

MULHALL BEGINS HIS RECITAL OF SCANDAL

Sensational Expose of Men in High Places Commenced by Former Washington Lobbyist.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY MANUFACTURERS ARE READ

Witness Freely Admits He Doubt-Crossed Some of Those Who Trusted Him in His Work.

Washington, July 12.—Martin M. Mulhall, who says he was the active lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers for many years, began his testimony last night before the senate lobby investigation committee.

Mulhall, whose alleged correspondence has brought into the limelight the names of scores of men prominent in political life in the last ten years, was on the stand about two hours. The committee made only a faint impression on the huge pile of letters, but enough was read into the record to show Mulhall's relations with Marshall Cushing, ex-secretary of the Manufacturers' Association. These relations, the testimony showed, began in 1903, and Mulhall was first employed to work against an eight-hour bill favored by the late Senator McComas of Maryland.

Trachery Freely Admitted.

Mulhall admitted frankly that he had worked to defeat the McComas forces in Maryland, while he was still posing as the Senator's friend.

Mulhall swayed about the senate office building all day. He went into the hearing room early in the morning, spent an hour there and then went to Senator Reed's private office. He is a man of little more than medium build, with a sandy complexion and thin gray hair. He wears glasses and looks over them rather than through them. He did not appear particularly nervous.

Senator Reed was designated by Chairman Overman to examine the witness, who said he was born in 1850 and had lived in Baltimore more than 13 years. He said before he went with the National Association of Manufacturers he was "principally in politics" and was connected with the Republican National Committee.

Tells of Bribe Refused.

"I refused a bribe of $5000 and a life position in the naval service in 1892," said Mulhall. "That year I had charge of the Republican campaign in Albany and Rensselaer counties, New York. Previous to that I had charge of William McKisley's gubernatorial campaign in Ohio."

Mulhall said the late Senator Quay of Pennsylvania, sent him to confer with John Mitchell during the anthracite strike in the Pennsylvania fields in 1902 to get the "inside story." During that time, Mulhall said, he arranged for a conference between Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania, and three labor leaders.

The first Mulhall letter introduced was addressed to Mitchell, in February, 1902, relating to these meetings.

A letter dated May 17, 1902, from Mulhall to Mitchell, told of a conference between Mulhall and Governor Stone, at which Stone expressed sympathy with the miners.

Friendship of Governor.

"I think you could make a grand stroke," the letter said, in suggesting the calling of a strike. "If you would meet Governor Stone and make him your friend; he will be of great assistance to you in the event of an anthracite strike."

A letter in August, 1901, from C. Carroll Downs, whom Mulhall said was secretary to the late Senator McComas, of Maryland, related to the employment of two men in the treasury department in Washington. The men were officers of the Molders' Union in Baltimore.

A letter of July 18, 1913, to Mulhall, as head of the Workmen's Protective Association, from an association of engineers in New York, was read by Senator Reed. The letter said that "Senator McComas has voted right in the interests of labor in every measure that has come before the United States senate in the last six years."

Letters Are Not Signed.

Speaking of letters from Cushing, Senator Reed found one without a signature and wanted to know if the National Association of Manufacturers secretly wrote unsigned letters.

"Always," said Mulhall.

Senator Reed picked out a letter from Marshall Cushing to John W. Yerkes, the commissioner of internal revenue, urging him to retain Mulhall as deputy collector of customs at Baltimore. A note on the top of this letter said that it was "absolutely confidential," as it "would be fatal if Senator McComas knew I was doing this."

Asked by Senator Reed why this would be fatal, Mulhall said: "Because the National Association of Manufacturers was fighting McComas. I had been appointed for three months by McComas just after the Baltimore fires, and Cushing wanted to help me retain the place."

Workmen's Association Controlled.

Mulhall declared that Cushing had agreed with him to aid to build up the Workmen's Protective Association, which Mulhall controlled. It had run down to about 500 members and with Cushing's aid, Mulhall declared, it was worked up to 1200 members. For this, Cushing, as secretary of the National Manufacturers' Association, frequently sent Mulhall money.

"He sent me checks, usually $100 at a time, to be used in hall rent, and keeping up the organization," said Mulhall. "Occasionally he sent me $40 checks, which were for my own expenses."

MINISTERS WANT HAND IN SUNDAY ARRANGEMENTS

At a recent meeting of the Ministerial Union the following resolution was adopted:

"To the general public and all civic, social and commercial bodies of the city of Salem:

"Inasmuch as the Christian ministers of this city represent and are chiefly responsible for its most important interests; we most respectfully request that before anything of a public character is arranged for affecting the churches or a proper observance of the Christian Sabbath, we be accorded the courtesy of a hearing. We make this request in order that we may wisely and effectively co-operate in promoting the best interests of our city."

STAMP OUT THE RED FLAG.

(New York Times.)

Secretary Daniels, speaking last night at the anniversary dinner of the Terminal Y. M. C. A., declared that "there is no place on our free soil for those who want to fly the red flag." He was speaking to railroad men who know that the red flag means danger. But there is a difference between the red flag used in railroading, the flag that the men in the engine cabs are supposed to heed instantly, and the red flag raised by those who are seeking to subvert government. In railroading the red flag is a safeguard. In politics the red flag is a menace. Secretary Daniels is right in saying that there is no place here for the red flag. It should be stamped as an evil thing and prohibited, and those who follow it should be rated as enemies of the state and punished if they persist in flaunting this emblem of anarchism in public.

Young bank robber Perrine came to grief a little sooner than some; but it isn't a paying enterprise for any of them.

Mr. Mulhall may not be a very desirable citizen, but the country is greatly indebted to him for showing up the methods of the National Manufacturers' Association, and the treachery to the people of many past members of congress.

SOCIETY

THE PROBLEM.
By Minna Irving.
When woman, lovely woman, she
If she is young or old,
Or rich or poor, or very plain,
Or charming to behold,
I cannot see the reason why
By crasy caprice led,
She gets a hat a mile too big
To fit her pretty head.
Or when she seeks another store
A pair of shoes to buy,
With buckles big, and flaunting
And heels so very high,
Although she wears a number three
She's certain to refuse
The proper size to suit her feet,
And calls for number twos.
