Happenings of Interest on the Gay Side of Life in the Capital City.

Gabrielson-Bishop.
A beautiful home wedding was celebrated Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. C. D. Gabrielson, this city. Miss Ruth Gabrielson became the bride of Chauncey Bishop, both of whom are well known young people of Salem. The ceremony was performed in a very impressive manner by Rev. W. R. Grandfather of the groom, Lillian Metehan, of Portland, and the wedding march and Mr. Burghardt sang "Because" before the ceremony. The bride's train consisted of a matron of honor, maids of honor, a ring bearer, the person of Master Kenneth and the best man Mr. Clarence brother of the groom. The couple stood under a canopy with a large lover's knot of tulle. The bride's gown was of silk marquisette over white tulle, made empire and trimmed in lace. She was adorned with a pearl and diamond crescent, gift of the groom, and in her hair were orange blossoms sent from Los Angeles. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, which were afterward distributed by the bride among her friends. The maid of honor, Frederic Theisen, who wore a wedding gown of white elysee and pink roses. The maids of honor, Miss Aline Thompson, wearing green crepe de chene, and Alice Meyer in pink silk, both carried pink carnations. Mrs. Gaten was assisted in the function by Mrs. S. W. Thompson and Mrs. Griffith.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gabrielson, and is widely known for her charming ways and winning personality. Her groom is one of the most widely known young men in Oregon college, military and athletic circles, and several years past the successful manager and proprietor of the Saffron Mill store, in which he succeeded his father, C. P. Bishop. The wedding was witnessed by a number of Salem society people who are intimate friends of the contracting parties and family. Guests out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. W. T. Williamson, P. C. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher, Mr. Chas. Sternberg, Miss Myrtle Muir, of Portland; Helen Steiner, of Jefferson, and Lillian Metehan, of Portland.

The Gabrielson home on Liberty street was appropriately decorated for the occasion, the dining room in pink carnations and pink tulle. The mantle were Oregon grape and the doorways were beautifully decorated with ivy.

The bridal couple had been regaled with gifts from far and near. After the congratulations the guests were served with refreshments and the merrymaking did not cease until they had departed on the train for San Francisco on an extended trip in California and they will return to live at Salem.

Theatre Party.
Mrs. E. Hofer gave a dinner and theatre party at which Senator M. and daughter, Miss Juanita, and Senator John S. Coke, of Clatsop county, were guests. Miss Hofer has been at Salem during the winter season, and returns to her home this week with her father.

Salem Girl Weds.
Mrs. L. M. Haines wish to announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Cecelia, to Mr. Isaac Hulman, of Chicago.

Mrs. Jones Entertains.
Mrs. Thomas Jones, of Eighteenth street, entertained the Ladies Aid of the First Christian church yesterday afternoon. The affair was unique in that each guest was known by her name and any one who addressed her by the sir name was fined $1.50. This was collected by the chairman. Refreshments were served during the afternoon and a social time was enjoyed.

Delightful Skating Party.
The skating party given in the rink last evening was one of the most successful affairs ever given in the city. The party was managed by Mrs. E. G. Buckings, Mrs. A. M.

Cannon and Mrs. W. N. Gatens and great credit is due them for the delightful time on rollers. Four prizes were awarded, Mrs. Will Thielsen, as "The Indian Princess," winning first place as the best sustained character; the prize for the most elaborate costume was awarded to Mrs. W. N. Gatens, who impersonated the "Witch of Endor"; Mrs. Wilson, as the "Military Lady," proved to be the best lady skater, while Mr. Fleming, in the role of "An Arab," was given first place as the most clever skater among the men present.

There were many beautiful and unique costumes and it was a difficult task for the committee to select those deserving prizes. During the evening Photographer Trover, who was present with his large camera took flash lights of the maskers:

Cherry Luncheon.
Mrs. Wm. Brown gave a luncheon on Washington's birthday anniversary to about twelve of her lady friends.

Although there were many patriotic appointments, it might be called a "cherry luncheon" as they predominated in the decorations. The table was extremely pretty. A rare old candlebra, colonial, with cherry colored candles, formed the centerpiece, at the base of which bunches of cherries were scattered over the cloth. In a circle around this stood small American flags in groups. The place plates were cherry plates, the place cards small American flags, and the favors little hatchets upon which lay a bunch of cherries. The scheme was carried out in numerous other ways and also in the serving.

Star and stripes were prominent in the wall decorations and at one end of the room, was a portrait of the "Father of Our Country." In the doorway at the other end of the room, where ropes of smilax formed the portiers, was suspended an immense bunch of cherries held in place with quantities of cherry colored ribbon.

Covers were laid for Misses Kitty Moore, Margaret Cosper, Mae Boise, Mrs. Henry Meyers, Mrs. Reuben Boise, Jr., Mrs. C. L. McNary, Mrs. W. H. Eldridge, Mrs. A. N. Bush, Mrs. Chas. Gray, Mrs. Jennie Kyle and Mrs. R. F. Prael, of Portland.

At Albany.
The Delta Pi Sorority, prominent young ladies of Albany gave a dancing party last evening, which was attended by young people from Portland, Eugene, Salem and many other places. Among those going from Salem were Misses Lelah Herren, Althea Moores, Messrs. Ralph Cronise and Ivan Oakes.

Play at Corvallis.
The Peerless orchestra left yesterday morning for Corvallis where it played an engagement last evening.

Chemawa Dance.
The Modern Brotherhood of America gave an apron and necktie dance last night in their hall at Chemawa, and succeeded in clearing enough money to finish paying for their new hall. The lodge is reported to be in a flourishing condition and now owns a hall valued at $2500.

The entertainments that have been given by the lodge there in the past have been enjoyed by many people of Salem, and the hop last night was one of the best that has been held in the hall. The Mattias orchestra furnished the music, and refreshments were served during the evening.

Pleasant Surprise.
A pleasant surprise was given on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Armstrong, on North Fifth street, in honor of Mrs. Alexander, who left Thursday evening for her home in Florence, after visiting for some time in North Salem.

The evening was spent in games music and conversation, after which a light luncheon was served.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Rhusey, Mr. and Mrs. Dimler, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nusbaum, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Armstrong, Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Willson, Mrs. Blakely, Mrs. Georgia West, Mrs. Frisbert, the Misses Matilda Byron, Mabel and Ethel and Bertha, and Ada Williamson and the Messrs. Frank Liebert, George Stotler, Billie Nusbaum, Lee Marsh and Elmer Armstrong.

Pleasant Stag Party.
Many of the young men of the University and their friends attended the stag social given Thursday evening in the gymnasium. G. A. Forbes, of the local Y. M. C. A., was present and delivered the address of the evening. Among other good things on the program was a good, substantial luncheon.

Unique Supper.
The Willamette girls gave a supper last evening in the First M. E. church, which was as much enjoyed for its uniqueness as for the delicious eatables. The customer registered at a booth near the entrance for certain courses in study and corresponding to these studies were eatables, which were delivered upon the presentation of the registration card. A few of the courses were as follows: "Language," cold tongue; "Elocution," Boston brown bread and beans; "Physiology," cold heart; "German," cheese; "Spanish Economics," bananas. The money raised will be used to help the athletic committee.

Masque Last Night.
The masquerade at the Auditorium last night was one of the largest ever given in the rink. Nearly 500 spectators and skaters were present, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. There were probably a larger variety of costumes worn last night than at any previous masque, making it more difficult to distribute the prizes. Handsome loving cups and skates were the gifts, and were awarded as follows: Best lady skater, Miss Bessie Zidell, as the "Oriental Girl," of Portland. This was a very close event, as it was necessary for Miss McCully and Miss Zidell to skate by themselves in order to determine the winner. Best costumed lady, Miss Annie Swartz; best gentleman skater, — Stahl, as a military officer; best costumed gentleman, A. L. Wallace, as a Mexican; best sustained character, gentleman, Arthur Meyers, as the "Jew Peddler," and Miss Nellie Peterson received a prize for the best sustained lady character.

George Was Honored.
At the home of Mr. Varley, South Salem, a George Washington hatchet party was given last night by the young ladies of the Epworth League Hatchets, decorated with ribbons in the national colors, were worn as souvenirs.

Latest New York Fashions

New York, Feb. 23.—There are two kinds of skirts evidently to be worn this coming season, and the difference is a marked one. Some are elaborately trimmed, others quite plain with the only trimming on the waist. The modern woman has found by experience that the skirt to be worn with any degree of comfort on the street must be plain. Thus there is a big divide between the skirt for utility and the skirt for ceremonious wear. It is this need of propriety of time and place that creates the difference in the skirts this spring. It is to be hoped that women have learned the lesson for good.

A great many of the trimmed skirts have a band at the foot rather than any other mode, but it is a mode that the short woman must beware of as it is apt to take from her inches in a most deplorable way if not handled with the greatest care. The stout woman should avoid it altogether.

A handsome gown seen lately at a luncheon has developed from blue cloth with a band of panne velvet for a hem. At knee depth there was a deeply undulating band of velvet edged on the lower side with knife-pointed tiffeta. The same ruffle edged-hand bordered the deep lace yoke of the bodice. Another gown was of black silk having a front panel and pleated sides, and a deep hem of panne velvet at the sides and back. On each side of the panel the velvet was cut to run upward to knee depth in a narrow band. The velvet was edged at the top and at the sides of the band of passementerie. The sleeves were of velvet with cape-like pieces at the top. The girdle was also of velvet.

Because of this new hem many materials are woven with borders, they are seen in silks, cotton and fine wools, and these borders will be used to carry effects similar to those just described. Besides the woven borders there are insertions passementeries, bandings, as well as the plain materials in a contrasting shade that will be used to trim these skirts. Especially are they used on the lighter materials and would seem as though their use had been called into vogue by the need of some weight to hold the skirt in the graceful lines now considered essential.

A dainty gown the bodice of which was cut by a most fetching and novel mode was a combination of one of the new wool taffetas having a border which was used for both skirt and bodice. The blouse was made over a lining, first a lace covering and then an over portion of the goods edged with the bordering which resembled somewhat the jumper-waist just now so fashionable. Little capelike extensions at the shoulders were used to give breadth to the figure and make the waist seem smaller, while the tabs, extensions of the blouse fronts, and the long lines of the skirt added to the height. The skirt is one of the charming circular models with box-plaits at the front and back, hanging in graceful folds about the bottom. A border band runs around the sides and back but on the two box-plaits that form a front panel, which is bare of the border, are three buttons placed horizontally.

Bodies of velvet or cloth made with wide plaits arranged to cross over and show a front of fine lingerie or lace are one of the new fads. The folds are drawn down so tightly that there is no suspicion of cumptness. The short puffed sleeves slashed over velvet are frequently seen as a picturesque revival of a by-gone fashion.

The draped waist or the surplice is often seen and its popularity is owing no doubt to its universal becomingness which with a few modifications may be made to suit almost any figure. It may be loose and full and hanging for the thin woman; it may be drawn down tightly for the stout woman for whom it can be made to give added waist line. The dressmaker who knows her business can use these ideas to her clients' advantage. A dress having an extremely plain skirt bordered at the bottom with a band of lace over a contrasting color and above it one of narrow velvet ribbon, had a draped surplice waist. A yoke of tucked chiffon was topped with a collar of the same, and to the yoke was attached the bodice proper. Around the back, over the shoulders and down the fronts was arranged a full surplice ending at the waist and crossed over to the left side ornamented with a rosette. The sleeves were of the puffed variety slashed over lace and tucked chiffon. The girdle was of velvet.

At the present moment the lighter more transparent materials are the most popular, and with the great number of them to choose from it is by no means a difficult task to select attractive designs and to have a variety and not necessarily at great expense either. Hand painted and printed chiffon is in most exquisite colorings and designs and are steadily growing in favor. They are of necessity expensive, the hand painted ones, but the printed ones are effective enough for most people to be satisfied with. The colors are fascinating, as well as the fashion of the plain bands of color around the hem, and then the lines of flowers and leaves or more conventionalized designs running up towards the waist are in most delicate shadings. These are in beautiful tones of grey, mauve while pale blues and pinks are satisfactory also, if, perhaps not so original.

Much depends upon the linings for these thin materials, for they make or mar the coloring, and, indeed, it takes the eye of an artist to obtain the desired effect in many instances. The tones of grey can be intensified or modified and often entirely transformed by the grey lining, while most fascinating harmonies in mauve and blue and pink and crimson can be accomplished by the lining being of deeper or lighter hue. Then for those who prefer the more conservative colorings the background of the same shade or just a tone lighter can be had, so that, as can well be imagined it is possible to get an unlimited range of coloring. One point in favor of these figured thin materials should also be borne in mind—they require no other trimming, the pattern furnishing that, so that lace in yoke or bertha and the girdle or bodice of satin velvet or silk is all sufficient. Often, too, the latter can be omitted when an empire or princess style is chosen.

These styles have been so conspicuously for so long a time that there are well founded rumors from headquarters of fashion to the effect that ere long they will no longer reign as prime favorites. In spite of all the rumors, however, the influence of the empire is most distinctly noticeable and the princess gowns are most popular. There is not the same exaggerated rendering of the fashion

*"I Consider Pe-ru-na
The Finest Remedy
On The Market
And Worthy Of The Confidence
Of All
Good People."*

Mrs. Celeste Covell.

Recommending Pe-ru-na to Her Friends.
Mrs. Celeste Covell, formerly President of the Betsy Ross Educational and Benevolent Society, writes from 1432 Harrison street, Chicago, Ill.:
"Only those who have suffered with influenza and have been cured can appreciate how grateful I feel that such a splendid medicine as Peruna has been placed at the door of every man and woman. I only wish that all knew of its fine qualities."
"In cases of catarrh of the stomach and head I have seen some remarkable cures through its use. I consider your Peruna the finest remedy on the market and worthy of the confidence of all good people."

Recommends Pe-ru-na.
Mrs. Alice J. Bordner, 1811 Maple Ave., Harrisburg, Pa., writes:
"I have found a cure in Peruna. I cannot recommend Peruna enough. I also thank you for your kind attention to me. I am as well as could be ever since I began taking Peruna."

A Letter to the Public.
Mr. Tefft Johnson, 1929 85th street, Bath Beach, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:
"In all my experiments with medicines in the effort to improve a condition impaired by overwork, I have found nothing that has done so much good as Peruna. As a tonic it is grand. "I take pleasure in recommending it to professional people and to the public in general."

Praise For Pe-ru-na.
Miss Ella L. Matthews, box 111, Hill City, Tenn., writes:
"From experience I have decided that there could be no greater medicine in the world than Peruna. I am ever ready to praise Peruna to my friends."

This season up to the present 46,000 tons have been exported. The foreign business in agricultural machinery is rapidly growing, particularly in Russia, where American manufactures of this description show an increasing popularity, mainly owing to the facts that the machinery suits local conditions, and its extreme lightness. The latter permits of much better transportation than European makes. In fact, wherever they are introduced, American agricultural machines quickly supersede everything turned out by foreign competitors. The question of price is not considered by the average buyer abroad, farming machinery made in the United States readily commanding a higher figure than the products of British and German factories. The exports of agricultural machinery and implements are expected to exceed $25,000,000 this year.
