WILLAMETTE NOTES
 Every train is bringing back its crowd of students, who have been home for the past two weeks for the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Many were greatly surprised to see the abundance of snow which covered the ground, and not a few were sorry that it disappeared before they had had an opportunity to coast down Reservoir hill. Classes will start in earnest in the morning and the next few weeks will be busy ones, as the mid-year examinations come the latter part of this month, and there are consequently a number who are anxious to know the outcome.
 The faculty all seem to have passed a pleasant vacation as all are wearing broad, cheerful smiles; this may be, however, in anticipation of the pleasure they will have in helping work on the shoulders of the returning students.
 Dr. Carl Gregg Doney had a number of the college young men at his home for New Year's dinner. All report a pleasant time and an exceptionally good dinner.
