.

Standing about waist high to an ordinary man, the splendid wheat belt of the north part of Umatilla county is now at the zenith of its glory. It is just turning from the rich deep green of virile life and growth into the first gold tints of maturity. Mile after mile of this unbroken sea is now waving in the ripening winds and sunshine, patiently yet steadily taking on the yellow hue of harvest.

In the rich low lands where there is more moisture than on the higher grounds, the crop is yet rich and green as old silk, fading into a paler yellow tint as it reaches the higher ground, and on the topmost heights of the rolling hills it is almost ready for the harvester.

The wheat belt is a vast checker-board now, with its splendid square farms lying shoulder to shoulder, awaiting the sickle. Here is one square of the vast board a velvety green where some later crop is yet swaying in the winds and bending with the weight of the well filled heads. Here is a square of barley, white and ripe, ready for the harvester, and in some places already bound and shocked in the fields, offering its yield as a reward to the husbandman whose labor has brought it forth.

The Farms Are Big.
 There are no small fields in Umatilla county. Sections of wheat, two and three sections in a body, make up the holdings of the wheat kings of the greatest wheat country in the state. Half sections are found, it is true, but they are below the general average of the farm.

All the vast fields are ready for the combined harvesters. Around each field the binders have cut a wide swath close to the fences, making room for the lordly feet of the king of harvesting machines, the combined harvester, which will soon enter the beckoning fields where these pathways have been ready to receive him.

From the farm houses nestled in the hollows behind the wheat-covered hills, it is impossible for the farmer to see the limits of his little domain. The immense farms on one, two, three sections appear more vast with their cloak of ripening wheat upon them.

The fence rows which dimly stretch into the distance and become lost in the shoulder-high wheat are reminders of the artificial lines which mark the boundaries of the wheat kings. At places the wheat is higher than the fence and the thin line of posts flung out across these vast rolling seas of wheat remind one of the sunken piles on the sea coast, where the waves have submerged the farthest landmarks, leaving only a few visible, near the shore.

Bushels Do Not Express.
 They talk of 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 bushels. It seems cold and heartless and unsentimental to measure such beauty in figures and bushels. Every acre is yielding to the very limit, every head is filled to overflowing, every stalk is bending, every husk bursting with its store of vigor and life.

The ground can do no more. It has given all it has to yield. It has yielded in response to the intelligence exercised in preparing it for crops.

Cultivation Pays.
 The wheat fields are pages of an open book to the observant eye. One field stands thick and heavy and uniformly excellent. The average yield will be 35 bushels of A1 wheat. It gives evidence of system, culture, studied labor, careful and skillful husbandry. The lines are straight as a die. The drill marks look as though they had been cast in a mold. The ranks of grain stand as soldiers on dress parade, shoulder to shoulder, knee to knee, through the entire length of the lines. There is not a visible break in the beauty and symmetry of the farm.

Across the road, on the same soil under the same conditions, another farmer who pursued less skillful husbandry, has but 25 to 28 bushels, his lines are crooked, his stand uneven, his drill marks show that he was slovenly, careless, indifferent, unsystematic. And the earth gives to him according to his work. His fence line is grown up with weeds, his gates are ramshackle affairs, the general contour is uninviting. You see the face of the man reflected in his crops and surroundings.

There is but one seep which will exceed in beauty that of the ripening fields of wheat now waving in the breezes of Umatilla county.

That other scene will be witnessed within the next month when 500 harvesters are cutting the ripened and mature crop, and hundreds of teams laden with the bursting sacks are seen pouring from all the vast region toward the railroad, carrying the harvest to the markets of the world.

Only 82 Years Old.
 "I am only 82 years old and don't expect even when I get to be real old to feel that way as long as I can get Electric Bitters," says Mrs. E. H. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. Surely there's nothing else keeps the old as young and makes the weak as strong as this grand tonic medicine. Dyspepsia, torpid liver, inflamed kidneys or chronic constipation are unknown after taking Electric Bitters a reasonable time. Guaranteed by J. C. Perry, druggist. Price 50c.
