Motorcycle Policeman Stanton last night arrested Lee Anderson for riding his wheel on the streets after night without a light. Young Anderson paid a fine of $2.50 assessed against him by Judge Elgin this morning.

Visit Gilson's attractive new barber shop in Bligh building, State street.

The old Willamette at this point is holding its own, despite the fact that the rainfall has dropped off. The stream is up to the 62 mark, and is showing no indications of going down. This stage is ideal for steamboating, and river traffic between this city and Portland is excellent. Last season at this time the water was very low, and steamers experienced great difficulty in what all the racket was about. Laying points.

A big "whoop" startled residents north of the city last night, and for a time it was thought some one was trying to blow up that end of town. This morning, however, it was learned just die Walsh and Harlem Tommy Murphy out in the center of Hood street, between Fifth and Broadway, were two cats, dead as door nails with a couple of loads of bird shot in their hides. Some nearby resident had evidently grown tired of the concert and dismissed the musical Toms with a double barreled shotgun.

Albert Cuffner, a 14-year-old high school lad, appeared before Police Judge Elgin morning, and offered an explanation as to why he beat up another boy of about his own age in East Salem last Saturday night. Young Cuffner told the court that Ralph Yoho, his "victim," started the row by throwing rocks and making faces at him. He told Astoria has Salem cleared clear of language, and when the latter refused he administered a good licking to Yoho. Night Officer Welsh was called and placed Cuffner under arrest, with instructions to appear this morning in the police court. Judge Elgin advised Cuffner to get his witnesses, if he had any, and appear again at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Cuffner asserts that he can prove Yoho started the racket, and that it was up to him to fight, or submit to being stoned by Yoho.

Special next week—Our L. V. floor polisher outfit is a genuine prize package. It consists of our splendid two-sided floor polisher, worth $1.50, a great big $1.00 bottle of liquid polish and a 25c Crepette dust cloth—total value, $2.75—all for $1.50. Buren & Hamilton.

When it comes to the high cost of navigating between Salem and up-river the map in several different ways, according to Chief of Police Shedeck, who returned from that place Saturday night. The chief declares that a man, even a single one, must have a goodly amount of the long green if he desires to get along in Astoria. Two soft boiled eggs, two pieces of toast and a cup of coffee cost the chief just 30 cents, he says, while two flap-jacks and a cup of black coffee, served in a hotel in the coast city, calls for 40 cents. Chief Shedeck said that for a time he thought he had made a mistake and had traveled as far as Nome, Alaska, but after looking about a little, he found that about every eating joint in the place was way up in the air on prices.

A neighborhood row took up considerable of the police court's time this morning. Fred Bigelow last Saturday swore out a warrant for the arrest of N.M. Hall, a neighbor, charging the latter with disorderly conduct. Bigelow appeared in court this morning and told Judge Elgin that Hall insisted upon grazing his cattle upon his (Bigelow's) property, and that when asked to desist, Hall cursed him and attempted to draw a revolver. "Now, you look here," said the judge, "my advice is for you fellows to go home and mind strictly to your own affairs in the future. Hall has no right to graze his cattle in front of property abutting on the street without permission, and I want him to understand. Hall, you must not violate the law again in this said he told Yoho to get out the rough matter out of the courts." Hall said that he did not know that he was violating the law, and promised not to graze his cows in the street again. Bigelow, while unsatisfied, still agreed to let the quarrel drop if Hall would keep off his property.

The police last night arrested Albert Leger, a transient, on the charge of begging. Leger said he was hungry and didn't have a cent so was compelled to ask alms. He got what he wanted, a free head and a fairly good breakfast together with two days' time in jail to think up some scheme whereby he can earn at least a living.

Will Patterson, a husky foundry worker of Salem, who has been employed in Dallas for a few weeks, returned home Saturday to spend Sunday with friends and relatives. Mr. Patterson looks hale and hearty despite the fact that he has been putting in some hard licks in the Polk county town.

Captain George Hatch's team won all points in the bluff and volley ball contest held Friday night in Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, which puts his team in the lead of Captain Albert's team by one-quarter point. This evening the last games of the series will be played, and it is expected the final contest will be a hard struggle. There was a big attendance last night of both teams.

Members of the Biles' lodge are making elaborate preparations for their annual homecoming, which will be held in this city April 23. The 18th anniversary of the lodge will be celebrated at this time also. Music, addresses, reminiscences will form the program. Fred S. Bynon, chairman; Harry Weidmer and Carl Schwab form the committee having the matter in charge.

Quite a number of Salem people went to Portland Saturday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Joseph J. Evans.

The work of remodeling the state house is about completed, and there will soon be room for all the state officers. That is, of course, if too many are not elected this fall.

Registration is still slow, and it looks like there would be several thousand who cannot vote unless their friends sweep for them on election day.

Governor West, Secretary of State Gleett and State Treasurer Kay went to Pendleton Saturday night to inspect the state hospital for the insane. Purchasing Agent Goodin proceeded then.

Passengers on a Commercial street car yesterday came near witnessing a tragedy. A lady with a go-cart and a baby stepped from the car at the intersection of Commercial and Chemeketa streets, and, instead of looking both ways before starting for the sidewalk, the mother walked west to the curb, and was all the time looking south on Commercial street. A big auto glided to within a few feet of the woman, and for a few seconds it appeared as though the machine would run down both mother and the child. After much skidding and reversing, however, the auto came to a stop within two feet of the woman, and she failed to see the approaching danger then, until she turned around to the sidewalk. "Whew," said one passenger, as he wiped his forehead, "that made me sweat."

Ye hand-shaking, smiling and cheerful candidate predominated in Salem today. Many a former got pumphan-dled and economy was the song trilled by each and every man who aspires to become a public servant. The candidates are playing the card trick over time, according to one farmer, who went down the street with the gaudy-colored signs sticking out of every pocket. Attorney John D. Turner, who is decidedly not a candidate for office, was seen traveling as fast as his legs could carry him up the stairs in the United States National bank building with three candidates in close pursuit. Other innocent local men walk around with both eyes open and prepared to dash away at the slightest sound of a candidate approaching. Verily, the life of the voter is hard at this time of the year.
