

The Daily Capital Journal

DAILY CAPITAL JOURNAL, SALEM, OREGON, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1909.

NO. 48.

LENUS MOVES OUT OF STATE CAPITOL

ING AND KAISER EMBRACE, BUT IT IS THE LOVE OF AHAB

EDWARD AND KAISER WILHELM ARE DEAREST FOES

AND GERMANY CAN NEVER FREE BECAUSE OF DIFFERENCES IN TARIFF POLICIES

Feb. 26.—There is not the same among members of the corps in London that King's recent visit to Berlin will have permanent effect toward the more friendly relations between the two countries.

English, the German and, in all the rest of the European, have presented the king's visit to the German as a beautiful opportunity and predicted an elimination of the friction characterized Anglo-Ger-strongest it is predicted, England will continue hostile to everything Teutonic.

The Kaiser's visit to England a year ago commentators on the situation remarked, was proclaimed just as the king's visit to Berlin is being proclaimed now, as marking an era of permanent friendship between the two nations. Instead, it marked the beginning of a period of the severest strain their relations have ever known.

It is only a few weeks since the Kaiser flatly refused England's suggestion of a mutual limitation of naval armaments, though the strengthening of his own, as every one knew in spite of the fact that he gave other reasons, could not possibly serve him except by rendering it a more effective weapon against England.

English public men quite frankly admitted, after the collapse of their "limitation" plan, that the country's only reason for suggesting it was the administration's desire to trim naval expenses during the present period of the government's grave financial embarrassment.

Finding it impossible to check the Kaiser's shipbuilding, all the arguments of an unusually persuasive chancellor of the exchequer were insufficient to prevent parliament from immediately planning enough new fighting craft to maintain British naval superiority over the fatherland's growing fleet.

While the royal visit was actually in progress the English government was just beginning so important a strengthening of its North Sea defenses—where Germany would be almost certain, in the event of hostilities, to strike first—that it was deemed desirable studiously to avoid discussion of the work in all the conversations between the two rulers and their followers.

Leaving out of consideration England's unwavering policy to keep down whichever continental power happens at the time to be strongest, diplomats here argue that Great Britain and Germany can never be friends until the fatherland abandons its rapidly maturing colonization policy. The Germans have reached a point, it is reasoned, where their country is so overcrowded as to render outside expansion vitally necessary to them. The Kaiser is trying to establish colonies for their benefit but finds the best location for his purposes already in England's possession. He is building a powerful navy, the diplomats think, to take some of his rival's possessions away by force; England knows it and it is building a still more powerful navy to keep everything it has got. Not one European in ten, competent to form an opinion at all on the international situation, believes they will ever settle the point without a fight.

One of the strongest pro-friendship arguments advanced is the signing of the Franco-German Moroccan compact while King Edward was at Berlin. European statesmen don't think this really amounts to much. For one thing they doubt strongly whether the agreement will be kept long. They are pretty sure, too, that it must have been arranged without the knowledge of the king, his policy having been almost openly for years to keep Germany surrounded by a cycle of unfriendly neighbors on every side. Finally if he did promote the understanding, this is a general conviction that Edward, acknowledged by every one to be the most accomplished diplomat, with the possible exception of the sultan of Turkey, in Europe, arranged it somehow so that it will prove ultimately to work to Germany's disadvantage.

Grand Exhibition

Of 1909 Newest Merchandise

Thousands of yards of Embroideries, Laces, Fancy Dress Trimmings, New Belts, New Leather Bags, New Dress Goods, New Silks, New Shirtwaists, New Wash Goods, New Notions, New Suits, New Millinery, New Dress Skirts, New Silk Petticoats, New Flowers, New Ostrich Feathers, New Gloves, New Hosiery, New Shoes, New White Goods, New Muslin Underwear, and all the rest.

See here and get up to date merchandise at prices that will bring you back, and all your friends.

BARGAINS IN EVERY DEPARTMENT

New Arrivals in SPRING SUITS AND MILLINERY

Shrewd buying in New York enables us to sell suits and millinery at much lower prices than our competitors. Seeing is believing.

$12.00 Suits now only $ 5.00

$18.00 Suits now only $ 9.50

$35.00 Suits, now only $18.00

Come and see the values.

$5.00 New Spring Hats only $2.00

$8.50 New Spring Hats only $4.50

Lots of others at lower prices.

SPECIALS FOR THIS SALE

Silks, yard, 19c and up; calicoes, yard, 4c; outing flannels, yard, 4c; 15c dress ginghams, yard, 9c; India linens, yard 8 1-3c; 85c dress goods, 49c, and so along the line with all the rest.

CHICAGO STORE

PEOPLES BARGAIN HOUSE

C. Y. TIMMONS PAYS ALL HIS DEBTS

At 12:27 today C. Y. Timmons was brought down from the death cell and after being asked by Superintendent James whether or not he wished to have the death warrant read, answered no, and was then conducted to the scaffold. He required the assistance of the guards noticeably to mount the scaffold, and when asked if he had anything to say he spoke very little, and all that could be understood was "I have tried to be good." He was then placed on the trap, the straps adjusted, the black cap put over his head, the noose pulled securely about his neck, and at 12:31 he was sent to eternity.

Notwithstanding the terrible plunge of six feet one inch, Timmons' neck was not broken, and when he reached the end of the rope, the wound in his neck was torn open, and through this he breathed stertorously, continuing to breathe this for several minutes, when his pulse began to weaken and his strength being all gone, he quit. At 12:54 he was pronounced dead by the attending physicians, and at 1:01 he was taken down and put in the coffin.

MRS. TEAL ALL RIGHT SUPPORTED BY OFFICERS

New York, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Margaret Teal was found guilty of subornation of perjury today in connection with the divorce action of Mrs. Frank Gould, and was sentenced to serve a year in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island.

A stay of execution was granted until Tuesday to allow her attorneys to obtain from the supreme court a writ of reasonable doubt, on which to carry the case into the higher courts.

Mrs. Teal fainted when the verdict was read. She was unable to stand alone, and was supported by two officers while her sentence was pronounced.

The convicted woman is the wife of Ben Teal, the theatrical manager.

It was charged that she was employed by a detective to manufacture evidence against Frank Gould, and that she induced two young women to swear falsely against him. The case is one of the latest sensations on Broadway.

DEMOCRATS JUST CUT IT ALL OUT

Washington, Feb. 26.—The Democratic filibuster against provisions of the sundry appropriations bill last night was ended practically at 1 o'clock this morning. Representative Tawney announced that, as punishment for the attack the house would not adjourn until 3:20 a. m. today. The bill made little progress during the session, but many congressmen expressed the belief that its consideration would be concluded today.

CALIFORNIA SOLONS HAVE TO GO DOWN INTO "K" STREET NOW

HOUSE BILL 104 KILLED AND THE SEDUCTIVE BOOZE CAN NO LONGER BE PROCURED IN CLOAK ROOM

Sacramento, Feb. 26.—Booze emporiums are no longer listed among the establishments of the state capitol, and the thirsty solon is now compelled to hike down town for his toddy, or carry a private flask. Free booze at the room of the sergeants-at-arms of the legislature is a dead institution. It is now impossible to find liquor of any character in the cloak rooms and offices of the sergeants-at-arms. Just why the change was made is problematical and open to discussion, but most of the legislators have a hunch that it was on account of the publicity given to the pernicious practice which is in violation of the penal code.

Both Stafford and Martin, the two sergeants-at-arms, made it clear this morning that there was nothing in the drink line about their offices and there was a noticeable decrease in the life of weary pilgrims that hitherto journeyed to the shrine of Bacchus, enthroned in the rear office.

One question has not been definitely settled and that is, who furnished the booze. Nobody seems to care to tell. The royal arch people deny that they had anything to do with it, and the local option and anti-saloon element indignantly repudiate the rumor that it was furnished through them as a reactionary scheme.

THE STOCK MARKET IS AGAIN STRONG

[United Press Leased Wire.]
New York, Feb. 26.—The initial prices on the stock market were very strong, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Reading, Steel common and several other securities opening a clear point over their previous closing figure. Amalgamated Copper, however, after opening fairly firm, became weak and dropped off over a point, the general list losing fraction of their upturn. Business while not as large as on previous days this week, was carried on much more orderly.

After the noon hour, the market became very dull and uninteresting. Until the last hour of the session, a short covering movement carried prices up, Canadian Pacific gaining 3 1/2 points, Union Pacific, Reading and L. & N. gaining two points, others from a good fraction to over a point. The close was very strong.

Union Pacific closed at 176 1/2, Southern Pacific 116 1/2, Canadian Pacific 171, Copper 66 1/2, L. & N. 129, Reading 122 1/2, Smelter 80 1/2.

WANTS COMMISSION TO HAVE BACKING

[United Press Leased Wire.]
Sacramento, Feb. 26.—Some real authorization for real work is given the railroad commission through a bill drawn by Senator A. Caminetti and reported out favorably by the senate committee on corporations today. The measure, since it has the stamp of Railroad Commissioner Loveland's approval, will probably be passed without opposition by both houses of the legislature.

The Caminetti bill appropriates $25,000 to be used by the attorney general in representing the railroad commission in proceedings against common carriers before the interstate commerce commission or other tribunals.

Like Chauncey Depew.
[United Press Leased Wire.]
Washington, Feb. 26.—The house today voted overwhelmingly to continue the existence of the international waterways commission, representing the United States and Canada, with an appropriation of $20,000 as contained in the sundry civil appropriation bill.

GROVE S. JOHNSON IN THE LIMELIGHT

[United Press Leased Wire.]
Sacramento, Feb. 26.—With Grove S. Johnson of Sacramento and J. P. Transu of Los Angeles valiantly defending the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the Harriman transcontinental railroad lines, the assembly today referred to a committee on conference Senate J. B. Sanford's mutilated resolution calling upon congress to give additional power to the interstate commerce commission with a view to bringing about an investigation of the recent increase in freight rates.

Speaker Stanton appointed a committee of three to confer with a senate committee regarding the resolution. Transu and Johnson and A. M. Drew of Fresno, who is handling the Sanford measure in the house, constitute the assembly committee.

In its present amended form Sanford's resolution contains no reference to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company or to the recommendations of Panama Commissioner Bristow that an independent steamship line between Pacific coast points and Panama would solve the present high rates problem. Drew is averse to sending the resolution to congress until it is restored to a semblance of its former self.

SWINDLERS DUPED MANY.

Pseudo Sport Promoters Even Had Bankers as Victims.

[United Press Leased Wire.]
Denver, Feb. 26.—According to the Times, the four men arrested at Little Rock, Ark., yesterday in connection with gigantic swindling operations, conducted through the means of fake horse races, prizefights, wrestling matches and foot races, are not the only ones connected with the enterprises. Other arrests are expected to follow within a few days.

Many of the victims of the alleged swindling clique are residents of Colorado, and the list includes at least two bankers. The total amount derived from residents of this state, according to statements credited to Chief of Police Armstrong, of this city, will reach $100,000. Four residents of Denver alone are said to have been buncoed out of $42,000.