

MINERS ATTACK LABOR FEDERATION

Call Organization Fossilized in Several Bitter Speeches at Their Big Convention.

WARM DEBATE ON ISSUES OF DAY BETWEEN DELEGATES

Industrial Unionism Problems Taken Up And President White Is Among Those Speaking.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Indianapolis, Jan. 22.—Attacks on the American Federation of Labor cropped out in the convention of the United Mineworkers of America in debate on the resolutions committee report yesterday. The speeches against the federation were started by Duncan McDonald, an Illinois labor leader, in the course of the discussion of a resolution regarding industrial unionism.

Resolutions dealing with industrial unionism many of them demanding a convention for April 1, 1914, to consider the subject, were submitted to the committee. The committee opposed the calling of the convention, and drafted a substitute resolution instructing the delegates to the American Federation of Labor to work for the passage of a resolution providing for industrial unionism, rather than craft unionism.

Federation Called "Worm-Eaten." "If any one can get a progressive resolution through the American Federation of Labor," McDonald asserted, "he will deserve a monument, for he will be as great a man as Washington. That body is reactionary, fossilized, worm-eaten and sad."

McDonald asserted that as a delegate of the mineworkers he attended the Seattle convention of the federation, and was almost thrown out bodily for supporting a resolution favoring industrial unionism.

"The conditions of the American Federation of Labor are about as Delegate McDonald has stated," said President White, of the miners. "So far it has been impossible to get an industrial unionism resolution passed by that body. The time is coming, however, when the labor leaders will have to see that in industrial unionism lies the only hope of the labor movement in this country."

Delegates Insulted In Charge. Thomas Kennedy, of Hazelton, Pa., said that almost every delegate from the miners to the federation in recent years had been insulted in the convention.

"That organization is rotten to the core," he concluded. "Despite the attacks on the federation the committee's substitute resolution was adopted."

Frank A. Ryan, president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, who with several of his associates, was convicted in the federal court here on charges of conspiring to transport explosives illegally, addressed the convention.

"There seems to be two interpretations of the law—one for the powerful capitalist and one for the laboring people," President Ryan said. "Ryan Resents Punishment. "The capitalists conspire to increase prices and the like, then when they are caught red-handed they are told to dissolve, go and sin no more. Not so with laboring people. When we are charged with conspiracy they force us to take our punishment."

Ryan thanked the miners for the moral and financial aid they had given the ironworkers and declared no act of his, past, present or future, should make the union men feel ashamed. The question of transferring the convention from this city was passed over today without a ripple. The committee combined several resolutions on this subject with others relating to the erection of a permanent headquarters building and a printing plant for the Mineworkers' journal in one, and it was referred to a referendum vote of the miners. The delegates said they did not want to take the responsibility for placing a $500,000 assessment on the members.

The convention voted to appoint a committee to work in connection with the bureau of mines for a federal mining law, or, if that were constitutional, for uniform mining laws in states containing coal mines.

CAPITAL JOURNAL BOYS LIKE ELK PLAY

The third presentation of "The Band from Amsterdam" was given at the Grand last night, and it was witnessed by the most enthusiastic audience of the series. The boys were there from the state training school, the girls from the industrial school and The Capital Journal carriers and newboys were also there. To say that they enjoyed it is to state an evident truth very poorly, for they lived it. Their interest in the egg and its possible fate was not exceeded by that of the citizens of Terminal City, whose public market depended on it.

They were alive to every movement and that they appreciated it, and understood it, was evidenced by the tumultuous applause, and always at the right place. When Otto Von Dippel, the leader of the band, was presented a beautiful bunch of celery as an appreciation of his superb presentation of the part, and with true German frugality proceeded to eat his bouquet, there was a hiatus among the new boys, and for awhile it seemed the services of a doctor would be needed to get some of them back into a normal condition.

The house was packed again, which is the best evidence of the attractiveness of the Elks' big show. A play that can run three nights in Salem to full houses is in a class by itself.

The Elks are to be congratulated, as well as thanked for giving the theatregoers of Salem three nights of clean and delightful entertainment. When their next annual entertainment is given, it is safe to say there will be crowded houses and the advance sale of tickets will leave no seats for those who wait for the opening night.

"REMEMBER THE MAINE"

Great Spanish-American War Play Here on Thursday.

Starting on Thursday evening and continuing till Saturday night with a special Saturday matinee, the Colonial players will present at the Wexford the great Spanish-American war play, "Remember the Maine," one of the most realistic productions of recent years. The scenes of the play are laid in a round Havana harbor and the story is one so well known to every American that it does not need explanation.

The big feature of the show is the reproduction of the blowing up of the "Maine" in Havana harbor, just as realistic as was the disaster itself, which sent so many brave American sailors into eternity and caused the civilized world to be shaken to its foundation and the American people to cry "Remember the Maine."

The play is produced under the personal direction of Frederick Harrington and special scenic effects and costumes will make the play one of the banner bills of the Colonial Players' repertoire.

There is a world of comedy in the parts of Miss Cartwright of the New York World and Henry Burns Jones of the London Graphic, two newspaper correspondents sent to determine the true state of affairs on the island of Cuba, and the same are well handled by Miss Mildred Kirby and Richard Darling, while Frederick Harrington as Lieut. Ralph Dunbar and Miss Jane Grey as Gracia Cardenas, the Spanish beauty, are beautiful roles, well cast. The other members of the cast appear to advantage and a strong high class production is assured.

BILL AT BLIGH PLEASES BIG AUDIENCE THERE

The bill at the Bligh last night proved superior to anything that has been seen here for many a day, according to the expressions overheard when the big crowd left the show.

The musical turns were especially fine. A troupe of colored men afforded some first-class music with cornets, saxophones and many other musical contrivances, much to the real pleasure of the audience. The musicians succeeded in touching the enthusiastic spirit of everyone present, and they could hardly get off the stage, so appreciative was the crowd.

The motion pictures were of the best, and to add to their entertainment a special orchestra furnished some beautiful accompaniments.

LAND BOARD BADLY DIVIDED ON PROBLEM

State Treasurer, Engineer and Governor Hopelessly at Loggerheads on Irrigation Scheme.

LEWIS TO TAKE STUMP REGARDING THIS MATTER

Official Gives Out Statement Telling Why He Voted Against Action of Governor West.

The action of the state desert land board in declining to approve a proposal of Governor West providing that the north canal unit of the Central Oregon Irrigation company's project be irrigated by state and Federal cooperation indicates that the board is hopelessly divided and that there will be war henceforth.

State Treasurer Kay has always been opposed to the state reclaiming land; Governor West has favored appropriations by the legislature, as in the Tuma project, for the work, and State Engineer Lewis has been an advocate of a constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of state bonds to raise money for irrigating lands, the work to be done by state and federal cooperation, except where there is a moral obligation to the settlers as in the Tuma case.

Mr. Lewis has made a study of conditions in this state and if necessary will advocate the bond proposition on the stump in the coming campaign. That Governor West will defend the plan suggested by him to reclaim the north canal unit goes without saying and State Treasurer Kay, who will be a candidate for re-election, is certain to make a fight against irrigation of public lands with state money. He will insist, as he indicated at the meeting yesterday, that the "Federal Government irrigate lands in this state as it is doing in other states." Mr. Lewis made the following statement today regarding his position:

Measure to Be Voted.

"I voted against Governor West's motion to co-operate with the United States in the construction of the north canal unit of the Central Oregon Irrigation company's project, for the reason that he refused to specify that state funds should be raised through the sale of state bonds, rather than by direct taxation. "At the last session of the legislature a constitutional amendment was submitted for vote of the people, providing for the loaning of the state's credit to the extent of 2 per cent of the assessed valuation, for the construction of irrigation and power projects and for the development of the cut-over and other untitled lands of the state. This amendment will be voted upon in November of this year.

"I am opposed to the construction of [such] projects through direct taxation of all the people, but am strongly in favor of the above constitutional amendment and the adoption of a comprehensive reclamation programme in co-operation with the secretary of the interior, whereby all large projects in the state can ultimately be constructed as rapidly as transportation and other conditions warrant.

"The state and national irrigation authorities should co-operate rather than work at cross-purposes as in the past. The entire reclamation fund invested in Oregon would not irrigate one-half of the 4,000,000 acres susceptible of reclamation, besides most of this land is now in large private holdings.

Fund for Vacant Lands.

"The United States reclamation fund is primarily intended for vacant public lands. Therefore our meager dry farm population will continue to haul water many miles for stock and domestic purposes, and future growth be limited, unless we assist in financing such development. Through co-operation with a stable and experienced organization which has on the whole made good, the usual difficulties due to frequent changes in state policy for political reasons can be overcome and safety of state funds assured.

"I see some plan for utilizing the [un]productive credit of the United States could be worked out funds could be secured at about 3 per cent interest, and an annual payment by the entrepreneur of a per cent of the construction charge should in 50 years repay both principal and interest, as 1 per cent with 3 per cent compound interest, will in six times pay off the principal.

"If the people fail to approve the plan of issuing state bonds in November, then we should urge the United States to take over and complete the North canal unit, as the lands are almost exclusively property of the United States."

CONFESSION OF SUHR'S

twelve Watson, who were instrumental in getting the confession, were in close consultation last night, presumably with reference to the desirability of introducing or withholding Suhr's statement.

tely to have established was that Suhr and Ford sent messages while trouble was in progress on the Durst hop ranch, to I. W. W. members in many cities to come to their aid. The telegrams themselves were produced in court by R. B. Moore, who, as Southern Pacific agent and telegraph operator at Wheatland transmitted them.

The gist of them was: "A strike is on. Our demands have been turned down. The I. W. W. has been ordered off the ground. Many families are destitute. Funds are needed."

They were signed by Suhr but Ford helped him to send them.

Sheriff Tells of Beating. Sheriff Voss of Yuba county, leader of the posse which tried to disperse the crowd of hoppers just before the riot, still showing the effects of the fearful beating he received at the time, was on the stand again today.

He could not tell much of the fight, however. He knew only that he and his men arrived as Ford was addressing a big meeting, that he announced himself as the sheriff, called on the crowd to keep the peace and forced his way into it.

"Then, right away, I got a blow on the head," he said, "and fell unconscious. When I recovered the crowd was gone. I heard no shooting and I did not draw my own revolver—only a billy."

Fired First Shot.

Deputy Sheriff Daken, who fired the first shot in the riot, told his story yesterday afternoon.

"The sheriff told me to stay at the edge of the crowd," he testified, "I had a gun but the other officers were down before I fired. I shot twice into the air, hoping the people would scatter but firing started in the crowd again.

"I saw a Porto Rican clubbing the sheriff, called to him to stop, and when he did not, shot and killed him. A man ran at me with a club and I shot his arm off.

"Altogether I fired four shots. They ran from the mob, got into the company store and disguised myself to escape pursuit.

"Of the prisoners here, I saw only Ford. He made no threats of violence. He only told the people to stand on their rights."

Constable Stunned.

Constable Lee Anderson, of Wheatland, with one arm still bound to his side, from the effects of an injury received from the riot, was another of yesterday afternoon's witnesses.

"Durst had told Ford to leave the ground, as he was an agitator," he said. "Later I tried to arrest him as a trespasser, without a warrant, but the crowd prevented me.

"A girl ran toward me shouting: 'Shoot me! Shoot me!' "A man also bared his breast and taunted: 'Shoot! Shoot!'

"Then they tried to take my gun and stoned me.

Beaten and Shot.

"When the officers arrived Ford was slipping away into the crowd. I plunged in after him but he called, 'Hey! Hey!' to the crowd and I got a blow on the head that knocked me unconscious. It was while I was lying senseless on the ground that I was shot in the arm.

"When I came to, women all around were screaming, bodies were lying all around me, and I saw Maxwell, who was standing up with his hand raised and a cigar between his fingers, crumple up and fall.

"Except Ford, I saw none of the prisoners here."

Expected developments concerning the Suhr confession, and that charges that torture was used to obtain it, filled the court early today. Many were turned away.

Tell of Riot.

Mayville, Cal., Jan. 22.—The story of last August's riot on the Durst hop ranch near Wheatland, in which four men lost their lives, was told yesterday at the murder trial here of Richard Ford, William Beck, Harry Bagan and Herman Suhr, by one of the men who actually participated in the fight with a gun in his hands.

NAZARENE CHURCH DEDICATION SUNDAY

Rev. DeLance Wallace.

Rev. DeLance Wallace.

"Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a dedication service at the Nazarene church, corner of 19th and Marion streets," said Rev. J. L. Little, pastor, today.

"Rev. DeLance Wallace, of Walls Walla, district superintendent of the Northwest district, will officiate. Bro. Wallace is a noble, whole-hearted Christian, dearly loved by the people of the district he superintends. He has five times been elected superintendent, with but very few votes cast against him at any time. He and his good wife were conducting an independent mission in the city of Spokane, which became the first Nazarene church in the Northwest district. This took place 11 years ago. Since then the work has grown until there was a division of the district, and there are now 36 churches in that part he still presides over. He is a self-sacrificing man, giving up all for God. It will do you good to hear him preach the gospel. He will be here for one service only, and then goes to Barlow to conduct a similar service for the church there. The special meeting under the leadership of Bros. Lewis and Matthews is progressing nicely and will be continued for another week. Two services daily, 2:50 and 7:30 p. m. Everybody invited. Come out and enjoy the feast. We are expecting Sunday to be a great day in the history of the church here. Three services, 11 a. m., 3 p. m. (dedication service) and 7:30 p. m., in the evening. We have rented chairs, and will try to accommodate all who come."

SINNOTT EXPECTS EARLY ACTION ON LAND EXCHANGE

According to advices received by Governor West from Congressman Sinnott, the latter expects this week to secure a favorable report from the committee on lands on a proposed exchange of scattered school lands in the state for a compact body of timber land in the Cascade forest reserve. There are about 50,000 acres involved in the exchange. The plan of exchanging the land was urged by the governor, who contended that benefits would accrue in that the state would obtain a com-act body, and, being located in a forest reserve, it could be supervised by the school of forestry of the Oregon Agricultural college. The land the state will secure if the exchange is made, lies in Linn county south of the Santiam, its north line being that stream. The city of Detroit is about the center of the north boundary line.

DR. WINSHIP GIVES FINE ADDRESS HERE

Dr. A. E. Winship, one of the leading educators of the United States, spoke to an interested audience at the high school last night, his subject being a very practical one, "Education and Efficiency." He contended it was not so much teaching the subject as teaching the individual pupil that counted in the work of the educator. He illustrated this phase at some length. He insisted that the education which did not make the pupil efficient was not successful.

Dr. Winship was the guest at 6:30 last evening at a dinner given by the domestic science class of the high school, under the direction of Miss Bertha Edwards, instructor in the Department. Assistant State Superintendent Carlton was also a guest of honor, and others included Superintendents Smith and Kuntz and principals of the schools of the city.

Dr. Winship left this morning for Seattle, where he is to speak, and Saturday he will give an address at Pendleton.
